

WORKING GIRLS AS WIVES.

According to editor's idea he thinks that working girls of coming generation although he may not live to see it accomplished that there will be self-supporting women and yet what is more it is reasonable to understand where a woman who has made her own living knows the value of money and has had experience to use it as far as possible has sown her wild oats of small extravagance that always make trouble in new homes. A dollar to her shows many hours of work without running to papa every week for allowance. A home to her is nice to come to after being away all day and sit down tired after supper. Many years roll on with her and she is over exhausted mentally and physically that she had to endure while away. And yet men as a general thing are good natured to women when they meet in a business like way but yet no matter how they may be, women are never at their best outside of home is more than I can tell.

We can say however that experience has shown itself dry after day where we can learn something new if we would apply ourselves as near perfect as we can while we live, having patience, willingness and sound reputation, to become known to our surprise what a success we have all made in life.

A word to the daughters of men. Allow us to say don't live too fast for the amount of work which has befallen for the lack of strength they will have to do yet. All they care about is eagerness for music, art, fancy work, reading and socialism, leave the domestic cares to mothers, older people to look after our young brothers and sisters. All this belongs to the training of a daughter up in the right way and forms a character of home training. But some call this pastime but what is it along side of trade of some kind.

General opinions of public intercourse is to be concluded on fashion of time and yet the very fact of knowing that a good bread winner, who after all a woman for all her bravery with men is going to lose her head and give us the liberty to-day. She is going to take the best man a living and is there anything desirable in liberty which consist in working day after day for food and clothes and a home of some kind to sleep in. This is every wage-earning woman behind the counter or over the wash tub. Facts have been carefully studied from all-seeing eye and yet men are that diffident who think they know it all.

Similar illustration compare our American girls of to-day what do they think of but socialism in all its forms, but speak of household duties, the kitchen, the bed room, the errands across the street and these things, and the answer is in plain English. The servants do that mama and papa, arrange this thing or that while I have my good time in the heart of American people.

Ah, girls, you have got to come to it some day when you will have no one to depend on but yourself and him who is only here a short time with daily life to help you along, and then may die and leave it all. How much better off are you if you would form the idea in early childhood you would never regret it. Look again. Our working girls if home and on farms and in the country have had the same chance you have, but rather worked and become something so that if anything should happen to them in life or death, rich or poor, they can safely say they have finished their course are perfectly contented to die or live in whatever calling may come to them.
