The reason is the growing conviction on the part of some of the officers that they must not reckon on any substantial assistance from the Cuban rebels in this campaign, and moreover must meet the Spaniards in Cuba in their strongest sphere, that of the defensive. Naval authorities are relieved of a good deal of embarrassment by the consent of French authorities at Martinique to allow the scouting vessel Harvard to remain in St. Pierre until her repairs are completed. It was supposed at first that she would be allowed only seven days stay, and at the end of that time would be forced out to risk attack at the hands of some ambushed Spanish cruiser or torpedo boat about eighty-one miles in length, known as "Division C." The bonds of each of the several series are also subordinate lines upon each of the other Divisions, respectively. The Second or Consolidated Mortgage embraces all the lines in the First and also the branches. The contention is between the plaintiffs, Charles Adolphe Low and others, claiming to be the Committee representing "Series A" bondholders, and the defendants, William H. Blackford and others, a Committee of the holders of the bonds of the three different series. The first are known as the "New York Committee," and the last as the "Baltimore Committee;" the New York Committee claiming that the Railway should be offered for sale both by Divisions and as an entirety, while the claim of the Baltimore Committee is, that it should be sold as an entirety.

Judge Simonton, in a most able and carefully-prepared opinion, reviews the facts, discusses fully the equities, and applies the law. The Circuit Court of Appeals quotes, with approval, from his opinion where he says: "This Railway Company derives all its powers and privileges from the State which created it, and the bondholders enjoy the security of the mortgage, because the act of the Legislature granted this power to the Railway Company. The purpose and intent of the State was to secure an entire line of railway from its principal seaport to the Virginia line. It granted the franchise to the company as an entirety, ONE INDIVISIBLE FRAN-CHISE, granted for the purpose of constructing and continuing an ENTIRE CONTINUOUS LINE of road. * * * If. therefore, the property were offered for sale at auction in separate divisions, it could, probably would, result in a disruption of the entire system, against the purpose of, and defeat the end sought by the State, for which the corporation was created, and to which it owes its existence and its powers-will be inconsistent with the general tenor of the mortgage itself, and will utterly destroy an important incident in the value of each division.

Judge Simonton, further elaborates the injurious effects to result, to the State and its business interest, in defeating the object and purposes for which the franchise of this company was granted. The New York bondholders seek to divide the franchise; the Court holds a sale by division would destroy it entirely. The Court, in its opinion, provides for an equitable division, of the proceeds of sale among the bondholders of the respective series and the Circuit Court of Appeals, in the elaborate opinion of Judge Goff. approves the conclusions reached, and affirms the decision in its entirety.

This means much for the people of North Carolina. It is a distinct recognition on the part of the Federal Judiciary, of a duty to enforce the laws of the State, in dealing with corporations chartered under those laws and as such we hail and applaud it. money, saying they preferred to have bread and that they were desperately hungry.

When questioned as to the prevalence of vellow fever at Havana, the fishermen said there was little sickness at the Cuban capital, but, they added, there was much starvation. The reconcentrados, they said, are nearly all dead or have been expelled from the city to die in the suburbs. This agrees with other reports from Havana and Matanzas, to the effect that the Spanish authorities, on the departure of the American consuls, seized all the relief supplies and applied them to the use of the army. The Spaniards then drove the reconcentrados into the desolated sections of the country between the coast towns and the insurgent lines, the regions described by Senator Proctor and others as being too barren and desolate to support grasshoppers. The insurgents themselves have been chary of receiving reconcentrados, and hundreds of the latter who had no personal friends in the insurgent camps have been left to starve between the lines. Near Havana the situation is even worse. Hundreds of reconcentrados from Los Fosas, the big reconcentrado barracks, were too weak to walk out of town and fell in the streets or died in the suburbs, where flocks of vultures, "Weyler's chickens," as they are now termed in Havana, have fasted on the bodies. In Matanzas this element of the situation is equally bad.

The fishermen who have been brought here are soon reconciled to capture, which means food and decent treatment, They say that if the blockade continues much longer bread riots must follow in all the large towns of Western Cuba, as food is reserved exclusively for the army, thus forcing many persons to enlist who would not otherwise do so. The fishermen also say that some of the most desperate Spaniards threaten to burn Havana or blow up the city in the event of the authorities deciding to capitulate to the American
