Fuller's Gleaner.

ASHEVILLE, N. C.

—J. M. FULLER, of New York, Editor.—

All communications should be addressed to J. M. Fuller, Editor, Post office Box 346.

THE GREAT GLEANER.

The great Gleaner has been a wonderful success during the recent issue, and according to some of the Testimonials in last Edition there is no doubt but she will become a Masterpiece in Civilization.

Owing to the lateness of last issue it has been with difficulty to meet all homes at proper times but this must be expected as editor is summering his vacation through Northern Adirondacks and suburbs. It is hard to combine vacation and head quarters equalized to such extent as to have the paper out at expected time, but we can be assured it will come then, as ever and all be asked is patience upon the parts of her subscribers and he will do the rest.

Doubtless we know it is somewhat hard on all, Editors but the responsibility they have to go through but one knows but themselves. Newspapers are all over the United States and the duty of reporters is to publish every thing but as the procedure originates people think it is simply natural from all the rest as the labourer who's hire he reports and help contribute his portion. Editor alone recognizes all the many gratuitous favors, tracts of line subscribers and friends. After this date he will advise contributors higher rates but as the people are dull to give him a lift he cannot be hurt over loosing the idea. If you think a dime is not too much to help the labor and time the Editor has in preparing his work and some mothers here do not even look in the time of their expiration and receive it with the Editor all the many times. The Gleaner as it is hopes to go on being enlarged as the papers call for there she cannot as the price is not enough to demand subscription, the rules are for cash a year—what is that to a man of life in circulation one of which expenses have to be paid for printing mailing of stamps possibly and getting advertisement which is quite as them. we often wonder what he can make above expenses. He has tried hard enough in getting low paper interested in all kinds of ways sometimes he actually given away 50 copies more or less if possible in order to get his paper in troubured all over, but it seems being so original alone and different from any kind yet that all newspaper readers are so interested in their own paper they not give the Gleaner a thought to come out as a first class paper because she is so young. It is feared the Gleaner may quit altogether, but what shall we do nothing but a strike may come, and we shall have a battle to fight between the laboring man and his printer of the Circular Press.

Editor of course has been very patient through his paper, but yet there is room for improvement as he moves on in sphere, and we wish him great success in the scope he has already passed through since the first appearance of the Gleaner, in the last four years since he first started the great paper now before us.

Journalism in all its arts is a study upon our young editors at large, as we cannot all become distinguish, alone and without study, and a preparation of some kind, in order to become successful. It has been said by many that it is an easy thing to an Editor of a Newspaper. Let us try and see it, of course one can write plain and talk big and send paper to printer, but is that all we think. How about payment, how about what people will say when in newspaper. How about right subjects to write and keep clear of Just Rights and Reputation, in answer from the Press. Is it easy to be an editor and have all these things, and yet escape. This is one of the chief things to learn, then one can talk about running a Newspaper, and be at the head of it and all these things may be added unto you. This is not to be done once but all the time, as long as a newspaper last. Gleaner has been through some of this but yet she comes out all right, once was she robbed, once she was burned up, and once was she misused by unresponsible party who tried to keep her out of the work of journalism, yet she has not gone forever as we see she seems to remain as good as can be amid it all. Now readers pay and look for the balance of the year for the best little paper of its size to be the most noted of the day, as we cannot tell what the future may bring forth. As to her Editor who pretending to make his paper a true interesting is future we ask for liberal Advertising to fill up so it will be an honor to us all. Send in orders for subscription and the length of time you wish the paper sent to you and it will be cheerfully granted. Address all orders Fuller & Gleaner at State Gazetteer office or personally at the Atlanta News Co. Atlanta Ga. who will receive prompt at

Very Respectfully
J. M. [illegible]

THE NEW WOMAN

[illegible] the coming Woman [illegible] to her superior judgment and have her place a [illegible] although it [illegible] done in many cases on the part of her husband at large yet it is a difficult question to say of graduation to complete women in a moment. What right has women to become lawyers and lecturers or in our pulpits what is the use of us if they themselves are so resistant to work for mans interest and turn the world in their ideas of life and conduct [illegible] woman's place is in the home with all its [illegible] trades and not in the affairs of business men of any kind and if men are not able to support a wife they should never marry. We have three principal grades in History of Theology History says that the idea of women, first our little girl, who is on the borderland of Feminine gender of a school girl. Next in lapse of time she is a maiden of proper ideas of the work in life that she expects to conquer, either in single life, if not married life—knowledge to use or abolish, and then consider herself the new woman. Time Flies on—she has not met with success, and enter the higher standing of profession, rides a wheel, enters our pulpits, declares our laws, organizes all kinds of meetings, and presides all over our lands, and at last becomes a Missionary to the Heathen. This last may do, and they can be glad to have as many new women in their business intercourse as they want, but while there are so many business men alive of ability, and education, and even Ministers of the Gospel, and distinguished Editors, or noted Editors. We have no use for the new women, the name is too serious and uncomprehensible to fill up the minds of the young generation that is springing up the thought of the new women is going to win the day.

I have heard a term used a new girl for work, or a new horse, or cow, which she is all very well, but to term a new woman! Why can't we say a new man? Oh, some one would say that is to common place for they have so much conceit in themselves. Woman like a change. A change said Editor, well, this in ones estimation is about the last thing thought of, and if the only one woman should last be mentioned as first it should have Eve when she was in the garden of Eden, but to think now in the Twentieth Century to call up the term new woman a little uncalled for. She is not come to stay, but is a mere fancy for to create a sensation. Editor was called upon to give a lecture on this subject in the parlors of the Rainbow Inn, one night in August, and only prepared himself half an hour before the event took place. He was introduced by a Mr. Fripp, of New York, to a large audience, and for half an hour he held the audience so still you could hear a pin drop on the floor. His subject was upon the new woman, and these were some of his ideas which have been above stated, and when he finished he received ten bouquets of flowers, and congratulations. D. E. was not well posted on the subject, but he refused several times, and said it was to deep a subject for him to discuss, but he was successful in his attempt and came out much better than any one had thought. Music followed by Mr Leavy and then some songs were sung by Mr Fripp from New York one of the most entertaining evenings had [illegible] for before been seen in the Pat [illegible] of Laurel [illegible]

ENGAGEMENT AND MARRIAGE RINGS.

When a [illegible] is [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] with [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]