During this time opportunity will be given to all to register who have not yet done so, and who are not debarred by any disqualifying cause.

Sharpening a Pocketknife.

Cutters have certain rules for sharpening razors, pocketknives, etc. "A razor," said one of the craft, "must be laid flat on the hone, because it is hollow ground and requires a fine edge. But a pocketknife requires a stiff edge, and the moment you lay it flat on a stone, so as to touch the polished side, you injure the edge. It must be held at an angle of twenty to twenty-five degrees and have an edge similar to a chisel."

Quite Likely.

"I didn't see you at our euchre the other night," said the bachelor. "No," replied the young Benedict, "as far as euchre goes with me now, I consider 'home' the right bower." "That's all right while hearts are trump, but I suppose if clubs should turn up it would be the left bower."—Philadelphia Press.

Dangerous.

First Actor—I thought your next tour was to have been through South Africa. Second Actor—It was, but the company struck. One of them had read that an ostrich egg often weighs two or three pounds.

Corrected.

"I wish I had never learned to play cards," exclaimed a man who had been unfortunate at the game. "You mean you wish you had learned, don't you?" was his wife's rejoinder.

Hatred is like fire. It makes even light rubbish deadly.—George Elliot.

Madame Nordica says that talking will strengthen and develop the whole body. This will hardly be good news for Mr. Taft at the beginning of his talking tour.

The Boston Post says, "No man should pin his faith to a cocktail." Superfluous advice, it seems, when swallowing them is so much simpler.

DEMOCRATIC RALLY.

Thursday, Sept. 17th, was a day to be remembered in Brevard. Three candidates for state offices on the Democratic ticket were here and addressed a large audience. The speakers were Hon. W. W. Kitchen, candidate for governor, Hon. B. F. Aycock, candidate for Corporation Commissioner, and Hon. M. L. Shipman, candidate for Commissioner of Labor and Printing. The beauty and chivalry of the town were out in full force, and both schools came in a body to attend the speaking, which took place on the court house grounds.

Hon. M. L. Shipman was the first speaker, introduced by W. E. Breese jr. Mr. Shipman spoke only a few minutes, saying that the time should be given up to the other speakers. He said that he had been selected to pilot the future governor throughout the state. He referred to his former stay in this section, and spoke feelingly of the "land of the sky, whose peaks tower toward heaven, and where you can tickle the feet of the angels."

W. E. Breese jr. introduced Hon. B. F. Aycock as the next speaker. Mr. Aycock also declared that he would not take up much of the time, as he knew the people had assembled to hear the man who was to be next governor of the state. In his brief speech Mr. Aycock made a decidedly good impression. He recounted the failure and treachery of the Republican party while in office, and showed the claim upon the people's confidence held by the Democrats in what they had done for the state. When he referred to the brutal conduct of Republican officials, and the treatment of white ladies by negro policemen, a hearty applause broke forth, led by the feminine part of the audience.

The third and last speaker was Hon. W. W. Kitchen, who was introduced by T. H. Galloway. Lack of space forbids anything like a detailed account of this speech. For at least an hour and a half Mr. Kitchen held his audience willing captives. He brought no railing accusations against the opposing party, but made strong statements and backed them by argument that was dispassionate and convincing. The whole tenor of his address was remarkably fair, and his treatment of the Republicans considerate. He endeavored to persuade the members of that party that their proper place was in the Democratic ranks if they desired a voice in the government and did not wish to be controlled by bosses. His discussion of national issues, such as tariff reform and the trusts, was clear enough to be understood almost by a child. In comparing the two candidates for president, he declared that Taft was a man who had always received his honors from above by appointment, and so was not in a position to feel the gratitude and sympathy toward the people, which would naturally belong to a man who had received his honors from them. Taft, he said, was an echo of Roosevelt, who might do very well with Roosevelt at hand to consult with, but what would he do when Teddy went on his great African hunt?

In addition to the strong matter of his argument, Mr. Kitchen displayed many of the graces of a good speaker, possessing a fine personal appearance and a splendid voice, which despite the difficulty of open air speaking, carried his message to the remotest listener without apparent effort. He was interrupted by frequent applause, and when he referred to the west's original opposition to him, his remarks were received with great good humor.

Immediately after the speaking, the three candidates left Brevard on the 4:30 train.

How To Get Strong.

P. J. Daly, of 1247 W. Congress St., Chicago, tells of a way to become strong. He says: "My mother, who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitters, that I feel it's my duty to tell those who need a tonic and strengthening medicine about it. In my mother's case a marked gain in flesh has resulted, insomnia has been overcome, and she is steadily growing stronger." Electric Bitters quickly remedy stomach, liver and kidney complaints. Sold under guarantee at T. B. Allison's drug store, 50 cents.

A Paris fashion note says that next year ladies hats will be much lower: It would be a trusting man indeed who could fancy it referred to the price.

So the front porch campaign of Mr. Taft is to be abandoned in favor of a back platform tour. Perhaps Mr. Hitchcock discovered that it's more practicable to carry Mr. Taft to the crowd than to carry the crowd to him in these days when railroad passes are no longer obtainable.
