THE AMAZONIAN regiments of the king of Dahomey have evidently made a profound impression on the French troops sent against them. They are described as being fierce and desperate fighters, most of them vowed to celibacy by command of the king, and condemned to death if they break their vows. The king of Dahomey has 4,000 to 5,000 of these fierce women fighters. They got in their work in the recent difficulty with France to such purpose that the French agent requests that 4,000 additional troops be sent to his post on the slave coast, and that no further attempt be made to conquer Dahomey.

MAJOR MCKINLEY, at the head of the ways and means committee, does not seem to be as wise a man as he has the credit of having been; for he has succeeded in doing for his own party what he professes the democratic party never did—give it a substantial fright. The chairman, in his purpose to be faithful to the Chicago platform, has overhauled his schedule as not only to rebuke democrats but to alarm republicans. The most striking instance of the sagacity of democratic policy, proving its wisdom by its results, was the removal years ago of the duty on hides, and placing them on the free list. It is true this was done by republican legislation; but the beneficial results of such legislation were seized upon by the democrats as illustration of what would be the general effect of placing on the free list certain articles of raw material used in American manufactures. The result of liberating hides was at once to give a great impetus to the American leather trade, and to create an enormous domestic trade on shoes and other products, and also a large export business. Such success in one item was alarming to the protectionists; for if free hides brought such astonishing consequences, what might not follow the similar liberation of wool, raw silk and other things from the grasp of protection? And so the edict went forth that hides were to be taxed.

The indignant alarm of New England may bring about the revocation of the edict, and it may bring about the remission of duties on raw material. But if such be the case, it will not cure the republican principles, the discussion of which always opened the eyes of the country to the impositions practiced upon it. The republican party, if it yield, only does so under a pressure it cannot resist. It surrenders nothing through right principle, but only through the pressure of conditions.

INVESTIGATIONS into social economies as well as into the management of public institutions are the order of the day and are by no means unproductive of good.
The old principle that "what is everybody's business is nobody's business" is verified by results, and because no one looks behind the closed curtains of asyllums, charitable and other institutions, abuses, running to the extent of atrocious and unnatural crimes go on unchecked, unknown in fact outside of the walls until some day the curtain is torn down and the public is shocked at the hideous revelations. Such for instance has been the case with the blind asylum at Philadelphia, and in another grade of wickedness, in the Ludlow street jail in New York.
But the most curious of these investigations is reported in the Philadelphia Times, the subject being the boarding houses of that city. Now, if any suggestion was made here of such inquisition, we would all exclaim esto profani, hands off; for our boarding houses are not only above reproach, but are institutions to be proud of. We would as soon think of submitting Battery Park hotel to the scrutiny of investigations as any one of our boarding houses. They are all parts of one great scheme, like the ships of a squadron, from the great three decker down to the janty tender, but all equipped with the same exactness and the same attention to details. It seems to be different in Philadelphia. Sympathy is drawn to the boarders, and is wasted on the landlords. It is hardly possible to realize the torments, the sufferings or the privations of the first, or the tyranny, the rapacity, the cruelty of the other. The landlords are lords indeed, masters and tyrants, the boarders are victims, slaves, helpless, afraid to complain, suffering and starving rather than resist or rebel. The boarding house, such as the Times pictures, is a prison, the landlords are jailers, and the boarders are prisoners. It is time investigations were made. It is a blow struck for freedom. It is knocking the chains off of suffering humanity, attached in its ten-deat, most helpless and yet most trustful part. It is a work of relief, if not of rescue. There are 2,000 so-called boarding houses; there are 15,000 or 20,000 who depend upon them. Unless the houses are reformed flight from one to another brings no relief; all are alike, according to the report made by investigators. Here is a sample of the fare; the heart bleeds at the sad recital:
"Everything is stews and soups. The soups are made of meat with bones in them. There was a cat in this house—pet cat. It disappeared, and we had rabbit stew the next day."

THE DUKE OF DURHAM.
A TALK WITH THE GREAT
TOBACCO HOUSE FOUNDER.

What the American Tobacco Co.
Means—Its Object and Probable Effect—Asheville's Future as a Tobacco Market.
Mr. W. Duke, the great Durham tobacco king, has been visiting in this city for several days, and stopped at Dr.
Weaver's on North Main street. He came on a pleasure trip, and this is the first visit to Asheville since 1884. He says he was greatly surprised at the remarkable growth of the place since he was last here, notwithstanding the statements he has heard concerning its improvement. Mr. Duke was seen yesterday and asked about the American Tobacco Company which has bought out the leading cigarette manufacturers of the United States, including his houses at Durham and New York.

"This company," he said, "with my son, James B. Duke, as president, has purchased the business of Allen and Ginter, Richmond, Va.; the Kinney Tobacco Company, New York; Wm. S. Kimball & Co., Rochester; Goodwin & Co., New York, and W. Duke, Sons & Co., of Durham, together with all their real estate, buildings, material, machinery, patents and trade marks. These establishments will be continued as branch factories of the American Tobacco Company, manufacturing their respective individual brands, under the personal management and direction of the former principals and owners. My youngest son, James B. Duke, who is president, is but 32 years old."

"Will this affect the price of cigarettes?" was asked.
"No," answered Mr. Duke, "the price and quality will remain the same as before."
"Will it hurt the farmers any by depreciating the price of their tobacco?"

"No, we will pay the same as before.
Some farmers down near Durham were opposed to it at first, but that was because the speculators there had been talking to them, and they are now very well pleased with the arrangement. We have been paying several cents a pound more for tobacco this year than ever before."

"Is the present arrangement in the nature of a trust?"
"No, it will be nothing of the kind, and there need be no uneasiness on that subject."

Mr. Duke has been engaged in the tobacco business for twenty-five years, having commenced in 1865, when 44 years old. He was left poor by the war and began on an available cash capital of fifty cents. Starting at the bottom of the ladder, with a remarkable amount of energy and business tact, he has gradually climbed until he now counts his money by the millions.

"One thing," he said while talking, "that I want to impress on your mind is that I never went in debt in my life. I was satisfied to wait until I could command the money, and never had a merchant's bill presented to me that I was not able to pay immediately. I think contracting debts when not absolutely necessary is a great evil to our country."

Mr. Duke believes Asheville has a great future as a tobacco market, and he is well pleased with the increase of the industry among the farmers in the surrounding part of the country.

The two houses of W. Duke, Sons & Co., have purchased on this market 500 hogsheads of cigarette tobacco this season.
Mr. Duke left to-day for his old home in Durham.

FOR $5,000 DAMAGES.
An Interesting Case in the Superior Court.
The case of Pinkney Bean against the Western North Carolina Railroad Company, which was taken up yesterday, was resumed this morning.
The suit is to recover $5,000 damages for injuries sustained in an accident.
Bean was a brakeman on the freight train at the time of the accident which occurred at Deepwater bridge, near Hot Springs on November 25, 1885. Both of his legs were fractured and he was laid up for some time. The railroad company say that Bean signed a release for them from all responsibility upon their payment to him of $30, and they have the paper in evidence.

The counsel for the plaintiff claim that Bean did not understand what he was signing, and that he was suffering from a great mental strain owing to his injuries.
Messrs. Jones and Shuford and Mr.
Henry Hardwick appear for the plaintiff and Hon. Chas. Price for the defendant.

Officers are Elected.
The race problem was the subject for discussion at the Lyceum meeting last night. Mr. E. D. Carter was to have been principal speaker, but on account of other business was unable to attend, and Mr. Henry Hardwick took his place and made a very interesting speech on the question and was followed by Messrs.
John W. Starnes, T. R. Gaines, M. S.
Page and Dr. H. B. Weaver.

After this part of the program an election of officers was held, which resulted as follows: Thos. A. Jones, president; T. R. Gaines, vice president, and H.
Hardwick, secretary. Mr. Hardwick resigned in favor of Mr. J. H. Herring.
The subject for discussion next Wednesday night will be the same and Mr. Carter will be principal speaker.

Cyrene Commandery No. 5, K. T., meets to-night. R. C. degree.

NORTH CAROLINA NOTES.
Raleigh is negotiating for a crusher for street rock.
More to be and less cotton is being planted in Halifax county.

A party of three hunters at Southport killed 380 birds in one day.
The windstorm of Saturday did much damage to the large pine timber south of Raleigh.
Mr. Joseph Munds, of Chowan county, was killed by a falling tree near Rojer last Thursday.

E. A. Herndon, who has been for little over a year telegraph and assistant editor of the Chronicle, has severed his connection with the paper.
The replanting of plant beds throughout the State is going on rapidly, and that with favorable weather the loss of plants will be made good.

An observant farmer says he cannot recall a year when fruit trees were so late in budding. He fears that the cold snaps have killed the buds.
The River View knitting mills of Tarboro turn out about seven hundred pairs of hose a week, and the demand now for their goods is about equal to the supply.

J. E. Pickett, a night watchman in the employ of the Atlantic Coast Line at Wilmington, has mysteriously disappeared, having last been seen Wednesday night.
An old negro who emigrated from Raleigh to Mississippi has returned and says that the treatment to the negro slaves in that State is something to be feared.

G. H. Weld, who has had large contracts for timber cutting in Macon county, has shipped his plant to Russell county, Va., where he has a contract to cut 6,000,000 feet.

Several suits will soon be instituted against the A. & R. railroad by North Carolina parties for ponding water on land. The aggregate amount of damages claimed will be near $20,000.
A white man named Theo. Vick, who lives near Tarboro, was arrested Monday and taken to Rocky Mount to stand trial upon charge of stealing a watch from a man who lives near that place.

A registered letter mailed at Johnson's Mills, addressed to Mr. E. A. Moye, superior court clerk at Greenville, was twenty days coming less than twenty miles. The efficiency of the mail service is remarkable.

The State auditor's report is completed.
It is for the year ending November 30 last. Among other things it shows that there were at that date fifty-four railroads in operation in the State, with 2-735 miles of line. Of these roads all save four pay taxes.

The oratorical contest of the State Inter-Collegiate Oratorical Association will be held in Charlotte May 9. There will be two representatives each from Davidson College, Trinity College and the University. The contest will be for a gold medal given by the association.

George Miller and John Spencer had a fight in a house near the Richmond and Danville railroad freight depot at Charlotte, in which Miller was badly beaten.
Miller got away and procured a gun.
He found Spencer at his home on South Church street. Several shots were exchanged. Both parties were able to escape.

There is a proposition for the holding of a great Farmers' Alliance gathering at Greensboro between the 20th and 30th of July. Very cheap rates can be had and excursion trains can run from Charlotte, Marion, Wilkesboro, Mt. Airy, Clarksville, Va., Oxford, Henderson, Goldsboro and Wilmington.

E. H. R. Green, son of Mrs. Hettie Green, the twenty times millionaire, has been in Tarboro getting powers of attorney from the Hyman heirs to have a section of 650 acres of Chicago suburban property resold. This property was bought jointly by Mrs. Green's husband and the late R. W. Hyman.

The trial of Mordecai Hudson, for the killing of Captain Westcott, was begun at Trenton Tuesday. Hudson was taken to Trenton from Newberne, where he has been for safe keeping. Four brothers of Westcott are at Trenton to attend the trial. They all belong to the life-saving service and are stationed on the North Carolina coast.

The young man Duncan P. McKee, formerly of Rockingham, who shot and killed the railroad depot agent, P. D.
Kirkland, at Sassy, Ga., a few days ago, was arraigned for trial last week, but for some reason his trial was postponed till next September. In the meantime the prisoner will be confined in Valdosta jail, which is in the county adjoining the one in which the crime was committed.

Dempsey Webb, a young white man of Raleigh, fell through a skylight into a store, a distance of fifty feet. An electric light wire against which he struck as he fell head foremost so turned his body that his feet struck the floor. He was very severely injured, and in his fall smashed a strong chair to pieces. It is the first time that an electric light wire has saved life.

The three-masted schooner Joseph Kudd, Captain Edwards, lumber laden, from Wilmington, N. C., struck on Lookout shoals, near Beaufort. The crew were saved by assistance from the life-saving station. Left with her sails set, the schooner worked off, but sank fifty yards from the beach three miles north of the cape. She will prove a total loss. The vessel and cargo were insured.

In the superior court in session at Raleigh Chas. E. Cross and Samuel C. White pleaded guilty in eleven indictments for forgery, larceny and false pretences. They were sentenced to hard labor on the public works in Wake county in each case, but it was ordered by the court that these sentences shall be concurrent with those heretofore imposed upon Cross and White and shall not be cumulative.
Miss Laura Abernathy, a young lady who lives with her uncle, Samuel Lawing, in Paw Creek township, near Charlotte, was burned almost to a crisp. Her uncle was burning off a new ground and Miss Laura was watching the big fires when her dress caught fire and soon enveloped her in flames. In a terrible fright she rushed up towards her uncle, but just reached him when her strength failed her and she fell to the ground. Mr.
Lawing dragged her to a creek and plunged her in, but although the flames were put out, she was so badly injured she will die.
