THE DAILY CITIZEN.
FACTS AND COMMENTS.
This is the kind of weather that will make Southerners think it is about the time of year to get to Asheville. The summer season will soon be opened.
Prof. C. H. HENDERSON, of the Philadelphia manual training school, will spend the summer in North Carolina with the class in geology of that institution.
Geo. W. KENNON, has lectured 201 times on the Russian question. His words have not gone for naught. He has the satisfaction of knowing that the whole world is talking of his positions.
When the census enumerator put in his appearance in Battleboro township, Edgecombe county, the negroes all took to the woods. The latest reports state that they are there yet. They had read the papers.
St. Paul President Harrison has some good traits. His name heads the list of contributions for the proposed memorial from America to France with a whole dollar. It might have been more, we know, but compared with his other acts the promoters of the enterprise have reason to be satisfied that it is not less.
PATTI has not lost her voice as the papers of a few days ago announced. In crossing the ocean she contracted a severe cold which was the only basis for the report. Now she has cabled across denying it. The music loving public of America will rejoice with the great prima donna and wish her many years of success before the footlights.
OVER in London the question is not now so much on the Sunday paper as it is on the matter which is printed in it. A correspondent writes to the London Herald protesting against the publication of Sunday papers, except such as are devoted to religious labors and Sunday anecdotes. This is a new side to the question.
The first girl to take an honor at Harvard is Miss H. L. Reed. She has been awarded the Sargent prize for the best metrical translation of the twenty-ninth ode of the third book of Horace. It might be mentioned incidentally that before athletics were put at the head of the course men had no difficulty in winning all of the prizes. This is a nut for some of the supporters of a base ball and rowing course to crack.
ADVICES received from Kansas are to the effect that the political situation there is much mixed. There is no doubt of the re-nomination and election of Governor Humphrey, but the Farmers' Alliance people are determined to make it warm for Senator Ingalls. There is no denying that the opposition to his return to the senate among the farmers is very strong, and great efforts will be made to elect a hostile legislature. Things look uncomfortably warm for Ingalls and when he settles down in his home in Atchison as a private citizen the South will have a sigh of relief that will not be equalled by the news that Col. Shepard has been confined in an insane asylum.
A CABLEGRAM from Vienna a few days since must have been eagerly received by a certain class of individuals who argue that suicides are epidemic. Six persons endeavored to take their lives there in one day. Three cases proved successful. A girl was found in the room of a hotel with an artery completely severed. Another young woman, whose brother is charged with manslaughter, threw herself into the Danube, but was rescued, while a third female succeeded in poisoning herself because her lover had left her. Two men shot themselves, one in the woods and the other in the great hall at the singers' festival, while a well known barber cut his own throat in the presence of his customers.
The despatches of a few days ago had aairy tale of how much trouble was being given to enumerators by the people of Asheville. It was sent broadcast over the country and no doubt many who read the article have gained from it the impression that Asheville is a lawless community.
As a matter of fact there is no truth in the report or if there is the local office has kept it much to themselves for they have repeatedly said that there was no trouble whatever.
When the list of questions was first received they excited no little adverse criticism because of the irrelevancy of some of them to the census. Then followed a circular signed “A Citizen” in which the subject was handled without gloves and people were urged not to answer the questions. That day the enumerators started and Tuesday Superintendent Hardwick's assistants stated that there was no trouble. The fact is that in a number of cases the census enumerator had not asked the questions upon which there was a discussion—those relating to chronic diseases and affections of the mind—they have been skipped by.
Again it is quite probable that if there had been any refusals to answer questions residents would have known it before the world in general. The whole fact is no trouble. Asheville is doing her part just the same as any other city and there is no cause for complaint.
On Saturday there were some minor complaints, but these came in after the dispatch was sent out. Previous to that everything was reported as moving smoothly. What started it is the question.
Six wagons advertising a Detroit plow company are encamped at the depot in their own tents.

There Are Two Sides.
EDITOR CITIZEN.—Into some portions of this city has gone the impression that the Lyceum is an infidel club and is engaged in discussions calculated to injure the church. Now as a resident of Asheville for nearly nine years, knowing most of the members intimately, being myself identified with it and having a reputation at stake, allow me to insist that it all comes from those who have not heard the other side.
Respectfully,
WILLIAM WARD.

It reports are true, Judge Armfield got the worst of it when he exchanged districts with Judge Womack. In Edgecombe the solicitor and two other officers of the court were colored men, and all of them thought that the wester in the judge's pitcher was the best, and they slaked their thirst out of it. Judge Armfield did not appreciate this, and has so expressed himself.—Durham Globe.
A wildcat was brought into Raleigh by a countryman and escaped from his cage. There was a general scattering and in the midst of the scare the animal succeeded in biting. It was several hours before it was seen again and then it came in through the rear window of a grocery store and brought the sack with it. In just about three seconds that store was the cat's alone and six men with six rifles were required to regain possession. The animal was mad clear through and wanted to fight.
The Durham Sun says that during the storm Tuesday, at Cox's store, near Orange Factory, two brothers, Daniel and George Kaynor, went into the water to keep out of the rain. Lightning struck a post and ran down along the place where they were sitting and stunned both men. One has no use whatever of his body from his hips down. The other is prostrated, and both are seriously, if not fatally, injured.
James R. McDonald, one of the oldest citizens of Long Creek township, Mecklenburg county, died at his home, about eight miles from Charlotte, Wednesday night. Mr. McDonald was a native of Scotland. He came to America in 1845. He was a brave Confederate soldier, a member of the Fifth North Carolina cavalry. His wife and two children survive him. Mr. McDonald was seventy-nine years of age.
The Raleigh correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch writes: Last year it was stated that the State Farmers' Alliance had made some requests of the legislature for the creation of a railway commission, the extension of the jurisdiction of magistrates, the prohibition of the holding of free passes by the public officials, and the prohibition of the free gift of convict labor to corporations. These requests were made at a meeting here in August, 1888. The legislature did not heed them, the alliance men claim, so that now where there was a “request” there is a “demand.” The State Alliance at its session at Fayetteville in 1889 made the demand and the whole matter went before the legislature for ratification. There are some 2,200 of the latter, and nearly all, if not all of them, endorsed it. It now becomes an official demand. The issue is put squarely before the people and the legislature.
