THE DAILY CITIZEN.
FACTS AND COMMENTS.
THE straw vote fiend is again getting in his work. A poll of the delegates to the Illinois State Democratic Convention held in Chicago showed 521 for Cleveland for President in 1892, and 361 for Gray, of Indiana, for Vice President. Cleveland had practically no opposition, while Palmer was the choice of 112 delegates for Vice President.
It would seem as if Asheville was about large enough now to dispense with a city auctioneer who cries his wares in front of the court house door. Thirty years ago when the city was a little hamlet that was perhaps all right, but it does not tend to increase a stranger's regard for a place to hear an auctioneer cry out his sales on the street, nor is it a pleasure to the resident to have to listen to the fellow. It is high time Asheville was divesting itself of the village feature.
THE commencement of the different colleges are now on and soon the graduate will be abroad in the land. The first year or two it may bother them to know just how this world got along while they were within the four walls of the school, but after that they will come around all right and will no doubt make good citizens. What the average graduate don't know when he is fresh from school is a minus quantity. But pretty soon he begins to forget some of his knowledge and then he begins to amount to something.
THE Hon. John W. Wamaker, book collector and Sunday school superintendent, is getting a great deal of free advertising for one branch of his business just now. The advertising is accompanied by criticism that the Hon. John does not enjoy, but which, no doubt, leaves him satisfied. Just as he balances his labors in corrupting voters against his labors in leading children to Christ, satisfying his conscience while making both profitable in gaining a great office, he can balance the criticism he dislikes against the advertising he loves, and pocket the profits in a contented frame of mind.
It is the Hon. John's book department which the papers are advertising free of charge. He is sending all over the country a circular in which he offers to sell the Encyclopedia Britannica for about one-fifth the regular price. He is able to do this because he has stolen the book from the British owners. They were obliged to pay about $1,000,000 for the articles it contains, written by the men foremost in every department of learning, but the Hon. John steals them and therefore can afford to sell cheap.
If the Hon. John, remarks our able contemporary, the Savannah News, were to steal any of the dry goods he sells from an American, or even from an Englishman he could be sent to the penitentiary. Everybody would agree that that was the proper place for him. But he can commit precisely the same crimes against moral law in stealing something much more valuable than dry goods, and through a loophole in the law escape the penitentiary. Seeing his opportunity to steal without paying the penalty exacted of ordinary thieves he promptly takes advantage of it. If he could steal dry goods with the same degree of safety he would undoubtedly do so. His eagerness to collect from the government duties on ribbons which he had already collected from his customers shows that his conscience is not squeamish when a dollar is in sight. He believes in getting the dollar, no matter whether it belongs to him or not.

HE IS NOT IN THE RACE.
Richmond Pearson Denies Some Floating Rumors.
To the Citizens of Asheville:—I regret very generally in the past few days as a candidate for congress, and that my profuse expenditures at the close of the great sale were prompted by some ulterior motive.
This is the only thing that I have received and the only thing to mar my satisfaction in successfully conducting a transaction which resulted in large profits to me, to the purchasers from me, to the city, to the churches and to the laboring men of both races.
I write to say that I shall not be a candidate for congress or any other office in the approaching campaign. I ask nothing but co-operation in building up our city and section and I beg to say to those who have suspected any other motive who if they are not willing for me to dare to think for myself in political matters, I beg them not to question the sincerity of my convictions or the motives of my benefactions. Very Respectfully,
RICHMOND PEARSON.
Being Enlarged.
The Sulphur Springs hotel will be enlarged. Plans for a forty-eight room addition have been prepared, and work has begun. The new part will project from the northern end of the present building, and at right angles with it eastwardly. It will be three stories high. The hotel has sixty-three rooms, and the owners are considering the advisability of adding eighteen rooms besides the forty-eight now being worked on, making the capacity double what it is at present. Dr. Von Ruck will take charge of the hotel October 1.

Mr. June Stevenson sent a sample of marl from his farm to the agricultural experiment station for analysis. The analysis showed 88.25 per cent. of carbonate of lime and 1 1/2 per cent. of phosphoric acid, which is a very rich, valuable marl.—Kinston Free Press.
A serious row occurred at Yadkin College commencement in which both white and colored people took part. Tom and Bob Berrier (colored) were the leaders in the fight and both were badly injured. Five shots were fired, three of the balls taking effect in Bob Berrier. The cause of the trouble grew out of a dispute about riding on a "flying jenny."
The taking of the census calls forth the following from the Hickory Press and Carolinian: "We congratulate those ladies who may not care to have their ages published to the world on the appointment of Rev. D. K. Bennett, instead of some young gossiping chap. Mr. Bennett will not 'give you away.' Not even to his wife, and you may tell him the exact truth."
The census taker's on the wing—very doth he sweetly sing. "Come hither now, I'll enumerate, the high and low, the small and great." Interrogations he will play, and compel all to "do or die." The ladies, too, both old and young, will kindly look at him "so sage" when he doth ask them for their age.—Goldboro Dispatch.

Hardy, of the State Chronicle.
An Alliance in Davidson county has expelled their president upon the following charges: "First for using language in opposition for denouncing our state organ; second, for denouncing our state organ; third, for putting wrong constructions on the demands made by the Alliance for the purpose, as I think, of misleading the members."—Progressive Farmer.

Their Last Appearance.
The Eflin Star Comedy company appeared last night in "Mabel Heath," and gave decidedly the best performance of the week, but to a small house. The company itself is one of the best that ever played in Asheville. Every member is an actor and the class of plays which they produce are first-class. They deserve a far better patronage than they are receiving. To-night is their last appearance and the piece selected is "Dora," a dramatization of Fenimore's beautiful poem. It is one of the prettiest of dramas.
At an Advance of $50,000.
Negotiations are pending whereby the present owners of the Oakland Institute, the board of home missions of the Presbyterian church, will sell the property.
