Plain Talks on Fertilizers Improving and Increasing Tobacco Crops

No soil is rich enough in | all the foods the tobacco plant needs to produce it at its best.

Many tobacco soils, however, contain natural elements, rich in certain valuable plant foods, but lacking in others. And just as a dead or dying soil must be fed with a complete plant food, so these partially fed soils need specially prepared food to supply what they lack, and balance the unequal fertilization supplied by nature.

When these special nourishing clements are added to the soil, creps multiply enormously; quality improves, and | > profits are doubled and trebled. Tobacco is seldom planted nowadays without the use of some fertilizer; but the great point to remember is to have the right fertilizer in the suffi-
