The Citizen is the most extensively circulated and widely read newspaper in Western North Carolina.

TRUSTS AND TRAFFIC.

A decision made by Judge Daniels of the supreme court in the matter of an appeal from a lower court deciding upon the illegality of trusts will commend itself to the honest sentiment of the country as well as to the principle of interest.

These trusts—many others besides the sugar trust—claimed and exercised legal existence until attacked by the legal authorities of the State of New York.

Plain words, clearly and strongly spoken. Now, it may well be asked what is the difference in its effects upon the people between a trust and a high tariff imposed in the effect of its exactions far beyond the needs of the national treasury and the legitimate needs of the people.

The people clearly see how the enhanced value of sugar comes in. The connection between cause and effect is too close to be misunderstood. It is not less direct between a tariff for protection and the increased value of most of the necessities of life than it is between the trusts and the increased costs of sugar.

COTTON IN NORTH CAROLINA.

For quite as long a period in North Carolina as in other Southern States has cotton been cultivated, either as a market crop or for domestic uses.

Produced from the laxative and nutritious juice of California figs, combined with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, acts gently on the kidneys, liver and bowels, effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds and headaches, and curing habitual constipation.

THE MORROW SHOE.

each, ranking North Carolina among the cotton States. The experience of the last three or four years proves it to be an up hill business. The conditions for profit are favorable. There is dependence absolutely upon artificial fertilizers to successfully compete with the richer lands, the warmer climate and the more extended seasons of the more favored Gulf and Mississippi States.

What will the farmers do? Abandoning cotton, can they compete with the West in corn or wheat or other grains? Their lands are good, but not as rich as those of the West.

We are pleased with the neat, incisive and effective way in which Judge Harlan, of the U. S. Supreme court, disposed of the fallacious pleas of the counsel of Cross and White. It was very ingenious on the part of that counsel to suggest that the United States had been cleared of its prey by the anticipatory action of a State court, to misuse the ideology of the supreme court by demonstrating that a State court had trespassed on its preserves and taken cognizance of an offense of which the U. S. court had exclusive jurisdiction, and to intimate to that court, that rather than it should part with its rights and lose its prestige, it were better to let the criminals go and reach the State courts a lesson of humility and subordination.

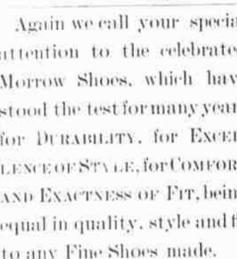

It is very rare in the South that the chivalrous sentiment of man towards woman, in whatever condition of life, is in abeyance. We seldom hear of those tragedies which so often mar with horror the life of the criminal and the aid of the Northern States in which woman is so often the helpless victim, and in which justice is so rarely meted out to such offenders as the Malley brothers, and dozens of similar offenders. Exceptions, however, do occur, for human nature is the same everywhere, though modified or influenced by local or sectional sentiment. Such an exception was found in that bloody tragedy recently enacted at Brownsburg, Va. It was a fight to the death between Dr. Walker and Henry Miller, the former accompanied to the magistrate's office by his wife who went with the vain hope of preventing hostilities; the former by his sons, who went with apparent readiness to engage in the affray. The two principals were killed, Mrs. Walker was also killed; and it is now developed by the evidence that James, one of the sons of Henry Miller, deliberately blew out her brains as she lay on the prostrate body of her dead husband. It is too horrible for belief. No wonder her friends and the community are excited to frenzy, and thirst for the blood of the unmanly murderer.

Dr. Parker Prays cream Van-Ola, Rosaline, Ongaline and Diamond nail powder having now become the ladies' favorites, at F. L. Jacob's drug store, these popular manieure articles may always be found, together with pocket emery board, orange wood sticks, nail scissors, files and other such requisites. Also a complete line of drugs and toilet articles, in addition to the Hebe Soda Fountain from which ice cold drinks are dispensed. Corner Main street and Patton avenue.

On Men's Shoes. Interview in St. Louis Globe-Democrat. I have only one hobby, and that is shoes, or rather a peculiar fashion I have of wearing them. I used to think that a man got the best service out of a shoe by putting on the best pair a shoemaker could make him and wearing them consistently until the leather gave way somewhere, but I now think that is the most extravagant way of dressing the feet. I am never without three or four pairs of shoes in good wearable condition. I never wear the same pair two days in succession and at least once a month I go over each pair with a brush dipped in vaseline. Thus, with three pairs of shoes, I give each pair one day of work and two days of rest, and the leather has time to regain its elasticity and stretch out the wrinkles the foot has made. These wrinkles become breaks in the leather when the shoe is continuously worn. The vaseline is better than any oil for fine leather. I used to wear out four pairs of $8 shoes a year, one at a time. The same number now lasts me two years.
