And yet I have made a moderate profit on each piece of property that I have handled.

The people who have purchased from me have made the quarter of million dollars, and I rejoice in their success.

Battery Park alone without the improvements is worth one hundred thousand dollars more than the figure at which it passed through my hands. In fact it pays annually thirty per cent. profit on a hundred thousand dollars more than it cost.

pointed, as they have been at some recent auctions, I announce that not less than 25 of these lots shall be sold at all hazards, without any upset price. They will certainly be knocked down to the man who makes the highest bid. Each purchaser at the sale will receive a ticket for the lot he buys, and each of these tickets will entitle him to draw for lot No.-, adjoining Freck's lot on Eagle street near Main. The prize lot is 30 by 92 and cost me in cash $1,050 last October before any improvements, and it is safe now to say it is worth $1,500. An absolute deed, free of all charges, will be made to the party who draws the lucky number. So that a man may buy a $400 lot and thereby secure a ticket which may enable him to obtain $2,000 worth of profitable real estate.

Vacant lots are becoming scarce within the fire limits of Asheville, and the importance of this auction can be understood and epitonized in the single statement that it exposes to sale more than one half of all the vacant lots within the fire district of the city.

Confession of One of the Lower California Conspirators.

The Peninsula Wants Government of Its Own,

And It Will Come Sooner or Later-Captain Jaynes, of the Filibustering Expedition, Makes a Sworn Statement to Be Sent to Washington-Evidently Proud of the Part He Has Taken.

San Francisc, May 26.—Capt. J. T. Jaynes, who was one of the conspirators in the proposed Lower California filibus tering expedition, has made a sworn statement, which has been given to United States Marshal Gard to be sent to Washington. In the affidavit Capt. Jaynes corroborates every detail of the story of the affair heretofore printed.

He claims that he has been betrayed by Augustus Merrill and others of the plotters and now makes a full and com-plete confession in order to set himself right before the public. He states that there are several very wealthy men who were connected with the scheme whose were connected with the scheme whose names have not yet been given out. One of them is a millionaire San Francisco merchant and steamship owner. Jaynes states that when Merrill approached him to join the expelition he offered him a commission as a general of the new republic already signed and drawn man.

This he wanted Jaynes to accept and to sign the roll. Now that this plan has been expessed. Jaynes says he intends to go to work and organize another expedition to take Lower California and found an independent republic to stand by itself, without having in view annexation to the United States.

In talking about his plan Jaynes said: "I have lived in Lower California for years, and I know the people. They are ripe for rebellion, and it would take but little to incite-them to revolution. Mexican officials govern them who never appointed to office. The native population is ground to the dust by tyrants, heavily burdened with unjust taxation, and pay tribute to the Mexican government, which never spends a dollar in making improvements on the peninsula. "The natives regard the Mexican officials sent to govern them as foreigners, and they are referred to as invaders. What these natives want is not annexation to the United States, but independence. I propose to raise and equip 10.000 men and land them on the penisula with arms and ammunition. This could be done safely at many points, for Mexican but one war vessel on the Pacific slope.

ico has but one war vessel on the Pacific slope.

"Once landed 10,000 Mexican troops could not dislodge these forces, because the geographical features of the country afford many strong military points, having taken the peninsula, an Anglo-Mexican state with a government and flag of its own and with the native people fairly represented in the government would be founded. To accomplish this a congress of the leading men on the peninsula would be called.

"By having an Anglo-Mexicau flag the United States would be cleared of all complications. Great Britain would only be too glad to exercise a protective right with the new country. Through wanten betrayal on the part of Aug. Merrill, Smith and others at San Diego this revolution, which is bound to come, has been delayed for a year or perhaps two years. Next time we will see to it that there are no travelers in our circle."

that there are no travelers in our circle."

One of the secret service men employed to look into the revolutionary actions of men on this side of the line sadd:

"As near as I can recollect, about two monts ago I had a conversation with M. S. Faccio, when he gave me to understand that he was working for the present president of Mexico. Mr. Faccio will shortly take a trip to Washington to interview Mr. Blaine in regard to the title in lands in Lower California.

"Mr. Faccio has for some time been taking powers of attorney for parties who claim lands in Lower California, and will represent at least 1,000,000 acres. He will get half of all that he can make the title good to. Mr. Tinoco is backing him with mency. He has already advanced him between $1,000,000 acres.

has already advanced him between $5,000 and $4,000, and stands ready to put up $100,000.

"Faccio has, so he says, friends that he wants to get into the consul's place, and for that reason wants him recalled. He also said that he had received letters from Blaine that Blaine was with them, meaning the party that is trying to overthrow Diaz. A Woman's Presence of Mind. Mrs. Richard Barker, of Swanser Mass., secured a servant from a Bos-ton intelligence office, and everything went well for a week. One day the girl was working about as usual, and Mrs. Barker, who is a slight, frail woman, was alone with her. Suddenwoman, was alone with her. Suddenly the servant threw up both hands and exclaimed: "I have had a vision, and am ordered to offer up a sacrifice."
Without any further explanation she started into the kitchen, seized a carving knife and began diligently to whet it in true Shylock fashion, muttering to herself strangely all the time.

Mrs. Barker saw that she was at the Mrs. Barker saw that she was at the mercy of a crazy woman, and for a second or two fright almost overcame her. She knew that she would be no match for the servant in a struggle. Moreover, if she attempted to make her escape she felt that the knife sharpening would come to an end and the attack would commence. It was at this point that Mrs. Barker dis played unusual nerve and wit. Act ing on the principle that it is often well to humor the insane as far as possible, she threw up her hands, and, imitating the servant's manner, said: "I, too, have had a vision. There is a "I, too, have had a vision. There is a letter for you at the postoffice, and you must go for it at once."
