THE DAILY CITIZEN.

FACTS AND COMMENTS.

GAZAWAY HARTBRIDGE, the editor of the Savannah Times who recently spent several days in the city, has returned to his home and has written an interesting account of Asheville and the surroundings. That seems to be quite the style lately. Everybody who comes here writes of their trip for the benefit of their friends who want to know.

THAT A MAN can get too much of a good thing has been illustrated again in New York by Henry Koehler, a Casino cornetist, who shot himself because he preferred death to playing in front of the ballet. His dying request to his wife was not to allow his children to go on the stage. That he was tired of seeing painted faces he gave as the reason for his deed. Not many men would have given such an excuse. To them it is more of a reason for living.

J. B. Eaves is out with a card in the Hendersonville Times in which he denies that Congressman Ewart had anything to do with his defeat. It says: "I understand some republicans are inclined to doubt Mr. Ewart's fidelity to my cause. Mr. Ewart did all he could for my confirmation as collector. My rejection was brought about by Senators Vance and Ransom, Dr. Mott and Chas. Price. I hope my friends will at once dismiss this injustice to Mr. Ewart. The men who defeated me would, I have no doubt, be glad to see him defeated too."

THREE weeks ago Mrs. Louisa Biletski lived at Baltimore with her daughter. The latter was courted by a music teacher but the mother objected to the marriage, and finally the lover said good bye to the girl and sailed for Europe, after informing her that she would never see him again. He kept his word. When the vessel was four days out he jumped over board and was drowned. When Miss Biletski heard of his tragic end she became despondent, and she died from the effects of a dose of opium. Her daughter's death preyed on the mother's mind, and so she also killed herself.

If the plan as outlined in Saturday's CITIZEN with regard to the consolidation of this revenue district with the Raleigh one is true, it would seem as if the republican kickers who have been making it so warm for Eaves and who finally secured his discharge, had got a great deal more than they had bargained for. Eaves is the loser only by $1,500 a year for he, it is said, will remain as deputy collector at Statesville. All of his old deputies will be retained for the split in the republican party is altogether too wide now and it would be far from advisable to get rid of his appointees. So his enemies have gained absolutely nothing and have lost the entire district.

AS Asheville correspondent writes the following to the Knoxville Sentinel. The meanness of it about it is that it is true: "The dry weather here has caused the lawns to look rather sick, especially that in court square which is in the city's center. There is a fountain on said square, but from some unexplained reason, it plays a stream so small that one must take a very near view to see the tiny sprays. The general dilapidated appearance of that portion of the city which should of right be kept in apple-pie order is a disgrace and the old wooden seats are backed and heaved with the knives of the idlers. Some are in a broken down condition, and the grass, which should be watered daily, is perishing under the hot sun, and no one seems to think to use a hose on it. Moreover, the lawn is covered with bits of paper and old bones taken there by hungry dogs, and the once neat wire fence, bordering the paths is bent and broken. Very different is the refreshing verdure one meets with on the Battery Park lawns. There all is neatness and looks and feels like a great green carpet."

A CORRESPONDENT of the Charleston News and Courier writing from Asheville gives the following views of Congressman Ewart's bill asking the government to lend money to farmers.

Mr. Ewart, the representative in congress from this district, where the farmers are very poor, so much so that scores of them live through the winter on corn purchased in the spring and summer on borrowed money at a dollar or more, a bushel, has introduced a bill in the house of representatives having for its purpose the lending of money by the government on mortgage of the farms at 2 per cent. per annum, but by a strange inconsistency he exempts from the proposed privilege all farmers whose land is not worth $500.

If this proposed bill is for the benefit of the poor farmers of the district represented by Mr. Ewart, the majority of whom are not worth $500, of what advantage will it be to them? Money is borrowed by these poor farmers often to buy food until their crops mature, at most exorbitant rates, a hundred dollars or less is often made at 8 per cent interest and a discount of 25 per cent, both on the gross amount, so that the borrower of $50 gets no more than $31.50, for which he returns in six months (the whole of the interest is exacted) the $50 for which he has given a mortgage. Where Mr. Ewart's philanthropy for the poor farmer comes in is hard to perceive, but it is easy to see how it may be turned to the advantage of the rich ones. A farmer who can borrow $2,000 may lend it out to his poor neighbors on the terms mentioned and make a profit of just $200, getting $600 for the loans and paying $400 only to the government for the interest. He can thus live very comfortably on the proceeds of other men's labor. And Mr. Ewart poses before his constituents as a public benefactor and as an example of a republican representative whose valuable services entitle him to re-election.

Several parties from a distance are here to buy property at Bostie's auction.

Murder at Murphy.

Mr. A. H. Isbell, who has just returned from Murphy is authority for the following account of a murder which occurred there. A man named Gould was stabbed by his wife Monday, and died Wednesday. He and his wife had often quarreled and fought while under the influence of liquor, and Monday, during one of these difficulties, he knocked his wife down with a stick. The woman jumped up, and rushed at him with a stiletto, stabbing him in the abdomen. Mrs. Gould will be held until investigation is made. Public sentiment is divided on the guilt of the woman. Gould and his wife had been in Murphy for about a year, having moved from London, England, their former home.
