LOG COLLEGE CELEBRATION.

Our telegrams yesterday morning gave an account of President Harrison's attendance upon a noted local celebration which took place on Thursday in the vicinity of Philadelphia, but without being at all enlightened as to the peculiar significance of the occasion. We give them now some information which demonstrates the character and cause of the commemoration, which was the founding of Log College, in the vicinity of Philadelphia, the first Presbyterian theological school in America. To characteristic devotion to the cause of education, the Presbyterians united a zealous purpose for the culture and maintenance of their creed. They were never in any sense propagandists. Their system was intellectual, too insynthetic in some of its tenets and features, too forbidding to be advanced through the excitement of the emotions, or even appeal to the affections. But it was wonderfully strong in its appeal to the intellectual powers, and won respect and reverence by its exalted purity. In its earlier days, when confronting the licentiousness and heresies of other stronger rival creeds, it might almost have been claimed by the Presbyterians that their church was the possessor of the ark of truth. Certainly in that church, with its inflexible tenacity to its tenets, its heroic adherence to its rigid doctrines, there seemed to be a purer faith and a more consistent walk than elsewhere. A more consistent walk than elsewhere. A more consistent walk than elsewhere. A more consistent walk than elsewhere.

CHARLOTTE.

The Charlotte Chronicle of the 5th presents a very suggestive incident which may be taken to largely foreshadow the future of that city. It is a description of all the incidents to the great enterprise of the Charlotte Oil and Fertilizer company. The lesson is that the Southern people are slowly, but surely, learning to utilize either what they have thrown to waste, or suffer others to work up for them, and sell back in its converted state. How many million dollars for instance have gone out of the State to purchase the fertilizers by which the cotton that comes to the Charlotte market, the Mecklenburg planters can answer with many a groan and sigh and how many thousands of tons of cotton seed have been pitched as refuse out of the gin houses to rot and waste, or find a grudging use as a ball recognized manure. These same farmers may now recall with something like shame at their own stupidity when they see what science, ingenuity and sagacity have done for them in converting these despised seed into an oil that enters into valuable economical uses, into a rich ingredient for fertilizers or into nutritious food for stock. The waste and the ignorance of one generation, is the subject of the industry and source of wealth to the succeeding one.

The factory and its concomitants are on so large a scale as to merit notice as grand Charlotte and North Carolina enterprises. The oil mill embraces a steel warehouse 300x80, an oil mill proper, brick, three stories high, 60x80, engine and boiler house, and meal warehouse 150x80. The fertilizer factory has sulphur furnace and boiler house, acid chamber 40x250, grinding mill for phosphate rock, engine and boiler house, fertilizer warehouse 120x160. To this is added a gimery of brick, three stories high, with capacity to clean 100 bales of cotton a day, the lint cotton being baled on the premises by two steam compresses. The company has also a brick making plant with capacity of 30,000 bricks a day. Last but not least, will be constructed cattle sheds, where 2,000 cattle will be fed and fattened on cotton seed hulls and meal.

This is certainly a great enterprise. It is a stride towards that independence at which the South should aim in its industrial life, and an awakening up to its resources to which it has been so blinded. Charlotte, conspicuous as a railroad centre, is now roused to avail itself of all its great advantages. It cannot claim to invite to its charms as a pleasure resort, but it has manifold claims as a business and manufacturing centre. We are proud to recognize in Charlotte the sagacity to recognize its advantages and the enterprise to apply them. Her history is the history of civil liberty and patriotism in North Carolina. It is determined to be still further illuminated by the material growth of that civil liberty well directed and well applied.

The disposition of Geronimo, the captured Apache chief, and his companions, disturbs the equanimity of some of the humanitarians always on the hunt for unruined nests. They think that confinement in the bounds of barracks or garrison walls is a fate too hard for a warrior accustomed to the boundless range of plain or mountain, and propose to give another name and character to his captivity by turning him loose somewhere in the mountains of North Carolina. Evidently those soft hearted creatures think those mountain areas bare and desolate and uninhabited as the Sierra Madre; that the preceding generations of Cherokees have followed Apache fashions and killed and scalped and burned, until there is neither man, woman nor child, nor horse nor cattle to awake the blood thirsty instincts or cupidity of the incarnate fiends of the West. Perhaps also, in case their unmerciful passions have been soothed, they think these mountains abound in bear and elk and deer and buffalo and that it is Christian retribution to place the "noble red man" in the happy terrestrial hunting grounds of North Carolina. Now we have to say that we do not want Geronimo and his followers. The land proposed for his exile is already occupied by peaceful and happy whites. We are not afraid of these Indians. At the same time, if they arouse to mischief, it is not hard to recall their ferocity, and the fearful memories of their murders, not in battle, but in their terrible sweeping forays, pouncing down on the innocent and unsuspecting, sparing neither age nor sex; nor can we forget the trouble and the blood it cost to subdue and capture them. Let the government hold them where they are, or even in a yet stronger place. Sympathy is wrongly awakened in favor of the blood stained, scaly headed enemies of all mankind. Keep them where they are, safe, blind, safe blind.

The success of the effort to establish a sea coast resort near Wilmington is illustrated by the mutually successful hotels established near the waters of Wrightsville Sound, and the Sea Coast railroad leading thence. The latter had carried in the months of July and August 80,000 passengers, according to the statement of the Star, and with those carried previously, and to be carried in this month, the whole number for the season will pass 100,000. This, for a city of about 12,000 white inhabitants, is a heavy straggle for an enterprise deemed so hazardous as to have been postponed to the present period. The gratifying feature is that North Carolina is so well served to use her fine facilities for pleasure and health; and whether on the coast or on the mountains presents resort is not surpassed in some degree not equalled by any in the country.

Steve Jacobs, the Robeson county outlaw, who recently escaped from jail accompanied by an act of deadly violence, and unslayed for that and other crimes, has been seen. He is armed with a sixteen shot rifle, but shows no disposition as yet to imitate his kinsman Steve Lowry, the hero of Robeson county twenty years ago. They are of the same blood, Croatan, not mulatto, descendants, it is believed on good grounds, of the intermingled lost colony of Capt. John White, established on Roanoke Island between 1585 and 1590, and the Croatan Indians on the mainland. But probably Jacobs, before his career ends, will make himself as noted as Lowry.

Great Ships.

A big three masted Norwegian ship, the Commodore Sverl Foyne, cleared for Fogn, cleared for Antwerp with a cargo of oil. She has made the run from New York to the Lizard in 13 days and clear to London in 30 days. She has made Antwerp from New York in 18 days, and New York from Montevideo in 26 days. She was built in Nova Scotia and sailed three trips under the English flag as the W. D. Lawrence. Besides speed she has a great size, her tonnage being nearly 4,200. Her rig is double topgallant royal and skysail to each mast. She is deep and broad. Her crew is mixed English and American.

Just before her there also cleared three other American ships, the last relics of the once famous merchant marine. They were the Carmer and Jaber Howes, bound round the Horn and up the Pacific, and the Platius, consigned to Shanghai. All three had loads of oil, and are Mystic built craft, showing all the indications of Yankee clippers. They carry crews of 18 to 24 men, a mongrel lot of Malays, Portuguese, Chinamen, negroes and a few Americans. The first two hope to make port 120 and the last named in 140 days.—Exchange.

Col. J. W. Bigsby, European agent of the Elyton Land Company, has returned to Birmingham, Alabama, and reports that a great deal of English capital will be invested about Birmingham shortly. The Chronicle of that city says: "The owners of many small industries in England, which are barely paying expenses, assured Colonel Bigsby they were going to sell out as soon as possible and try their fortunes in Birmingham. They will bring both capital and skilled labor."

Dr. Parker Prays cream Van-Ola, Rosaline, Ongeline and Diamond nail powder having now become the ladies' favorites, at F. L. Jacob's drug store, these popular manure articles may always be found, together with pocket emery board, or other wood sticks, nail scissors, files and other such requisites. Also a complete line of drugs and toilet articles, in addition to the Hebe Soda Fountain from which ice cold drinks are dispensed. Corner Main street and Patton avenue.

She tried morphine for suicide, But when it failed to fix her, She took a dose—from which she died—Of Brown-Sequard's elixir.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken, acceptable to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities, Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

THE RACKET COLUMN.

We are preparing to go to New York to select our Fall and Winter Goods and we want a lot of Money. Our offers of Bargains have panned out very well. We have sold lots of goods, but we had lots of them, and we have quite a lot yet which you can buy at your own price. We think we put away for the next season fewer goods than any merchant in Asheville. We don't want to put away any. We want to sell them, and we want to sell them badly. We are going to buy a big stock and we want the room to place them in, but more than that, we want the cash to buy them with. This has been the secret of our low prices. We represent a man who has an ocean of money. He buys thousands where other people buy dozens. He expects us to sell goods quick, at a small profit, and to send or carry him the money. So far we have not disappointed him. Our sale of Dress Goods at cost continues, and will until all are sold. We have six Ice Cream Freezers, two each of 2, 3 and 4 quart sizes. We shall buy no more this season. You can get either of these Freezers lower than before. You will want one next summer if not now. A few Hammocks and Croquet Sets are yet with us. We shall let them go very low. We need the room and want the money they represent to put into something for Fall and Winter use. A few dozen Fruit Jars (Mason's) on hand. They are going very fast. As soon as it is known that we are out prices will advance—mark the prediction. We shall have in store by the time you read this the largest stock of Ribbons, Velveteens, Plushes, and Velvets ever shown in Asheville. Fall Styles, New Goods, at 'Racket Prices.' Come and see them.

Respectfully,
