BRYAN BOOM ANALYZED.

Far and away the most notable thing that has happened in the political world for many months is the sudden and widespread movement which has begun to make William Jennings Bryan the democratic standard bearer in 1908.

It has come like the rush of an express train. A moment ago it was a dim speck on the horizon; now it looms a large and thundering reality almost upon us. Presently it will be in the past tense—Bryan is a sure thing.

Hardly had the talk of Bryan begun when the states began with one accord to endorse him. Already the list of those which have spoken includes Indiana, Colorado, Arkansas, South Dakota and Missouri.

And New York is preparing to hail him, on return from his trip abroad, as the conquering hero. A tremendous ovation is being prepared.

What does it all mean? Why is Dave Francis of Missouri (ex-gold democrat) coupling the names of Bryan and Cleveland? Why is the "conservative" chairman of the "conservative committee" in Indiana touting the once arch enemy of conservatism?

Call for County and Township Conventions.

At a meeting of the County Democratic Executive Committee held in Brevard on May 5th, 1906, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"That the democratic voters of the county are requested to meet at the polling places in their respective precincts on Saturday, June 16th, 1906, at 2 o'clock p. m. for the purposes of electing delegates to attend the county convention to be held in the town of Brevard on Saturday, June 23d, 1906, at 1 o'clock p. m., and to transact such other business as is provided for in the democratic plan of organization.

"That the aforesaid county convention is hereby called to meet in the court house in the Town of Brevard on Saturday, June 23rd, 1906, at 1 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of nominating the candidates for county offices and for electing delegates to the State, Congressional, Judicial and Senatorial Conventions and to transact such other business as provided for by the democratic plan of organization. W. P. WHITMIRE, County Chairman.

W. E. BREESE, JR., Secretary.

Why this sudden conversion of the Parker-Cleveland wing of the sometime radical "peerless leader?"

The answer is simple. Bryan is chosen by the Parker-Cleveland democrats as the lesser of two evils. As compared with some other leaders who have come to the front since 1896 Bryan is regarded as "safe and sane."

Bryan is being supported as an offset to Hearst and Socialism. The veteran democratic leaders distrust the radical trend of public sentiment. They are filled with fear. Wherever the people have had a chance to register their feelings in the form of ballots they have voted for the most radical proposition. Just what would happen if Hearst or some equally radical man were nominated by the democrats is not known.

Bryan's popularity with the masses is relied upon to save the situation. Although a radical—or so regarded in 1896, when he was denounced as an anarchist and a firebrand—Bryan is now regarded as sufficiently conservative. As Mr. Shively said to the Indiana convention:

"That which is today eulogized and approved as broad statesmanship and enlightened patriotism in Theodore Roosevelt was only a few years ago denounced as reactionary, revolutionary and unpatriotic in William Jennings Bryan."

Times have changed. Public sentiment has moved forward. Bryan today is the same Bryan of 1896—but the "conservative voters" of 1906 see him through new spectacles.

President Roosevelt is responsible for the growing popularity of radical opinions and candidates. When he entered the White House he quietly and unofficially severed his connections with the republican party, its leaders and its platform. His administration has been an effort to carry out the principles which were declared in the democratic platform of 1896—with the one exception of free silver.

The main feature of the democratic platforms of 1896 and 1900 was opposition to trusts and vested monopoly. If Roosevelt had been elected on that platform he could not have given the country a more consistent anti-trust administration.

In the matter of tariff revision Roosevelt is with the Democrats.

The country has acclaimed the Roosevelt program. They will vote for somebody who will continue it.

Hence W. J. Bryan. What will Bryan have to say about government ownership of railways? Two years ago he came out for state control. He may temper that when the rate bill is passed by saying that he is content to wait and see how that works.

But the most important statement by Bryan, the one that has done the most to allay the fears of those who regarded him as an ultra radical, is the one in which he took a stand against socialism. —Greenville News.
