

THE DAILY CITIZEN.

The Citizen is the most extensively circulated and widely read newspaper in Western North Carolina.

It is devoted to the interests of public men and measures in the interest of public integrity, honest government, and progressive industry, and it is devoted to personal advancement in the public service.

The Citizen publishes the dispatches of the Associated Press, which now covers the whole world in its scope. It has other facilities of independent journalism for gathering news from all quarters, with every thing carefully edited to occupy the smallest space.

Advertisers secure for their notices a prominent position of high visibility and in every part of the city to subscribers, and the paper is bound to call attention to their notices in every way possible.

Advertisements—Reasonable, and made known on application at this office. All transient advertisements must be paid in advance.

SUNDAY, APRIL 21, 1889.

A CARD.

In justice to those gentlemen, who are interested with me, as stockholders of this paper, I state that I wrote the editorial in yesterday's issue, under the caption, "The Nominees," and that I alone am responsible for it.

T. W. PATTON.

EASTER SUNDAY THOUGHTS.

To the journals especially devoted to the expression of the religious sentiments, wishes and labors of a Christian people, is delegated the full elaboration of the ideas involved in the above suggested thoughts. But the secular press, as the representative of the general thought and feeling, presumably generally and essentially Christian, is not discharged from the duty of recalling the solemn work upon which the structure of Christianity is erected, or preclude from participation in the sacred and pleasurable emotions those events awake.

Therefore, THE CITIZEN, striving as it does to direct the thoughts of its readers to matters of high interest, takes its rightful liberty to say a few words on one of these rare occasions, which occurs on Easter Sunday.

No thoughtful person can fail to be impressed with the amount of careful consideration which men on all sides are giving, to things more or less religious in their nature. The most popular magazines are those which devote a portion of their pages to discussions by distinguished writers—such, for instance, as Mr. Ingersoll and Mr. Gladstone, each using all of his wonderful ability, and learning to attack and uphold the Christian faith. The novel which is most extensively read to-day, is one treating entirely of what a few years ago would have been considered by the multitude as a mere abstract doctrine. Scarcely a day passes that we do not overhear, perhaps on a street corner, a discussion between two friends as to whether Robert Elmer was right in his earlier or later belief.

A subject then which is interesting the world to so great an extent, it seems to us, even we, who devote almost all our time to temporal concerns, may venture to discuss briefly.

No one can fail to acknowledge the wonderful effect of the religion of Jesus Christ the despised Nazarene, "the man of sorrow and acquainted with grief." From a beginning apparently insignificant, it has continued to grow through nineteen centuries, until it controls the great nations of the world. How is this acknowledged fact to be accounted for? We reply because its advocates place the evidence of its truth on the establishment of an historical fact, to-wit: "The Resurrection." They claim that if we have such absolute proof of this as will satisfy any fair mind, if this fact can be disproved, then Christians acknowledge they have no ground left to ask men to believe any of their doctrines. This proof has been examined time and time again, and to us it seems absolutely unassailable. The men who first testified to the fact proved their sincerity by suffering death rather than deny what they had seen. Their testimony could not have been corrupted, because all worldly inducements were made to produce proof on the other side.

The effect of this plain straight forward statement, "If the resurrection is a fact, Christianity is true, otherwise it is not," has been what we see it to-day. When a brilliant French thinker came to Talleyrand telling him that he had discovered a new religion, but complaining that men would pay no attention to it, Talleyrand shrewdly observed, "go and get crucified and rise again the third day."

No new religion will prevail with men until it is willing to submit to the same line of proof as the old one has done, and is still ready to do.

But men still say as of old, "How are the dead raised up?" Can it be any more difficult to answer this than to explain how the bright, beautiful flowers are covering with glory our hillsides where, a short time since, all was bare and gloom. The most diligent search could scarcely have discovered the dead, decayed, bulb or seed, but the flower has sprung from it nevertheless. Which of us on yesterday could have found the thoroughly decomposed body of the crysanthum, which we remember as the ugly grub worm, but we all acknowledge that this beautiful, bright butterfly of to-day has sprung from it. If these things, which occur each year, under our very eyes, are possible, why shall we contend that the greater resurrection is impossible.

We hold then that no new religion is needed, and none will certainly be accepted with any less degree of evidence than the Christian invites for itself, but we by no means say that we need no new religion; on the contrary, all Christians acknowledge this need in their own case, and in proportion to their sincerity, they seek to acquire it, and we believe they are succeeding more and more, year by year, as they are striving earnestly, most earnestly, for the principal of universal love, that Heaven born charity, which is the very "Bond of Peace and of all Virtue."

THE SHIPPING FEVER.

The statement of Capt. Ben Newland to the THE CITIZEN some days ago that many white people were moving out to Washington Territory has attracted considerable attention. The Raleigh News-Observer applies it as the "shifting sand" fever. That it describes it, for there is no reason in the world but pure restlessness to induce our people to leave a section into which others are even more rapidly entering, attracted by climate and resources. The Greenville News some days since called attention to this subject, noting the fact that by far the greatest number of Oklahoma boomers were coming from the northwest, a section which is itself the destination yearly of thousands of immigrants. Many northwestern farmers are looking southward for new homes in a climate where they will be free from the terrible blizzards, crop disasters and other drawbacks in that section, and it is from thence that almost every portion of the Southern country is receiving most of its substantial immigrants. In view of these facts the suggestion that migrations from the South to the Northwest are more in the nature of a fever than a chronic malady is timely. Indeed, the American people as a whole are inclined to be migratory within the vast limits of their own country.

THEIR TWO VIEWS.

The Baltimore Sun and other leading advocates of civil service Reform are beginning to show distress over President Harrison's attitude toward their doctrine. The Sun says:

The Sun has accordingly held that the 15,000 persons subject to the law who were in office when the law took effect should have their fitness tested by the fitness of new candidates for appointment. This would be secured both the explicit object of the law, which is to have the service composed only of persons of proved fitness, and the just result of having the service represented in fair proportions of the different shades of political opinion in the country. This view of the matter was not, however, Mr. Cleveland's view, and at the close of his term the number of republicans in federal offices at Washington was vastly greater than the number of democrats. The latter had entered the service through examinations open to republicans and democrats alike. Their fitness was approved by the only test known to the law. Their moral and legal claim to retention in office on a change of administration was therefore much stronger than that of the 15,000 unexamined persons whom Mr. Cleveland retained. Yet it is this democratic minority of the subordinate officers who are now being dismissed in increasing numbers. Mr. Harrison's promise was not only to maintain the observance of the civil service law, but to extend it. It is to be hoped that the promise will not be forgotten.

THE BRISTOL ROAD.

We have a postal card from Dr. A. G. Gole to Dr. W. W. Wing, stating that our Tennessee friends are most anxious to take decisive steps towards securing railroad connection between Asheville and Bristol. We can assure them that many persons here are also deeply interested. Col. Thad Coleman was in town yesterday, and from a conversation with him, we are led to hope that a preliminary survey will very soon be commenced, and speedily completed.

Col. Coleman confirms our opinion as to the practicability of this route by which Bristol can be reached at a distance of eighty-three miles, instead of one hundred and forty seven, as now traveled, and at the same time developing a section comparatively unknown, and of wonderful fertility and great mineral resources.

As soon as these facts can be established by a survey, we have no doubt the money can be procured to build the railway.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Col. L. Q. Washington's contribution to the Washington Post on the subject of the Washington family has developed such a multitude that the committee on the New York ball is in despair as to what is to be done about them all. They are descendants of Bushrod Washington, who inherited Mt. Vernon from the Father of his Country. But the greatest extension of the stock seems to have come immediately from Col. Jno. A. Washington, of Gen. R. E. Lee's staff during the late war. It was he who sold Mt. Vernon to the present Ladies' Mt. Vernon Association.

Chattanooga Times: After all the internal howling by Republican politicians and press over the government suits against the Bell telephone jobbers and robbers, Gen. Harrison's administration has determined to press the cases with vigor, and has retained solicitor-general Jenks and Mr. Thurman as counsel; and this may be put down as another series of lies and slanders disposed of. The Republicans did not dare dismiss the suits.

Mrs. Martha T. Hitchcock, of Sun Francisco, said to be a millionaire, is a daughter of Col. Hunter, who, fifty years ago, settled near Murphree in Cherokee county, and named his place "Old Huntington." Mrs. Hitchcock, it is said, will build a memorial church and college on the old place. She owns 5,000 acres in Cherokee.

The Raleigh correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch says that Thos. Broadfoot, a negro who headed a riotous demonstration at Fayetteville last year, has been appointed a route agent. The appointment causes a great deal of very plain talk in all eastern and southern parts of the State. North Carolina also rejoices in two negro postmistresses.

The "Rebel Girl" "Guarantees" "Reliance" in an "Havana Puff" and the "Daisy Queen" of our "American Drug-Store" can be found by lovers of the weed at F. L. Jacobs' drug store, where there is also a complete line of drug "druggists' sundries. The famous ex-savior Water direct from Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Vichy, Deep Rock, Seltzer, Tote Spring and Soda Water always on draught.

Even the most vigorous and hearty people have at times a feeling of weariness and lassitude. To dispel this feeling take Dr. J. B. McLean's Sarsaparilla; it will impart vigor and vitality.
