Nasal Catarrh
Is a dangerous disease. From its tendency to extend to the throat, bronchial tubes, and finally to invade the lungs in consumptive diseases, it should be promptly cured, that these grave dangers may be averted. So confident are the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy of their ability to cure successfully with this very prepared disease, that they have for years offered, in good faith, $500 reward for a case of catarrh, no matter how bad or of how many years standing, which they cannot cure. Remedy only 50 cents, by druggists.

"So far as I'm concerned, I'd marry a small woman rather than a large one any day." "But why?" "Because of two evils one naturally chooses the least."

Give the Children a Chance.
There is something radically wrong with the health of a child when it seems listless, has poor or no appetite, eyes sunken and with dark skin beneath. In most cases, however, these symptoms are the result of some simple remedy, such as Hart's Worm Cream, to expel the worms, and the child will soon be in perfect health again. Parents, try it and let your little ones have a fair chance for life.

A Scrap of Paper Saves Her Life.
It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could live only a short time; she weighed less than seventy pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle; it helped her, she bought a large bottle and grew better fast, continued its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds. For fuller particulars send stamp to W. H. Cole, druggist, Port Smith. Trial bottles of this wonderful Discovery Free at F. L. Jacobs' drugstore.

A CROWN OF MOTHER'S TEARS.

One evening when the moon had set, All nature still and hushed, Two little stars came peeping out, Looked down on the earth and blushed. Two little white-robed angels Looked down from the stars of gold, And saw the saddest, sweetest sight They ever did behold. It was a mother kneeling By the side of her dying child, While those glowing lips now wore A peaceful, heavenly smile. The fair young brow was clamy With sweat and quick his breath, And the sweet blue eyes were sparkling— So soon to be closed in death. The taper stood with sickle drawn To pluck the tender flower, While the mother's heart for her dying yearned, Oh, 'twas a sad, sad hour. The cherubs looked in pity From their home of joy and mirth; Then laying down both harp and crown They fluttered down to earth. They nobly entered the darkened room And hovered 'round the bed, And caught the mother's tears as they fell On her darling's golden head. They were brighter far than the stars' gold Or the treasured diamonds of a queen, And they sparkled like the bright sunbeams 'Mid the fairest summer days. One little cherub took them all And hurried back to heaven, And placed them on his shimmering curls— To the dying child to be given. The other angel caught the babe In tender arms of love, And bore him over the dark, wild river To that glorious home above. When they reached the "beautiful city of gold," With no more doubts or fears, They placed the crown on his shimmering curls— The crown of mother's tears. —Little Lelia Wilson in Atlanta Constitution.

A Border Drama Played Backward.
Buffalo Bill is as handsome and statuesque as ever, and since his great financial success and experience abroad has taken on a quiet dignity which becomes him greatly. His favorite reminiscence is touching the days when he first became an actor, with Texas Jack in Ned Buntline's play.

Knowing how proud Buntline was of his drama, Bill arranged with the stage manager one night to reverse the order of the acts, and proceeded to play the fourth act first, the third act second, the second act third and the first act last. Buntline had business in the front of the house looking after the admissions, so he didn't come on till the second act, when he noted a small part, was promptly killed off and allowed to go out to the front again and count up. He came back to the stage to dress on the night the change was made, and was horrified to find them playing the fourth act. He was dazed for a minute, but he knew he was safe and sober, and presently demanded an explanation.

"We've shifted," said Bill. "It got monotonous playing it the other way all the time."

"But you'll ruin everything," declared Buntline, in a frenzy. "Nonsense," said Bill, "they'll never know the difference."

Mail of the public never did. —Chicago Mail.

Eliminating Internal Organs.
The well known experiment for showing total reflection of light in a jet of water or in a glass rod has been made use of here by Dr. Roth and Professor Reuss in devising a new method of illuminating from outside some cavities of the body, such as the larynx and nose. The instrument used for this purpose is a well polished (not blackened) glass rod, to one end of which a small electric incandescent glow lamp, like those used for electric leucoplasts, is attached. The light of the lamp is reflected equally through the whole glass rod to its other end, which is placed on the skin of the throat in the case of a laryngoscopic examination being required. Then the interior of the larynx becomes illuminated sufficiently for laryngoscopy. If this luminous glass rod is applied to the sclerotic, the interior of the eyeball can be examined in the same way as by using an ophthalmoscope, the structure of the posterior parts of the vitreous body being very well seen and studied. As the glass rod remains cold, it can be employed in operative surgery to light the natural and artificial cavities. The Lancet.

Insects in the Ears.
It is popularly supposed that for an insect of any kind to find its way into the ear means death if not instantly removed, and physicians are annoyed at all hours by applicants who beg them to come quickly. "A bug has gotten in somebody's ear." Unless it is an insect with very keen nippers there is no possible danger, although often unpleasantness, if the bug has capacity to bite sharply. Of course there is fear of its working its way to the brain, but as a rule this belief causes a great deal of nervousness, which has a bad effect on the subject. Of course the ear should be examined as soon as possible, and the insect removed, but the popular idea that death will result is quite wrong. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Palpitation of the Heart.
A French physician announces that distressing or excessive palpitation of the heart can always be arrested by bending double, the head down and the hands hanging so as to produce a temporary constriction of the upper portion of the body. In nearly every instance of nervous or atonic palpitation, the heart immediately resumes its natural function. If the movements of respiration are arrested during this action, the effect is still more rapid. —Herald of Health.
