Avoid the Knife! Take Stella-Vitae

It Has Saved Thousands of Suffering Women.

Mr. W. F. Nelson, a merchant of Hixon, Tenn., says that the daughter of one of his neighbors, Mr. James Roberts, was in such a condition with female trouble that an operation was advised, and the young lady was sent to Chattanooga for its performance. She dreaded the operation, and Stella-Vitae having been recommended, decided to try that first. She has taken six bottles and is happily on the road to recovery. She is able to do her usual work and is in better health than for years before, but continues to use it. She writes "Stella Vitae will do all you claim." Her father says "she began to improve at once, after taking Stella-Vitae." Thousands of other women on the verge of serious surgical operations are saved by a timely use of Stella-Vitae, the great female remedy. Try Stella-Vitae on our money-back-if-not-benefited guarantee. $1 at your dealers.

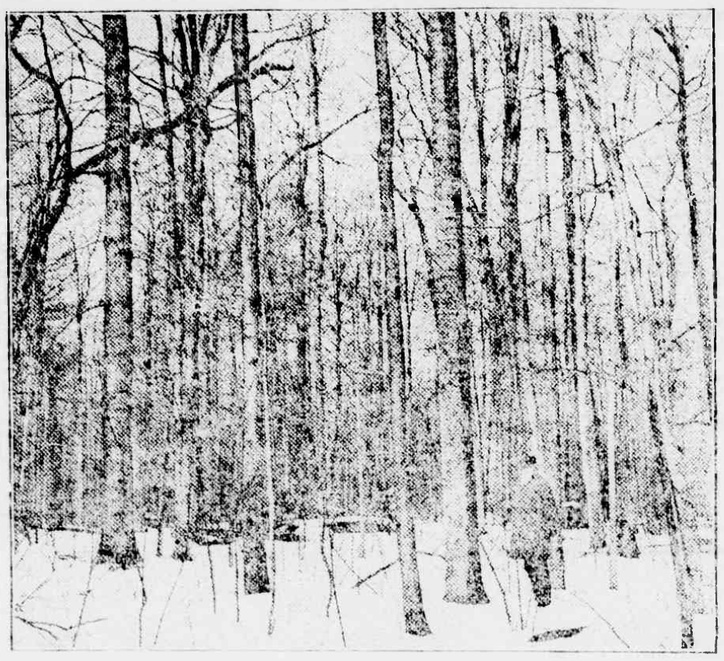
FARM WOODLOTS FREQUENTLY OVERLOOKED



OLD WOODLOT, UNGRAZED—NOTE YOUNG TREES WHICH WILL MAKE FUTURE TIMBER CROP.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A permanent woodlot is an essential part of a well-equipped farm. In heavily wooded states especially farmers are likely to overlook this fact and recklessly cut, misuse, or clear up their forest areas. It does not occur to them that it may be advisable to allow thrifty, immature timber to mature rather than to remove it at a loss; and that it is often better to practice intensive agriculture on areas already cleared than to clear additional areas which are in growing timber.

The one direct economic reason for the use of land as woodlot is that on some areas timber is the most profitable crop that can be grown. This, of course, is especially true of poor and rough land. Where all the land is adaptable to more valuable crops the woodlot should occupy only a small part of the farm area.

There are a great many indirect considerations, however, which justify the maintenance of a permanent woodlot on the farm. The important ones, a number of which are usually active in any particular case, are: (1) For convenience of home use for fuel, posts, and other farm needs; (2) as a windbreak for buildings or crops; (3) as a shelter for stock; (4) for protection of land from erosion; (5) to furnish work for men and teams during spare time; (6) for purely esthetic reasons and for recreation purposes, for which reasons alone a farm with a well-located grove of trees, however small, will sell for more than one without. Thus a woodlot may at the same time increase the general prosperity of the farm, add to its comfort as a home, and enhance its value as an investment.

The reason farmers have not given as full consideration to the woodlot as it deserves is that they have not had complete enough knowledge of the market possibilities of various woodlot products and of the rate of growth and possible yields per acre of properly cared for stands of different species and ages, or that they have considered only the present need and have not looked ahead. Special attention is now being given by the forest service to these questions and to the question of improved methods of marketing. Information about the uses of various kinds of wood and the markets for them has been compiled for a number of states. In some cases this information has been published by the State Foresters in Wood-Using Industry Reports and in Handbooks for Marketing Woodlot Products. A new bulletin prepared by the forest service (Farmers' Bulletin No. 715, Measuring and Marketing Woodlot Products) is a handbook of practical information for farmers regarding the measurement of timber, the forms in which woodlot products are sold, the methods of sale, and the way to find a market. Another just published (Farmers' Bulletin No. 711, The Care and Improvement of the Woodlot) contains information intended to assist the farmer in managing his woodlot so that it will yield the best quality and the largest amount of timber of which it is capable.

The farmer too often considers only the local and immediate uses of a woodlot, overemphasizing them and disregarding other functions that might ultimately prove to be more important. For example, where agriculture is entering heavily wooded regions, timber is likely to be considered only an incumbrance. In long-settled farming regions, where most of the timber has been cut and only a few trees are left, the farmers may prefer to save the remnant for the shade it gives to stock or buildings or because it improves the appearance of the farm. In prairie country, protection to grain crops, orchards, stock, or buildings, together with service as a convenient supply of wood for farm consumption, may cause owners to place a high value on their woodlots. In mountainous regions near thickly populated manufacturing centers the woodlot may be valued for its wood-producing capacity alone. The temptation is to forget or underestimate those functions which are not obviously and immediately beneficial. As a matter of fact, the less obvious functions are often the very ones which are likely to prove of the greatest value in the long run. For example, many of the Minnesota farmers who totally cleared their lands would be glad to have their woodlots back again for protective and other purposes; and farmers in the Central states already regret the abuse which has robbed their woodlots of the capacity to yield a wood crop of increasing value on the poorer soils of the farm. It is, therefore, greatly to the interest of all farmers to consider not only the present but the possible future usefulness of a farm woodlot.

WOODLOT OF MIXED GROWTH—LARGE TREE IN FOREGROUND SHOULD BE REMOVED TO GIVE YOUNG TREES MORE LIGHT.

UNFAILING WAY OF SPREADING DISEASE

Dirty Water Pan Is Menace to Poultry Flock—Vessel Should Be Cleaned Every Day.

How often do you clean up the water pans in your henhouse? You ought to clean them every day. For a dirty water pan is the surest way of spreading disease throughout your flock.

The best way of handling water in the poultry house is to keep it in a cheap, flat washbasin that can be easily cleaned and refilled. It always pays to take care of water tanks. You have to fill them, and the few minutes which you devote to each pan in cleaning is not lost.

Place the open basin on a box some 8 or 10 inches high and perhaps 18 inches square, and keep a runway for it. This keeps it from filling up with dirt and straw from the floor and the hens do not climb into it in drinking.

Then put the box and basin in a sunny corner of the house away from the roosts and nests, so that no dirt can fall into it from above.

Clean it and refill it with clean, fresh water every day and you will have put the disease germs to flight indefinitely.

TALK ABOUT ITCHING

A well known Georgia dentist, Dr. R. H. Thomas, Valdosta, Ga., writes: "I feel as though some encouragement is due you for the good results I obtained from Hancock Sulphur Compound. I suffered greatly for three long, hot summers, with some unknown itch on my legs from my knees to my ankles. There was no eruption—the skin perfectly clear and smooth—but talk about itching, it certainly did it. I have used one fifty cent bottle of Hancock Sulphur Compound and think I am nearly well. Many thanks."

Improved Beyond Expectations

"My wife has been a long sufferer of lung trouble, and frequently with hemorrhages," says Mr. R. C. Currence, of 5000 Pennsylvania Ave., Nashville, Tenn. "We had almost given up hope of her ever being any better. She has taken four bottles of Lung-Vita, and she has never had another hemorrhage, or even symptom. She has improved beyond our expectations, has gained in flesh, and we are almost sure she will soon be sound and well." Mr. Currence is a prominent lumber man of this city and is connected with John B. Ransom & Co. Take Lung-Vita for consumption, asthma, and kindred troubles. "Rile" Rebuke.

The prince of Wales has endeared himself to the British soldiers fighting in the trenches.

There is a story about a regiment that the prince recently reviewed. A soldier in this regiment was noted equally for his bravery and his untidiness. The prince talked to him for a few minutes, and the man in his confusion could stammer nothing but "Your rile 'ighness." "Yes, your rile 'ighness." "No, your exe 'ighness."

At the end of the interview the prince said, with a good-natured glance at the soldier's accouterments disordered as usual:

"Very good, my man, very good; but, in future, please, not so much of the rile 'ighness and a little more of the pipe clay."

Doubly Honored.

Curious Neighbor—I see you have a letter there from Fritz. Has he got the iron cross yet?

Proud Mother—No, he's got more than that. He has written me here that he has got the double cross.

Universal Military Service Would Do Much Toward Leveling of All Classes

By LIEUT. GEN. S. B. M. YOUNG

What would have a more democratic influence upon the young men of the country than to have them training shoulder to shoulder under proper military discipline? Under our present system the gulf between the rich and the poor is growing wider and, despite all our pretensions of equality, class distinctions are rapidly forming—the elbow touch has been lost. There is no melting pot in this country in which a national spirit is being fused, and we are drifting rapidly toward commercialism. There seems to be an impression that patriotism can be bought. Our young men are being taught that money will buy anything, and that they are under no obligation to render personal service. We pride ourselves upon having the greatest and freest country in the world, and are ready to render less service to it than the subjects of monarchs.

No national spirit is being developed. The true spirit of patriotism is being crushed by materialism, and we will never have a nation, in the highest sense of the word, until all render equal national service.

Giving Her an Object Lesson.

Mrs. Stiff came in from a chat over the fence with her neighbor, and her face was hard and red.

"Come here, Tommy!" she commanded her young son. "I am going to punish you, but open the windows first."

"What for?" said Tommy, beginning to weep.

"Well, I have just heard that that cat across the road said I have no authority over you, and I want her to hear you getting a whipping. Come here, sir!"
