

THE DAILY CITIZEN.

The Citizen is the most extensively circulated and widely read newspaper in Western North Carolina.

FRIDAY, MARCH 8, 1889.

READY FOR WORK.

The pomp and show of inauguration is over. The pilgrims from far and near have returned to their various homes.

In these first attempts as national host and hostess, General and Mrs. Harrison acquitted themselves very creditably.

To be able to greet with a smile and an approving word the many thousands of visitors who annually make their way to the executive mansion is all very well in its place.

The President is ready to do good work, is expected to do good work and will soon have a chance to demonstrate to the people, whether or not their confidence or judgment was misplaced in electing him to the highest office within their power.

ALL WRONG.

The Senate branch of the fiftieth session of Congress extended into Sunday on March 3rd. Senator Riddleberger always bilious, at this time became so intoxicated that he actually disgraced his colleagues and the high position he then held.

This was all wrong. They should have been left where they were, upon the official record. Erasing them from the book did not blot out the disgrace.

THE END IS NOT YET.

Although the former Pigott is dead, the end of the Parnell commission trial is not yet. It is slowly dragging its way along.

It now transpires that several prominent Englishmen, whether by their own free will or by being duped by Pigott to give aid, by money and influence to help Pigott "unmask the Parnellites."

Enough testimony has already been unearthed to prove that the man Pigott was an arch-demon, and that the plot he laid and purposed carrying out was one of prodigious proportions and one that, had it succeeded, would have worked incalculable injury to many of his fellow-men. The people of many nations are watching the progress of the trial with great interest.

THEY WILL BE PRESERVED.

A bill has recently passed the United States Senate which provides for the preservation of the inaugural addresses of all the presidents. Ten thousand copies of the addresses will be printed at first.

SENSIBLE.

Grover Cleveland's courtesy to his successor, Mr. Harrison, from the latter's first arrival in Washington until he took the oath of office as President, was the subject of much national comment.

EDITORIAL POINTS.

Poor, deluded, unfortunate Pigott lies in an alien's grave in far-off Madrid.

Hon. Wm. Windom, secretary of the treasury, has resigned his position as president of the Atlantic and Pacific Railway Company.

After sixteen days of "cut and try" a jury of "twelve good men and true" have been found to try Thomas B. Kerr, of New York city, on the charge of having bribed the aldermen of the board of 1884.

Judge Charles P. Daly read a paper at the recent meeting of the New York Historical Society on the "Bench and Bar of New York in 1789."

TARIFF SPLITTERS.

"Any man who carries a tin dinner-pail which is taxed, without his consent, for purposes other than to defray the lawful and legitimate expenditures of the government, is not a freeman."

General Randall is a great godsend to the Republicans. Their terror has been that they would be compelled to vote on the Senate tariff bill.

As far as the West and South are concerned, the tariff gives them no protection from New England and Pennsylvania.

President Harrison's enjoiny of the protective system hardly comports with his warning to great corporations to more scrupulously observe their legal limitations and duties.
