THE DAILY CITIZEN is on sale at the following places in Asheville: CITIZEN OFFICE, BATTERY PARK NEWS STAND, GLEN ROCK NEWS STAND, MODEL CIGAR STORE, Patton Ave., J. CARSON'S NEWS STORE, North Court Square.

TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 2, 1890.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES.

For Chief Justice of the Supreme Court: HON. A. S. MERRIMON. For Associate Justice of the Supreme Court: HON. WALTER CLARK. FOR SUPERIOR COURT JUDGE: 1st district—Geo. H. BROWN, Jr., of Beaufort.

FOR SOLICITORS: 1st district—H. H. BROWN, of Perquimans. 2d district—M. GRIFFIN, of Halifax.

The Fair.

Of course we are going to have one a year from October. That much should very soon be considered settled. Everything points to the necessity for it, everything foreshadows a complete success for such an attraction if properly started by the right men.

THE CITIZEN hopes soon to hear either that a public meeting has been called to consider ways and means for this project or that some of Asheville's enterprising gentlemen have quietly gone to work and formed a company for that purpose.

Down in No. 5 township, Randolph county, the first government distillery is about to be opened and the people are praying that it may not be. J. S. Ingram, who appears to be an official, was interviewed on the subject by a Concord Standard reporter and said: "I have nothing whatever to do with the distilleries and prayer meetings in No. 5 township."

THE CITIZEN yesterday contained a summary of a sermon delivered Sunday by Rev. Mr. Bryan. Unless something unforeseen should occur to prevent, this feature will be a regular one of Monday's issue.

PAPER, PEN AND INK.

How long longer will North Carolina papers continue to give dollar notices for 15 cent watermelons?

The editor of the Hendersonville Guide has the right idea of it. He apologizes for his patent insides, and says it won't occur again.

The editor of the Concord Standard has had his ear to the ground and learns that it's all nonsense to say an ear can be killed by splitting his tail. Now that that point is settled he can go to press content.

Something dropped in Highland the other day. The Press says: "Mr. Lee Hooper, of Cullowhee, Jackson county, called on us last Tuesday and set us forward a little. May he live to drive many thousand sheep yet." What could it all have been about?

When the Greensboro State makes a statement like this we are bound to believe it: "So far as the owners of the North State are concerned they have not sold Mr. Brower nor any other else a controlling interest in the paper, nor has Mr. Brower proposed in any way to buy the North State, or a controlling interest in it."

The architect of this column must confess to a weakness for the good old-fashioned brood column—standard gauge, like the Charlotte Democrat. A CITIZEN editorial that was not much thought of here looks very dignified in the Democrat's column where it is printed as original.

The question is sometimes asked if there is any money in the newspaper business. Indeed there is, stacks of it, but to get the money out of it is something our twelve years' experience has failed to teach.

Not much cider-making now.—Concord Standard. Well, now, that's too bad.

Bishop Keener has announced officially that the first session of the West-Carolina conference will meet in Concord November 26.

The depot at Andrews, Cherokee county, is pronounced the neatest and best arranged of any on the North Carolina division of the Richmond and Danville system.

The authorities of the Weldon fair have extended an invitation to Rev. Thomas Dixon, of New York, to speak at the next fair, and he has accepted the invitation for the 30th of October.

Several of the most prominent negroes in the eastern part of the State announce their intention to antagonize the colonies of the negroes from North Carolina southward and westward November 1.

Mecklenburg county claims to be first and foremost in the following: 1. Her declaration of Independence; 2. Her first law; 3. Her road law; 4. Prohibition, there being no licensed saloon outside of Charlotte.

The Concord Daily Standard was threatened with a suit for libel by the Cabarrus county officers—damages $50,000—but to avoid the inconvenience of a lawsuit and promote the interest of the campaign, a compromise was effected.

The dead body of Mr. Frank L. Bond, of Tarboro, has been found in Tar river, eight miles from Washington. In his pocket was a piece of paper on which was written "I have been in torment for ten days." It is certain that he committed suicide.

In substantiation of the reported claim that the valley of Valley river was literally underlaid with marble, it was discovered the first of the week that the marble lead on the Konabetchah (Thrash) property was fully three miles in width.

A drummer named J. N. Fleming, who was arrested in Charlotte and carried back to Lexington, where he cruelly whipped a boy, did not get a trial, the prosecution not being ready. Fleming gave bond in the sum of $100 for his appearance in two weeks.

The continued rains and the cold weather has caused cotton to shed and rust. The prospect, however, is still bright for big crops.

Every farmer now has only this news, "poor crops and too much rain." Agriculture is rather merciful in his temperance.—Tarboro Southerner.

VANCE'S LANCET.

It Cuts Deep—The Newer Mathematics. From the Congressional Record. Mr. Vance—Mr. President, I have listened, as I always do, with a great deal of pleasure to the senator from Iowa (Mr. Allison), and I listened to his recent able speech with more than usual attention because I was anxious to find out where senators on that side stood and what they were after in this woolen schedule; but I confess that I was not able to comprehend the position that the senator and his associates have assumed.

He says, in the first place, that there are many things in this bill which are very wrong, and yet he is going for it, and he has not given us any help to redress any of the wrongs which are in the bill.

In the next place, he said that neither this tariff nor the tariff of 1883 had made any material difference in the price of either the raw wool or of the manufactured product, and in the course of a few minutes he said that it would be the price of the finished product in some particular articles, articles of pure luxury I believe he described them; that is, articles which were all wool and not shoddy.

On the whole, sir, I come out at the hole at which I went in. I did not understand, when he began to speak, how the bill could be of any service so as to relieve the wool growers if it would increase the price of their product, nor how, if it would increase the price of wool in this country, it could be the foundation of almost double the price of all woolen manufactures. I can not understand the matter now. I do not know what the position of senators on that side is.

Many years ago there was an old davey who used to fish on a rock in the Mississippi river. He would get out upon his rock and take his seat and light his pipe and fish and eat his supper. One day he swung an unusually big cat, and in the struggle the cat pulled him off the rock and he was drowned, and the poet of the local newspaper had the following couplet describing the catastrophe:

The neighbors never could make out by the aid of all their figuring, whether the davey went a-fishing or the cat-fish went a-fishing.

I can not make out for the life of me what the Senator is after when he insists on increasing the duty on raw wool for the benefit of the producers, while, at the same time, he is not going to make any difference, but will rather make the wool cheaper, when he insists on basing upon that figure on the raw wool a very large increase in the manufactured product on the ground that it is going to make that cheaper.

Clear Soup—Take two pints of water, wash them thoroughly in both ways, pour into a dish or some thing, and stir around the kitchen until cold.

Stomach Cake—Line a small box with green apples and cucumbers. This can be prepared at short notice.

Chopped Potatoes—Put a setting of eggs into a kettle of hot water at 6:57, let them boil till the clock strikes; serve on half shell.
