A MUNICIPAL THEATER.

City of Red Wing, Minn., Managing a Playhouse Bequeathed by a Citizen.

The first practical step toward the establishment of an endowed theater in this country has been taken by the little town of Red Wing, Minn., boasting not more than 8,000 souls in population and yet having the distinction of being the only municipality in the country which owns, controls and manages a theater for the improvement and amusement of its citizens, writes L. F. Pierce in The World Today.
The theater, which cost $80,000, was the gift of the late Theodore B. Sheldon, a citizen of Red Wing, who had accumulated wealth by wise investments in real estate. He was a modest but public spirited man, one whose heart was wrapped up in the progress of his community, though he never sought for or accepted civic honors. On his death it was found that he had made a gift of a theater to his city. In the bequest it was stipulated that the new playhouse should not be used for gain, either private or public, but should be so managed as to become an educational factor in the community for the better development of the artistic feeling both in those who may tread its boards and in those to whom it is a gift.

There are no free admissions, and the citizens of Red Wing are expected to support the institution by paying the moderate charge of $1 a seat. "No cheap plays, but moderate prices," is the motto of this municipal theater, which as the first experiment of its kind is being watched with keen interest by critics, managers and patrons of the drama. It is the first practical step toward the divorce of the American stage from commercialism.

Grant and Porter.

Admiral Porter was forever running into print, and this was a source of great annoyance to Grant, who was his staunch friend.

"What do you think of Porter as an admiral?" was asked of the general on one occasion.

"Why," replied Grant, with a quiet smile, "he would be the greatest admiral since Nelson if he had never learned to write."

First, be temperate. Second, stay out of doors as much as you can. If the American business man, young or old, will only do these two things and take reasonable physical exercise, says Trainer Murphy in the Saturday Evening Post, he will soon get fit and will stay fit to the end.

Maude—When you refused him my hand, papa, did he get down on his knees? Pater—Well, I didn't notice just where he fell.—New York Mail.

A CHANGE AT BREVARD INSTITUTE.

From Southern Christian Advocate.

To the Members of the Woman's Home Mission Society, and the Friends of Brevard Institute:

In the good Providence of God, the educational and institutional betterment work of the Woman's Home Mission Society, is developing and enlarging so rapidly the executive board faces a constantly recurring problem in the effort to find the right leader for each new institution.

For more than a year the board has known that its youngest mission, the Vashti Industrial School for indigent homeless girls, located at Thomasville, Ga., and the only one of this character under the management of the society, must have a more worthy equipment and a strong, experienced principal.

Mr. E. E. Bishop, who for the past four years has been in charge of the Brevard Institute, and who has so successfully and satisfactorily managed and developed that work, has seemed to the educational committee to be the one worker in all our ranks fully competent and qualified to wisely plan and develop this new school and home.

Besides the fifty girls now in the school to be cared for and kept employed in quarters not sufficiently large for half the number, a large and expensive building must be gotten ready before another winter term, while a number of smaller buildings and forty acres of land are to be put in order for the industries projected. For all of this work, Mr. Bishop's experience as a business man, as well as a school man, has thoroughly fitted him.

The board is not unmindful of the fact that in asking Mr. and Mrs. Bishop to make this change, it has asked a sacrifice, but with the spirit of true missionaries they have consented, and Mr. Bishop will leave early in July for his new field of labor, Mrs. Bishop and the children joining him in the fall.

Prof. Carl H. Trowbridge, who succeeds Mr. Bishop as the principal of Brevard Institute, comes to the work with the best recommendations as a true Christian gentleman, and an experienced educator.

He is a graduate of Prichett College, Missouri, with a two years special course at Harvard University.

Prof. Trowbridge was for four years a member of the faculty of Central College, Lexington, Mo., and for the past five years has been teaching in Washington University, St. Louis, Mo.

To our missionary workers it will be of interest to know that the new principal is the oldest son of Mrs. J. A. Trowbridge, for many years the president of the Woman's Foreign Mission Society of the Missouri Conference. A younger brother is in city mission work in Chicago, and still another has completed his course at Chicago University this year, and in the fall will take a position as associate teacher of geology in that institution.

Prof. Trowbridge's wife is the daughter of Dr. James A. Lanius, for more than a quarter of a century a teacher of wide reputation, and a local preacher in the Missouri Conference.

Miss Annie Lanius, another daughter of this noble father, is a missionary to Japan under the general board of missions.

The change at Brevard Institute has not been made without much prayer, and the confident belief that God has decided all the way, we therefore bespeak for Prof. and Mrs. Trowbridge the hearty co-operation of all our Methodist people who are interested in Christian education, and the continued patronage of parents and friends who have young people and children to educate.

MISS BELLE H. BENNETT,
Pres. W. B. H. M.
MRS. R. W. MACDONNELL,
General Secretary.

No nature faker will deny that President Roosevelt knows to a nicety how long are the prongs of Senator Tillman's pitchfork.

"A shiver went through the passengers" says a realistic writer in a thrilling railroad story. As a matter of fact, it probably was the Pullman porter.

Nearly all old-fashioned Cough Syrups are constipating, especially those that contain opiates. They don't act just right. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup contains no opiates. It drives the cold out of the system by gently moving the bowels. Contains Honey and Tar and tastes nearly as good as maple syrup. Children like it. Sold by Brevard Drug Co.
