A Shooting Scrape in Cherokee County.

We learn from the Scout that at Friendship church, Cherokee county, July 5, Rome Deaver and Jim Rose were quarrelling, when Poley Taylor approached to quiet them, he was followed by Sam Rose. In the fracas which followed, twenty-four shots were fired, Taylor was shot in the mouth and left shoulder by Sam Rose, when he turned and shot Rose hitting him in the head and abdomen. Jim Rose was shot in the left leg, the ball passing through and lodging in his right knee, supposed to have been done by Deaver, who ran and made his escape. Poley Taylor, Sam and Jim Rose were arrested. Taylor and Sam Rose are considered in a dangerous condition and death may result at any moment.

Bill Hamiltons Letter.

Dear Editor:—I know farming is a matter of much importance, and I started in last spring with fresh determinations to make a big thing in farming. But as the Summer advanced and the sun gets hotter, I have abandoned the farm and gone into politics, I don't know yet where I stand, there is so many platforms, and all of them seem a little shaky.

The country is full of Gold Bugs Silver Bugs and Straddle Bugs. Republicanism's, Democraticism's, Peoples party ism's, Laborism's, This ism and that ism,—but money ism seems to be the great ism of the day.

There is only one plan I can think of that will settle the squabble and that is let every dollar contain one part of gold and 15 parts of silver. Mix well and coin same into dollars, and put them out among the people, and call in the old gold and silver dollars now in circulation. Then if I get a dollar it will have the same per cent of gold that the rich mans money has.

Yours Bill Hamilton.

Baltimore, Chesapeake and Richmond Steamboat Company.

New Steel Passenger and Freight Steamer Atlanta.

Appreciating the liberal patronage extended to our York River Line for so many years, and realizing the importance of being thoroughly equipped for our new Chesapeake Bay Line between Baltimore, Old Point Comfort and Norfolk, in connection with the lines of the Southern Railway system for all points South, this company takes pleasure in announcing the completion of its new steamer Atlanta, which, with the magnificent and swift steamer Chamotte, will be placed on the Norfolk route.

The steamer Atlanta, which has been so aptly termed the "New Queen of the Bay," is a veritable floating palace. She was built by the William Cramp & Sons Ship and Engine Building Company of Philadelphia, at a cost of $2,000,000. Her dimensions are: Length, 240 feet; beam, 32 feet; depth to saloon deck, 26 feet.

The hull is constructed of steel of the best character known for shipbuilding, and strictly according to the rules of the American Ship Masters Association, all material being subjected to the most rigorous test and inspection.

The steamer is propelled by an Inverted Triple Expansion Engine of the latest and most approved type, with cylinders 21, 38, and 62 inches in diameter, all having a stroke of 36 inches. Running at 125 revolutions per minute, they indicate 2,550 horse power, and drive the steamer at a speed of eighteen miles per hour.

The shaft is of mild steel, and the propeller a solid casting of Manganese bronze. The high pressure cylinder has a valve of the piston type, the intermediate and low pressure are double ported side valves; the pressure is relieved from the back of the intermediate valve by the Allan-Richardson device. All valves are operated by the double bar Stevenson link gear.

The circulating pumps are of the centrifugal type, and are operated by an independent vertical engine. The feed pump, which is also independent, is of the duplex type, and takes the feed water from a filter and feed water heater. A large fire and bilge pump, also of the duplex type, is provided, and fire hose connections are located in convenient places throughout the steamer.

As a further precaution, a system of steam fire annihilators, the cargo compartments, coal bunkers, etc., is also provided. There is an independent duplex pump for the sanitary service, located from which pipes for salt and fresh water are led throughout the ship, with taps conveniently located.

Steam is supplied by four main and one auxiliary boiler. The main boilers are 12 feet in diameter and 12 feet long, each having two corrugated furnaces 45 inches in diameter and 8 feet 3 inches long; the total grate surface is 200 square feet, and the heating surface 6,079 square feet. The steam pressure is 165 pounds per square inch. The auxiliary boiler is 24 feet in diameter and 24 feet long, with 25 square feet of grate surface and 637 square feet of heating surface. If all the tubes in these boilers were placed end to end, they would equal a length of one and one-third miles.

The smokestack is 7 feet in diameter, and the top of it is 7 feet from the fire grate.

The boat is lighted throughout by electricity; the steam heat, stern light and side lights are electric, and she is provided with a powerful electric search light.

The ship is provided with steam steering gear, steam windlass, capstans and cargo-hoisting engines.

No expense has been spared in making the passenger accommodations most complete. The dining room, which is handsomely finished in hard wood, and has seating capacity for seventy persons, has been located on the main saloon deck, forward, thus insuring ample light and ventilation, and enabling passengers to command a view of the bay and the Chesapeake Bay while enjoying the meals for which this company has always been deservedly famous.

Another attractive feature of this steamer is the location of the kitchen, which is on the upper deck, forward of the smokestack, completely isolated from the passenger accommodations, so that the necessary heat and odor of the cooking is carried directly overboard, causing no annoyance to the passengers.

The main saloon is handsomely decorated in an artistic manner, and is luxuriously furnished. The state rooms are large and comfortable, fitted with steam heat, electric lights and call bells.

The social hall is reached by a magnificently carved hardwood stairway leading from the main saloon, and opens out on the promenade deck, where the passengers gather to admire the glories of the Chesapeake and to discuss the charms of this latest addition to the fleet of this progressive company.

A Medicine That Makes a Man Bustle.

Franklin Co., Tenn., May 16th, 1892

I am forty-five years old, and have spent eight years in bad health. I am poor man and have to hustle for a living. By the use of three packages of "Theodor's Black-Brought," I am now able to hustle in my market garden, and am as stout as a mule. It is the greatest medicine on earth, and does more than it is recommended to do!

Spoons Free to All.

I read in the Christian Standard that Miss A. M. Fritz, station A, St. Louis, Mo., would give an elegant plated hook spoon to any one sending her ten 2-cent stamps. I sent for one and found it so useful that I showed it to my friends, and made $13 in two hours, taking orders for the spoon. The hook spoon is a household necessity. It cannot slip into the dish or cooking vessel, being held in the place by a hook on the back. The spoon is something housekeepers have needed ever since spoons were first invented. Any one can get a sample spoon by sending ten 2-cent stamps to Miss Fritz. This is a splendid way to make money around home.
