

Ayer's Sarsaparilla
The Remedy with a Record.
50 Years of Cures

Jefferson's Boyhood Residence.

Jefferson spent part of his early boyhood at Tuckahoe on the James River, a fine house still in existence, about fourteen miles west of Richmond, which has not parted with the traditions inseparable from an old Virginia mansion, including a bed slept in by George Washington, a perambulating ghost who wrings his hands before cock-crow, and stables where a stud of thoroughbred horses consumed annually "a thousand barrels of corn." Near the flower garden, with its box-edged walks, stands a little brick building styled the school house wherein studied together Thomas Jefferson and Thomas Mann-Randolph, the boy heir of the estate, to which his guardian, Peter Jefferson, had removed with his family, the better to watch over his orphaned charge. This Thomas Mann Randolph married, first, Anne, daughter of Archibald Cary Amphill, the fiery patriot of the Revolution, known by the sobriquet "Old Iron." The oldest son of this marriage became Mr. Jefferson's son-in-law. Very late in life Colonel Randolph sojourned his widowhood by taking to wife a beautiful young girl in her teens, Miss Gabriella Harvie, of Richmond, an event that soon scattered from her husband's home the children of his first marriage. One might go far without finding advice so kind, so temperate, in such exquisite sympathy with the difficulties of poor human nature in families diverse elements, as that of the letter written by Mr. Jefferson to his daughter upon the subject of this marriage of her father-in-law in 1790. An odd outcome of the much-discussed nuptials was that the new Mrs. Randolph, imperiously ignoring the fact that her oldest stepson was already in possession of the name, bestowed upon her own son also his father's name of Thomas Mann Randolph. From this high spirited and captivating Mrs. Gabriella Randolph descended the Misses Ella and Emily Chapman, of Philadelphia, married respectively to the Marquis Louis de Podestad and Prince Pignatelli d'Aragon.—New York Ledger.

There is little to be said in favor of long matrimonial engagements, though it would be hard to convince the ardent young souls who have just discovered that they love each other that this is the case. They can't see why they should not be engaged, even though marriage is only a faint beam in the horizon. Poor deluded young things! They little know what they are lightly and thoughtlessly taking in hand. For before them lies a waste of waiting. Gradually Edwin will weary of it. He will discover that there are many attractive women in the world, and grow neglectful, cold exacting and offensive. Angelina will begin with anguish to notice in her glass that she is not looking so young as she was; to endure torments when Edwin looks meditatively at her, and wonder whether he is remarking it too.

They will both have to see other lovers becoming engaged and marrying briskly out of hand while their own affairs drags its slow length along. They will have their full taste of the long deferred hope that maketh the heart sick, and if they don't both bitterly repent that they ever entered into an engagement to which there was no reasonable hope of a termination—why, they will not be mortal. Anything under a year is rational and correct. It may stretch to two years without undue annoyance to either party. Where people are unselfish and genuinely in love the years may be further extended without risk, though never without trial and wear to those chiefly concerned. But where their is no prospect of bringing the engagement to at least a reasonable limit it had for better be ended.—Ex.

A $1000 WORD.

Two Papers at Almost the Price of One and a Chance at $1,000 in Addition

The Third Missing Word Contest of The Atlanta Weekly Constitution, in which $1,000 Will Be Distributed to Successful Contestants on the 1st of Next May

The Atlanta Weekly Constitution has inaugurated its third consecutive "missing word" contest, which began on the 1st of March and closes on the 1st of May—sixty days.

It publishes the cashier's receipt for the special deposit account of $1,000 to be paid to the person, or persons, who, in subscribing to The Weekly Constitution, names correctly the missing word in the following sentence:

"The right of — is the very essence of the constitution."

The sentence is taken from a historical publication, and the sentiment to which it gives expression is that of an eminent writer

By special arrangement with The Weekly Constitution, that great paper and ours can be obtained for one year at almost the price of one paper. Not only that; but under our arrangement with The Weekly Constitution every person who takes advantage of this clubbing proposition, subscribing for both papers, will be entitled to guess at the missing word. All clubbing subscriptions should be sent to this paper with each subscriber's guess at the missing word plainly written. The guess and the name and address of each subscriber will be forwarded by us to The Constitution.

The Constitution's first "missing word contest" closed on the 1st of January, and but one person, Mr. M. L. Brittain, a hardworking school teacher, guessed the missing word, receiving therefor a check for $1,000.

Its second contest closed on the 1st of March, and The Weekly Constitution of Monday, March 8th, will contain the announcement of the awards in which $1,000 in cash is to be distributed among the successful guessers in that contest.

The readers of our paper who subscribe jointly to it and to The Weekly Constitution have free access into the third contest, just opened; and it may be that some of them will get the $1,000 to be distributed on the 1st of May.

The only condition of the contest is that every guesser must be a subscriber; and taking advantage of The Constitution's offer we present this opportunity to all who wish to subscribe to both papers. Every person should have his county paper and one great general newspaper; and The Weekly Constitution, with a circulation of 156,000, occupies the unique distinction of being the greatest American weekly newspaper.

The County Union and The Atlanta Constitution both one year for $1.50 each in advance. Each subscriber is entitled to a guess in the "missing word contest."

Send us One Dollar and Fifty Cents and get both papers.
