WEDNESDAY AUGUST 13, 1890.

A Pointer.

Resolved, that we, the republicans of Tennessee in convention assembled, cordially indorse the federal election bill that recently passed the lower house of congress, and that we earnestly but respectfully request its passage by the senate with such amendments and modifications as the wisdom and patriotism of that body may suggest to more effectually secure a free ballot and fair count in all elections.—Adopted by the Tennessee republican state convention, July 30.

Clean Up.

The CITIZEN does not care very much who is to blame for allowing garden truck and chickens to occupy some of the city sidewalks to the exclusion of those for whom these walks were made—the people. Nor has it brought the matter to the attention of the public for the sake of faultfinding. The subject is agitated solely for the purpose of having the objection removed, of having that part of the city most used by visitors and townspeople in a condition approaching cleanliness and order if not positive attractiveness.

Of course everybody—our worthy Mayor included—knows that this result should be secured and maintained; but perhaps the ground we shall urge it on is not generally suspected.

We shall plead for a clean, orderly, dustless Asheville simply because there is more money, more prosperity in that kind of a city than in the other kind. Just now this city is, or should be, laying the foundations for a larger future than is probably possible to any other health resort in the United States. We are being advertised far and near. The natural beauty of our surroundings, our accessibility to all the large cities, our healing air—these are attractions hard to duplicate the world over. But these are not enough by any means. We must make a city that in its general appearance shall blend with its beautiful surroundings; that shall be a strong attraction in itself—neat, clean not necessarily gaudy or merely pretty.

Much has been done, and to those who have done it we give hearty appreciation. But the improvement should be more uniform to secure the full return on the investment. Moreover there is a rank injustice in allowing one man to break the ordinance which others observe at some expense and because they take pride in the city and their immediate surroundings.

Clean up the city because it will pay to do it as a business investment.

Not Far Apart.

Viewed from any direction, Col. L. L. Polk has a long head. Noticing the quite general statement in the State press, that the farmers belonging to the Alliance were not united in support of the sub-treasury bill. The CITIZEN questioned Col. Polk particularly on that point. What he said appeared in Monday's CITIZEN in an interview which Col Polk read over, before it was printed, and pronounced correct:

"I never knew a people to be so near a unit as they are on the sub-treasury bill, or on its principles," he said.

Further on in the same authorized interview Col. Polk said:

"I find both republicans and democrats of the order equally zealous and determined to go to the source of the trouble now existing, to-wit—the financial system of the government. We believe the sub-treasury bill is destined to reach the remedy, but if it will not, we expect and demand that congress will devise a measure that will do it. Our people are a unit on this point."

"But if it will not." In those five words Col. Polk admits that the measure may be faulty, that it may have to give way to something else. How, then, can he make indiscriminating support of it a final test for Alliance votes?

And yesterday the CITIZEN reporter understood Capt. S. B. Alexander to say:

"The Alliance as a body will not oppose the election of Senator Vance, and I am certain he will be returned. Some farmers will of course work against him, but the majority will support him as of old. The fact is, the farmers themselves are not solidly for the sub-treasury bill itself, although they are a unit in the support of the principles included in it, and we believe Vance will do just what is right."

Certainly the Alliance and the Democracy are near enough to touch hands.

Not Always Thus.

It is to be regretted that Asheville's best silk dress and new bonnet were mislaid just before the city filled up with the strangers at present within our gates. What they think of the public square as it appears to-day we should be afraid to ask. We can assure them of our sympathy as they sound its depths and explore its heights. 'Twas not always thus; and if it does not rain too hard, and if the wind does not blow too fiercely, nor the sun shine too strong a glare, it is probable that one of these days the square will be less calculated to make the very stars wonder at our patience.

Gen. Alger and the Negro.

For a pronounced and generally extreme partisan Gen. R. A. Alger in his speech before the G. A. R. at Boston today was very moderate. Speaking of the color line being drawn in some of the Louisiana and Mississippi posts he added:

"It is the same question that to-day is disturbing many localities in the Southern part of this country, and which will require patience and concessions from all parties to settle. It is a perplexing one, but I trust time, with the good intentions of all peace and liberty-loving citizens, will bring such moderation of council that in the near future all may share the rights granted by our laws, and that harmony will prevail everywhere."

"Moderation of council" is pretty nearly a centre shot at the force bill.

But the General is mistaken in one particular—when he speaks of the negro as a political "question that is disturbing many localities in the Southern part of this country." The question is little if any more disturbing here than is the control of the foreign vote North and its demoralizing influence on municipal as well as State affairs. The republican party has pushed the negro question into politics where it does not belong; that's all.

OUR visitors will notice that the city is entirely free of dust. This is the result of an admirable system of street watering planned by Providence and carried out by the city authorities—when it rains.

THESE cold nights are some left over from last December when they were used but once or twice.

THE LATEST NEWS FROM NORTH CAROLINA

—The Trinity District Conference has been in session at High Point. About twenty ministers and seventy-five delegates were in attendance.

—We have lost $40,000 by fire in the last two weeks, a portion of which might possibly have been saved by the prompt efforts of paid firemen.—Winston Daily.

—The camp meeting at Rock Springs was in full blast Sunday, says a Raleigh paper. It has been going on for about four days, and will continue about two days longer.

—The contractors on the Roanoke and Southern road have discovered a valuable vein of silver ore on the land of a Mr. Vaughn, near Price's store, says the Madison news.

—More than fifty new buildings have been put up in Morganton within the last year. Some of these are very handsome structures, costing from eight thousand to ten thousand dollars.

—The death of Ed. B. Turrentine, of Durham, is the first loss sustained in North Carolina by the Ancient Order of United Workmen. Mr Turrentine held a $2,000 policy in this excellent order.

—Mormon preachers are holding meetings in the vicinity of Fisher Hill mines a few miles south of Greensboro and the ear thereabouts is beginning to wear a wrinkled surface and the hens are uneasy.

—A Raleigh negro in Winston the other day watched several electric cars go by and then was heard to mutter "The white man done done away with the nigger; now he tryin' to do away with the mule."

—Mr. W. W. Holladay, Mr. Hoge's brother-in-law, telegraphed Saturday evening that the symptoms are all more favorable and that the chances of recovery are greatly improved.—Wilmington Messenger.

—An apple raised in Mecklenburg Co., Va., was in Oxford Thursday. It weighed three hundred and two pounds and was sixty-five inches round. Next.—Oxford Ledger. Fact. His name is Apple.—Wilmington Messenger.

—In the convention in Johnston Saturday, it is reported, that some words were passed between Mr. Z. F. Lemay and a Mr. Booker. In the course of the dispute it is stated that Mr. Lemay drew his knife and severely slashed Mr. Taylor.—Raleigh News and Observer.

—One of the largest religious gatherings ever assembled in the State is now in progress at High Point. The yearly meeting of Friends (or Quakers) convened there last Wednesday, and representatives from Eastern North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Indiana, New York, and London were present.—Raleigh Chronicle.

—H. G. Link, of Charlotte, says a Shelby man came into his store and bought and ate the following goods: Three cans oysters, 1 lb cheese, 2 lbs. soda crackers, 1 lb. raw cabbage, 1 quart Holland gin, ½ lb. pepper, ½ lb. salt, 1 pint peanuts. Well, what's the matter, Mr. Link? Expect the man to make a full meal on cold stuff?

—Tom Pleasants and Jos. James, two young painters who came here a short time ago from Wilmington, became involved in a fight Wednesday evening in South Greensboro and Pleasants inflicted wounds upon James from which it is probable that he will die. It seems that both the young men were in love with the same girl and that she had discarded James for Pleasants.—Greensboro Patriot.

—The centennial of the Baptist church at Wake Union, near Wake Forest College, was held Saturday. Rev. Dr. Carroll preached the sermon; Rev. Dr. Hall delivered the address, and Mr. Geo. W. Thompson prepared a paper which was read by Mr. W. O. Allen, giving the history of the church. It was established in 1790 by the United Brethren, who gave the Baptists one week, the Episcopalians one week, the Methodists one week, and the Presbyterians one week.

—Last Monday afternoon a negro called at the residence of Mr. William Walton, in Pender. Mr. Walton's twelve year old daughter was the only person at home and as soon as the door opened the negro caught her but she immediately seized a pistol to protect herself. The man thereupon loosed his hold upon her and fled, but she fired at him and thinks she struck him in the hand or arm, as he ran off shaking his hand. There's grit for you!

—Fire broke out Monday morning in the kitchen of Hotel Fountain at Winston and consumed the entire building with furniture and clothing belonging to the proprietor and guests. The Winston Daily says the building was owned by Capt R. W. Belo and was insured for $4,000. He also had a large quantity of furniture stored in the third story, which was entirely consumed. Upon this there was an insurance of $1,000. Mr. J. W. Gray, the proprietor of the hotel, saved a portion of his furniture. He had $1,500 insurance on his stock. A stock company will at once erect a large hotel building in the central part of the city.

—The villagers of Summerfield are jubilant over the fact that the Summerfield Academy will be ready for occupancy September 4. The principal, Prof. J. A. Bowles, is out in an announcement in which he states that on the day of opening there will be a grand rally. Speeches are to be made by prominent men and a picnic served by the ladies of the village. Mr. C. W. Gamble and Miss Claud Dicks are to have charge of the primary department. Miss Dicks, Mr. E. J. Managhan is to teach telegraphy, and Mr. Gattis Foster is to have charge of the short-hand and typewriting department. —Cor. Greensboro Patriot.

At Durham a negro named Dan Lane has announced himself as a republican candidate for superior court clerk in opposition to Mr. C. D. Upchurch, and the Globe asks: "Is it not time for white men to step out of the republican party and vote with the white man's party?"

THE "WE" MEN

Colonel Jno. C. Tipton has bought the plant of the Prohibitionist, published at Greensboro some time ago, and will start a new paper, the Guilford Democrat. It will be a weekly but not a weakly.

∴

If the editor, or the mail boy, of the Richmond Dispatch will see that that paper is hurried off each day, so as to reach Asheville the following afternoon THE CITIZEN can clip as much from it as now and not give any more credit.

∴

THE CITIZEN is astounded to see so excellent a newspaper man as Editor Joy, of the Winston Daily, begin his account of the Fountain hotel fire thus: "The sun had just begun to bathe our city with its glittering beams." Lurid Glare was ruled out, however, and for that thanks.

∴

Our engine broke down yesterday morning when about half of our city papers had been carried. The remainder of the entire edition had to be printed by using hand power, which made it exceedingly slow and tedious work and caused us to lose a portion of our mails. —Wilmington Messenger. Yes, Editor Bonitz, and you'll lose some of your mules if that kind of a break-down should occur often. Here's our sympathy.

∴

It has been many a long year since any North Carolinian had the nerve to try to describe a sunset. The Salisbury correspondent of the Raleigh Chronicle set his teeth the other night and said he'd run the risk. Here's the result: "A most magnificent sunset scene was outlined yester eve upon the canvas of the sky. Nature, in her sunset panoramas exhibited a prairie fire, last evening Three gigantic columns of scarlet flame stretched across the sky, flaring up from the horizon, and in such a manner as would cause one to imagine their being fanned by a furious gale. Directly over, and reaching far beyond these great jets of flame, was a black cloud bank of monumental proportions, which had the appearance of a massive volume of smoke." This is warranted to keep in any climate, but oh! what a beautiful column article the editor of the Wilson Mirror would have made on the subject.

Curious Indeed.

From the New York Sun.

It is a curious fact that the two distinct propositions to introduce gag law in the senate should proceed from Senator Blair, of New Hampshire, who can and does make more speeches on the same subject than any other living man, and from Senator Hoar, the only senator who habitually delivers the same speech twice over, the first time in his night attire and before his bedroom mirror, the second time in the senate chamber.

Wyoming Woman Suffrage.

From the St. Paul Globe.

The Woman Suffrage law was passed by the Wyoming legislature twenty years ago as a joke. The members of the legislature supposed that the Governor would veto the bill, and there was where they made their mistake. He signed it, and vetoed a repealing act passed by the next legislature.

The better class of women very largely do not vote at all, or cast the same ballot as their male relatives. The less worthy elements, and they are numerous in mining regions, as a rule, vote for pay. This is true of very many respectable ladies. They look upon political races as upon horse races, and dresses, jewelry, and money are demanded for their votes. It is very common for girls under twenty-one to vote, no man daring to challenge them. To do so would subject him to ridicule, and very likely result in his being driven from the community.
