FIGHT WITH A MAD DOG.

George E. Morse of this town, an agent for the society for prevention of cruelty to animals, and a constable of this town, had an exciting adventure with a mad dog. It appears that Joseph A. Laforme, a wealthy citizen of this town, was the owner of a dog of the Skye terrier breed. For a few days it was noticeable that the canine was certaing cross and snappish, and his to the days of the Christian martyrs; I am recalling all their sufferings at the stake."

Symptoms of Catarrh.

A protuse and many times excessively offensive discharge, with "stopping up" of the nose at times, impairment of the sense of smell and taste, watering or weak eyes, impaired hearing, irregular appetite, occasional nausea, pressure and pain over the eyes, and at times in the back of the head, occasional chilly sensations, cold feet, and a feeling of lassitude and dehility, are symptoms which are common to catarrh, yet all of them are not present in every case. Dr. Sage's Catarrh, Pensale, curs and and incertaining a wound over one and one are not present in every case. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures catarrh in its worst forms and stages. It is pleasant to use, and contains no poisonous or caustic drugs. Of druggists, for 50 cents.

Husband—"M'dear, it's (his) only fright. I sthopped in at zee michrowas that the dog must be killed, so was that the dog must be killed, so efficer Morse took his revolver, and, opening the stable door slightly, placed the muzzle of the revolver inside. Quickly the dog sprang at it, side. Quickly the dog sprang at it, took hold of it in his mouth, and began to "chew it." The officer at this opportunity discharged the weapon, but, singularly, the bullet took no effect, probably for the reason that the muzzle of the revolver was pointing out of the dog's jaws. The disc the muzzle of the revolver was pointing out of the dog's jaws. The discharge of the revolver appeared to have frightened the dog, and Officer Morse then requested that he be given a pair of rubber boots and buckskin gloves, when he would go into the stable and capture the dog at all hazards. Upon consultations it was agreed that a shot gun had best be brought into requisition, and Mr. brought into requisition, and Mr. George Lyuch, a relative of Mr. Laforme, appeared upon the scene with a breech loader. Officer Morse then opened the door of the stable again. nd, as the dog made a spring at him, Mr. Lynch, who stood beside the officer, and who is an expert wing shot, poured the contents of the right hand barrel of his gun into the body of the canine, killing him instantly. Dedham (Mass.) Cor. Boston Herald.

Two advertisements appeared in Mercurius Publicus directly after the Restoration. The first was no doubt drawn up by the John Ellis who is mentioned in it. The second must have been written by the king him-self: "A Smooth Black Dog, less than a Greyhound, with white under his breast, belonging to the King's Ma jesty, was taken from Whitehal the eighteenth day of this instant June, or thereabout. If any one can give no-tice to John Ellis, one of his Majesties Servants, or to his Majesties Back-stayrs, shall be well rewarded for their labour."—June 21–28, 1660. "We must call upon you again for a Black Dog, between a Greyhound and a Spaniel, no white about him, onely Spaner, no write about him, onely a streak on his Brest, and his Tayl a little bobbed. It is His Majesties own Dog, and doubtless was stoln, for the Dog was not born nor bred in England and would never forsake His Master. Whoseever findes him may acquaint any at Whitehal, for the Dog was better known at Court than those who stole him. Will they never leave stole him. Will they never leave robbing His Majesty? Must he not keep a Dog? This Dog's place (though better than some imagine) is the only place which nobody offers to beg."—June 28-July 5, 1660. Possibly this was the "dog that the king loved," which came ashore with Pepys at Dover ("Diary," May 25, 1660). Or it may have been the dog to which Rochester refers in one of his satires against Charles II: His very dog at Connal board Sits grave and wise as any Lord. -Notes and Queries.

An Army of Menials. A great many people have been surprised, when attending the Van-derbilt entertainments during the past year or more, to notice the marvelous number of servants in livery. After the English fashion, this household turally arises is, what in the world does the family do with this army of menials when they have no social affair on hand and are not entertaining? As a simple matter of fact it may be explained that these servants are not all regular Vanderbilt attaches. They are only taken on when the occasion requires their services. In the lan-guage of the theatre, they are the "extra ballet." The liveries in which they appear are supplied them by the butler of the house from an immense trunkful of such garments which have been imported and are constantly kept on hand. be it is a comparatively easy thing to fit them out.—Town Topics. A Poor Country for Saw Bones There is only one physician to every 6,500 of the population in Russia, and yet the destitution among members of the profession is said to be alarming. Of late there have been numbers of suicides of medical men who were without the bare necessities of life. This state of things is attributed to the ignorance of the people, who con-sult soothsayers and magicians in preference to educated medical men. Men who have served in the ambulance corps or as hospital attendants, and thus gained a smattering of medi-cal knowledge, are allowed to prac-tice, which is another drawback to the profession.—Pittsburg Dispatch.
