MISS EMILY VAUGHN. ASHEVILLE, N. C. CONGRESS HAS ADJOURNED IMPORTANTBILLSRAILROAD ED THROUGH.

Reed's "Impartial" Course in the Chair Commended by a Strict Party Vote-An all Night Session and Adjournment at Noon.

WASHINGTON, March 4.-The senate was in session all night. Discussion upon Mr. Pasco's motion to reconsider the vote agreeing to the conference report on the copyright bill occupied the attention of the senators at intervals up o the hour of taking recess this morning Mr. Pasco complained that, notwithtanding his motion, the bill had been surried to the vice-president and had received his signature and was now awaiting the president's. That was an instance in the opinion of Mr. Hale, of how that bill had been "railroaded."

The idea of the bill being "railroaded" was angrily repelled by Mr. Platt. Very deep regret was expressed by Mr. Hale that the vice-president had seen fit to sign the bill, and it was only, he thought, because the vice-president did not know of the serious effort to have the full vote of the senate on motion to reconsider. He hoped the president would learn the facts in time to withhold his signature. Mr. Spooner said he had seen the vice-president and had learned that he, not not knowing of the motion, had signed the bill. Here the matter stood when the hour of recess came. In the mean-time the conference report on the agri-cultural appropriation bill had been agreed to; and a partial conference re-port on the deficiency bill agreed to, furher conference being ordered.

At 6.15 a. m. the senate took reces till 9 a. m., and various matters were disposed of with that railroad speed which the senators had complained of in connection with the copyright bill. There was a great pressure of business and but the vote agreeing to the conference re is none that surpasses the "Excelsior." For its medical qualities it is all that is claimed for it, and as a refreshing and pleasant beverage it has a decided popularity with my customers. The apparatus with little attention works perfectly satisfied.

Before the vote was announced Mr. Hale asked unanimous consent to present the conference report on the deficiency bill, but Mr. Platt, who was not in the most genial humor, objected to any interruption of the roll call. It went on to the close, and the result was highly satisfactory to Mr. Platt and other friends of the copyright measure. The further conference report on the deficiency bill, but Mr. Platt, who was not in the most genial humor, objected to any interruption of the roll call. UNLOCKS THE PFOBLEM. r, W. Patton Endorses "For Asheville's" Ticket.

EDITOR THE CITIZEN:-It is to be regretted that your correspondent of yesterday, "For Asheville," was by modesty revented giving his name, because to im belongs the honor of making the suggestion which unlocks the problem of who shall be our next mayor and alder I endorse most heartily: navor, Thos. D. Johnston. For aldermen, John W. Starnes, W. T. Revnolds, M. J. Bearden, James M. Westall. I concur in the opinion that it is the duty of these gentlemento serve if elected, and I go further and urge each to announce now that he will accept the position to which I believe he will surely be clected. This will put at rest once for all a vexed question, which, while open, causes irritation and uncertainty. I believe that such a ticket will meet with no opposition. Asheville will be united and ready to go forward with every conserv ative measure for improvement of streets, extension of water works, increase of school facilities, and every other idea that commends itself to her citizens.

By this means we will eliminate from the proposed charter amendment every discussion not perfectly germane to its merits. We will feel no doubt about the wise and economical expenditure of what-ever appropriation is made. With this ever appropriation is made. With this ticket I endorse your views that we need no advisory board. We will all give at-tention to the late amendment as soon is it is published, and unless it has some radical defect, which I by no means expect, it will receive unanimous consent of the qualified voters. Let us all pray "So mote it be,

Therefore, gentlemen, reply to-morrow, that each of you will accept the position o which you will be elected.
