CLOUD BURST.

The New York Herald undertakes to explain the above phenomena, so frequent and destructive in various parts of the United States during the present season. As they are not unknown in the mountains of Western North Carolina, the subject possesses some interest to us.
 The Herald says "the phenomena of a cloud burst can occur only in a tornado or whirlwind." This means an accompaniment of violent wind; and as the cyclone or whirlwind, the same in character though not in degree, implies an on-ward, progressive forward movement, with a path of destruction more or less wide and lengthened, so if the Herald is correct, we must expect to find in the cloud bursts of our mountains the characteristic extent and desolation. We look for these in vain; for the cloud burst discharges itself upon the fatal spot with vertical fall, and stationary fury, accompanied probably with a rotary motion, but not advancing an inch beyond the point of original outpour. There seems to be no preliminary gathering of hostile clouds for the trial of battle, no rush of winds when the deadly shock of collision is struck, no retreat of flying squadrons, no pursuit of victorious battalions, no onswep of fury, no prostration of forests, no overthrow of dwellings. As the cloud burst is upon the recesses of the mountains, it is unheard and unnoticed except by the path of ruin that marks the rush of the overcharged mountain torrents down which they tear their way to the valleys below. Wind plays no part in these phenomena. They usually succeed in the latter part of the day from a sky overladen with dense, slow moving clouds evidently overburdened with moisture. From some cases unexplained, this enormous weight finds relief at special points, on the lofty sides of the mountains, near the summit or on the summit itself. We have the recollection of one which burst on the top of the Cowee mountain, the dividing ridge between the counties of Jackson and Macon, the great mass of water evenly divided and rushing down the opposite sides with volume enough to tear up and nearly destroy the public highway on either side, which, following the narrow valley traversed by the streams that sought a pathway to the rivers below, formed the natural channel for the new flood. But in this cloud burst there was no advance beyond the point of pluge, no wind, no destruction of timber, nothing but the havoc of the swollen torrents.
 And this is the feature of all our mountain cloudbursts. There are few seasons that pass without the display of the phenomenon, but they are generally in such remote seclusion, and the damage, if any, so localized, as generally to escape notice, and only gain attention when the traveller comes unexpectedly upon some spot torn up by the enormous down-pour from the cloud, or some road made almost impassable by the force of the water. We have encountered a number of such spots, the most remarkable of which is on the west face of the highest peak of the Fish-hawk Mountain in Macon county, at the upper end of the Tessentee valley, which opens upon the upper valley of the Little Tennessee river. Looking up that valley, a broad gash or chasm presents itself, plainly visible at the distance of three or four miles like a wide red streak in the side of the mountain. This was the effect of a waterspout or cloudburst which discharged itself on the 15th of June 1876. At a point within two or three hundred feet of the crest of the ridge at an elevation of nearly 4,000 feet, on the day mentioned, fell an enormous volume of water from the clouds, a column of such thickness as to have cut an excavation of about seventy-five feet in diameter, the upper edge of which was a perfect semi-circle, and the depth of the excavation at the point of discharge about fifteen feet deep, or to the solid rock of the mountain. Yet with this there was no wind, no cyclone, no tornado. The twigs and dead leaves on the upper edge of the excavation remained hanging over undisturbed, and below and around there was nothing to indicate anything unusual, until the mighty rush of the waters surcharged with rocks and logs into the valley warned the inhabitants of the approaching danger of flood.
 That 15th day of June 1876 seemed to have been a remarkable one. The atmospheric conditions seemed to have been the same throughout the whole mountain area, particularly on its southern border. We have authentic information of over two hundred waterspouts, all windless, that fell on that day, on both the northern and southern faces of the Blue Ridge, those on the latter finding their life in the lead waters of the rivers that flow into and through Georgia, overflowing them, and causing immense damage to the railroads, especially to the Charlotte and Atlanta Air Line, washing away bridges and destroying many high embankments, cutting off and imprisoning trains, and causing complete interruption of transportation for several days.
 The same natural laws the Herald quotes as governing the immense accumulation of water in the clouds, and their precipitation, must be the same for the cyclone and the waterspout or cloudburst. But it has not yet been explained, the difference between the onward, destructive movement of the one, and the stationary, calm, though powerful action of the other.

The pension business under the management of Corporal Tanner is such reckless abuse of position and of party power as to make even the recipients of government bounty stand aghast. There is no limit to his profusion and to his favoritism; and in his hands all the resources of the government will be taxed and exhausted to satisfy his construction of his duty and powers. The greed of the applicants knows no stint or decency, and is confined to no rank or station. An infamous abuse of claim was recently made by Senator Mauderson, who, with his $5,000 a year salary, put up the mouth of a poor soldier, exacted from Tanner an increase of his pension allowance and obtained besides $4,000 allowance, for arrearages based upon the advance in his monthly or annual allowance. This is so disgraceful that it will arouse the worthy soldier to indignation and compel Congress to do something to check the extravagant drafts on the treasury.

The New York Sun seems to have taken a very accurate measurement of Mr.
 Harrison's Postmaster General—a very small man indeed. One of his recent small transactions was in exacting from the W. U. Telegraph Company—a company, not in the highest favor with those having dealings with it, but at least entitled to justice and fair dealing—a contract for the transmission of government messages at the rate of one mill, a tenth of a cent, a word. Commenting upon this, and upon the man and his office, the Sun says:
 "He fills it—the office—just as a small dried pea might fill one of his own handdles. He administers its duties with the large-hearted, generous, and comprehensive intellectuality that distinguished him when he used to parade the Planned Transcript, circumnavigate the Underclothing Aisle, and chausse across the All-Wool Nave to dock the wages of a two dollar clerk. As he snipped a tape so he would run the government; and when it becomes a question of marking him in another man's goods John Wanmaker owns up to no peer in that whole country. To every intelligent mind this may explain his sum and quotient, but it also shows no citizen from the penalty of having to blush for him.

The climate of some of the northwestern States is almost a realization of one of the striking ideas of eternal torment, the doomed, alternately on a cuke of ice and then turned to roast on a red hot grid iron, the extremes of contrasts in physical suffering. Up in Dakota or Minnesota it is at one season a plunge down below the measure of the mercury; then, in the summer, it goes up higher than the tallest man can see to read the marking; in the winter blizzards that blow such a blast as to blow the very grass out of the earth, and with such a chill as to freeze up the very life blood; in the summer, the cyclone that pulls out of the ground the very cellars the people have dug to hide themselves in and blowing with such a heated breath that makes the simoon a cooling zephyr in comparison. Just now those people are enjoying their alternative heated spell.

Gov. Lowry in his just indignation at the violation of State sovereignty by the forbidden fight of the infamous pugilists, by the defiance of law on Mississippi territory, and by the violation of State complicity by the Governor of Tennessee by the discharge of the arrested Sullivan, proposes to lay hands on some of the offenders he can reach at home. A very active particeps criminis in the transaction was the Queen and Crescent railroad, through its officials. The Governor thinks that a corporation which owes its being to the laws of Mississippi, and which looks, and properly, to that State for protection, is not the proper party to violate those laws and bring them into open contempt as that company notoriously did. He proposes to have its charter vacated, and also to have its officers arrested for aiding and abetting in the Kilrain-Sullivan fight, and the Governor seems to be terribly in earnest.

We hear with pleasure of the growth of our towns, of our Western towns especially, for whom for a long time there seemed no hope, dull and stationary, no new buildings going up, old ones falling to decay, everything listless, nervous hopeless. The railroads are changing all this; wherever they go new life is infused, and onward bounding progress is put in motion. See what the Murphy Advance says about its town:
 "The building that has been done is so extensive that when a resident of three or four years since comes back to visit us, his look is one of surprise and amazement as he looks around him and beholds the marvelous change that has taken place. Handsome brick business houses have been erected and a vast number of beautiful dwellings have been built and more at present being built.

 line, Ongaline and Diamond nail powder manicure articles may always be found, together with pocket emery board, orange wood sticks, nail scissors, files and other such requisites. Also a complete line of drugs and toilet articles, in ad-

"GOODS GIVEN AWAY."
 CHARLES BROADWAY HOUSE,
 NEW YORK CITY.
 July 9, 1889.

Geo. T. Jones, Esq., Asheville, N. C.:
 Dear Sir—Your esteemed favor of the 6th received and fully noted. Your ideas are correct; put a knife into your dry goods and close them out. We would suggest that you enlarge your Notion, Shoe, Hat and Furnishing departments. We have the facilities for supplying you with complete lines of Notions, Laces, Edgings, Ribbons, and Trimming Goods generally at such low figures and so much below their real values that you can defy any and all competition that may arise.
 Awaiting your further appreciated commands, and trusting that you will roll the orders in, with best wishes, respectfully,
C. B. ROUSS.

The letter as printed above explains itself and is authoritative. "Put the knife into your Dress Goods and close them out." In accordance with orders we are going to close them out at cost, below cost, in fact at your own prices so that they are turned into money. We enumerate some of the bargains we shall be prepared to offer on Monday, July 15, which will be as soon as we can get the goods marked down. We ask you to read the prices: Lawn Dresses (not cheese cloth Lawn) GIVEN AWAY; Calico 3, 4, 5 and 6c. per yard, the very best Indigo Blue at 6c., usually sells at 8 and 9c., Danish Cloth at 10c., Challies at 5 1/2 and 6c., sold at 7 1/2 and 9c., Gingham 5 1/2 to 10c., sold for 7 1/2 to 12 1/2c., Satines (a new lot just opened) at 7 1/2, 9 and 10c. We were going to sell them at 8 1/2, 10 and 12 1/2c. and they were splendid value at that. Everything in our stock in Dress Goods, except White Goods, is going to be sold, and at once, preparatory to putting in the largest stock of Notions, Trimmings, Shoes, Hats, Clothing, Ladies and Men's Underwear, Furnishings and Housekeeping things generally that has ever been shown in Asheville.
 We have a few pieces of very fine Henriettas and now is the time to buy all the Dress Goods that you will need for the next 12 months.

During our closing out sale of Dress Goods, as long as it lasts, we will give with every sale of a Dress amounting to One Dollar or over, 10 yards of our 5c. Lawn. We have about 3,000 yards to be thus given away. It can't last, so come soon if you would secure a Dress for nothing.
 Our stock of all other lines of goods (already a big one) is to be largely increased, and we calculate as heretofore to lead in low prices on whatever we handle. It is hardly necessary for the "Racket" to say anything by way of explanation for this step. It involves a business change only. The "Bank of Asheville" can tell you whether necessity calls for it or not.
 Come and get a Lawn Dress for nothing.
 Respectfully,
GEO. T. JONES & CO.
