Daily Mean.

EDITOR CITIZEN:-I have read with some interest your interview with Capt. Carter which appeared in yesterday's issue of the Crruzen in explanation of his course in the legislature with reference to opening bar rooms on days of political speaking. To this very remarkable instamps as "untrue," two statements made by myself in a recent issue of the Asheville Methodist, and while I am writing I will give some attention also Offered at Law's Clearing Sale: and I waited some days in order to give most for a song. Call and examine him the benefit of his own statement in goods. They are all laid out on separate connection with what I had to say about tables. his course in this matter in the Methodist, but I waited in vain. He did not notice my letter. So that if I did not give the facts in the case it was not my fault. But having seen his defence in the Crrusan, I now conclude that if I did not give the facts, I was not very far wrong after all, for he makes out a very strong case against himself viewed from a temperance standpoint.

In the interview he says, "the bill was general and not local." So much the worse; for then it not only applied to Asheville, but to all of the incorporated towns of the State. The fact that it was "general" only increases the intensity of his course in this matter in the Metho-interests of the entire county? Will he say that it is right to bring thousands of the people of this and surrounding counties into this city on days of public political speaking, as was the case last political speaking, as was the year, and throw open these bar rooms year, and throw open these bar rooms He

year, and throw open these bar rooms to such a promiscuous mass? He may think so, but hundreds of his former supporters do not.

But again, "He had not been asked to introduce the bill by any oue." If he had not been asked to introduce the bill it is to be inferred then that no body wanted it done, so the Captain volunteered to do a thing on his own responsibility, when he knew on his own responsibility, when he knew that many of the very people who cast their votes for him were violently op-posed to such a measure. He had no busess to meddle with that kind of dynamite when no one had asked him to do so.

It was bad policy to say the least of it.
He says "He had no apologies to make."
Who has asked him to make any? Echo

answers Who? Again, "The statement in the Asbeville Methodist, that the bill was introduced in the interest of the whiskey people was untrue." Where is the proof? I am sure that it was not introduced in the "interest" of the temintroduced in the "interest" of the temperance people. In whose "interest" then was it introduced? Who was to be benefitted by it? Why, of course the liquor men. They would sell the liquor and get the money, and the community would get the brawls, the bloodshed and the general devilment. It does not even require a lawyer to see the blunt end of that point. The Captain ought not to perpetrate that kind of a joke on Buncombe! His humor ought to seek another channel. Again, he says, "It was also untrue that the bill was introduced and rushed through without the knowledge of his colleague Dr. Baird." I have some letters that show my authority for that "statement." So I transfer that responsibility to the Captain and his colleague. But again, "If it did not pass the Senate and become a law, I am sorry for it." The Captain knows that it did not pass and that it did not become a law; and as no one asked him to introduce the bill, he must shed his sorrow—except a few barkeepers in Asheville, as it were, perhaps! But finally, he does "not propose to be dictated to, especially by those who would strangle all temperance movements, by their intemperance." My! What an inexplicable paradox! "Strangle temperance movement," by trying to keep the Captain from killing the very law enacted in 1879 for the protection of temperance But worse than all, he notified the hundreds of temperance people in Buncombe that he will tolerate no dictation from shem, yet no one has dared to "Gietate" to him. We did not get the chaise. His work was done before we knew of it. Hisd we known it in time were law, and the general periods. The contract of the chaise. His work was done before we knew of it. Hisd we known it in time were law, per hundreds.

The Captain for his colleague of his colleague. The contract of the contract o perance people. In whose "interest" then was it introduced? Who was to be would never have dreamed of dictating to the Captain; but we would have gladly fallen upon our knees before him and begred him as humble suplicants not to meddle with our existing temperance legislation. But we were even denied that "poor boon." But we are much obliged to the Senate for failing to reach the bill, even if their failure was at the expense of Captain Carter's sorrow. He can do the weeping but we will do the rejoicing.

"general" only increases the intensity of our opposition to it.

Again, he says "he thought it was better to modify the existing law and get it into such shape that it could be strictly enforced than to tolerate a law that could not be enforced." Where did he propose to "modify the existing law" so far as Asheville is concerned? It was in our own case a destruction of the law if the bill had passed, every bar room in Buncombe would have been thrown wide open on all days of public political speaking.

Again, "he was satisfied, as far as towns are concerned, it had done no good." This is a poor compliment to the character of bar keepers who are supposed to be law-abiding citizens. But leaving that out of the question, the law as it now stands does do good, and the statement of Captain Carter to the concernet of Captain Carter to the concernet is at variance with the opinion of the law stards does do good, and the statement of Captain Carter to the concernet.
