ATLANTA, Ga., January 4.—Clarke How-ell was to-day chosen by the stockholders of the Constitution Publishing Com-pany to succeed the late Henry W. Grady pany to succeed the late Henry W. Grady as managing editor. Howell was formerly night editor, and has for the past year been assistant to Grady as managing editor. As much of Grady's time has been devoted to public matters, Howell has been closely identified with the management of the paper. He is a graduate of the University of Georgia, and was twice a member of the legislature. He is 26 years of age, and served his journalistic apprenticeship on the New York Times and Philadelphia Press. Capt. Evan P. Howell and W. A. Hemphill are still at the helm as editor in chief and business manager respectively.

A Double Murder.

New York, January 4.—In the German quarter of the eastern district of Brook-lyn (Williamburgh) a double murder was discovered to-day. The neighbors reported to the police that no member of a family named Franklin had been seen since Wednesday. The police broke into their rooms and found Pranklin sitting on a bed with a revolver in his hand He threatened to shoot, and the officers backed out of the room. Franklin immediately shot himself dead. The officers then entered the room and found Franklin's wife and child dead and Frank-lin dying. The wife and child had been

MISCELLANEOUS. J. S. GRANT, Ph. G., Of Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, Apothecary, 24 South Main St.

The Old Year has drawn to a close, and with the beginning of the New Year we wish to thank the public for their patronage and recognition of our efforts to do our full duty. We are fully conscious that it is to them that we owe the inexpected success of the past year, in which our business has been more than doubled, and we can only regard it as a new evidence that our business maxims are such as to cause our customers to have confidence in us and attract those who are cautious in dealing with any Pharmacist until they have become fully assured of the nature and extent of his business principles. In our dealing with the public we realize that the most scrupulous cure and honesty are paramount in importance. If these are virtues in all ordinary business transactions, they become sucred duties in Pharmacy, and without them no one can be a true Pharnucist. The health, maybe the life, of those dealing with the Apothecary deends upon them. We consider it our nost sacred duty to shun adulterations and spoiled as well as inferior drugs. They constitute an evil from which Pharnacy suffers no less than the public. The vil is not a new one, inaugurated in late years; it has existed as long as there were men whose cupidity was stronger than their sense of justice, and it will loubtless continue as long as there may be men with conceptions of business so vague that they expect to purchase gold for the money value of dross. There are no other moral principles required for transacting a Pharmaceutical business han are necessary for any other business. Unwavering integrity that remains uninluenced by the visions of gold along the road of questionable or deceitful practices is the only foundation for success that is worthy the name; it is so in every pursuit, and more particularly in harmacy, waere as a matter of necessity it must be combined with constant vigilance in all directions is no to secure all possible saleguar is. These are the principles which we have adeavored to live up to, and to which we trust our increasing success is duc. We hope our former pations will show the same kindness toward us in the future that they have in the past, knowing that no action of ours will ever make them regret a continuance of their faors. Yours truly,

J. S. GRANT, Ph. G., Pharmacist, 24 S. Main St., Asheville, N. C.
