A Gigantic Stock.

Superlative quality of goods.

An unusual attraction, and Specially Low Prices.

WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY & FRIDAY

are our opening days. We will exhibit Fifty Thousand Dollars' worth of the choicest goods that money and well trained judgment could procure. Encouraged by the very liberal patronage of visitors as well as residents during the year just passed, we determined to put in a stock which in quantity and quality would compare with anything in the larger cities. Being thorough, trained dry goods men, with ample resources, we acknowledge no superiors in our line anywhere.

Millinery department

In charge of Miss Dawson, who was the leading trimmer and designer for years in the large and well known house of Joel Gutman, Baltimore, ably assisted by other artists in that line. Will display a rare collection of French Pattern Hats and the very latest shapes in untrimmed Goods, Novelties in Trimmings, Laces, Flowers, and Feathers. Miss Dawson, having attended all the leading openings in New York and Baltimore will be able to give the correct information in regard to "headgear" for the coming season.

Our Dress Goods, being a specialty of our house the collection is unusually large. All the new weaves and colorings are represented here. Trimmings and Lacings to match each shade. Our Linens and White Goods' department is immense and a small sized store in itself—enough stuff to furnish all the hotels in Western North Carolina, the Kenilworth Inn included. Kid Gloves, Hosiery and Notions complete in every detail. All Gloves warranted to fit and neither rip nor tear; an immense line in all the new shades—buttoned, lacing or Musqaten, dress or undressed, long or short. A complete stock throughout. Space prevents further comment, but will say that it will repay all to call, as there will be unusually low prices for opening days. Many things at half price, which cannot be bought again from us this season at the same money.

Don't forget the dates—

WERE YOU NOT FOOLED?

If you were you are in good company.

Some of the Best Citizens Furnish Fun for Their Friends and, by This Publication, the Public Generally.

This is the first of April. But such a statement at this time is perhaps unnecessary, for many of Asheville's prominent people have on their faces to-day a look that bears testimony to the fact of their having found out what the above paragraph imparts before THE CITIZEN lays it before the all-wise eager public.

The April joker was out in his glory early in the morning, anxious and gleeful in his expectation of being able to get some one with heavier thoughts than he "on a string."

That he succeeded in a majority of cases goes without announcing. Just why and where and how all the fooled ones caught cannot be found out, but THE CITIZEN has got on to several who drew blanks in the All Fools' lottery, and takes pleasure in presenting the information for the benefit of those who expect to be in it next year.

J. J. Mackey, the always correct register, received through the mail this morning a great big official looking envelope, and of course he thought it was in some way connected with the little trouble the register thought he had got into several weeks ago.

Because the young lady under eighteen, Mr. Mackey heaved a 27-pound sigh of relief on opening the envelope and finding "April 1" written on a piece of otherwise blank paper.

Geo. S. Powell, president of the Asheville Loan, construction and improvement company, smiled when the postman gave him a bundle of letters. Picking out a very bulky one, he looked back in his easy chair, and proceeded to open it. It was simply a package of blank paper, and in one corner of the top sheet was written, "Complaints of 'Objector' April 1." It took the combined efforts of partner Snider and the clerks in the store to restore Mr. Powell to his usual state.

Judge Aston, who prides himself on his size as well as his bustling insurance abilities, smiled when he looked through his mail and saw an envelope marked "very important." This was a letter which changed to one of cheerfulness when he opened it (the letter, not the smile) and saw "Use Blank's Anti-Fat—April 1."

The judge now tries to convince inquirers that he did not regret the mistake.

Walter B. Gwyn, president of the Sunset mountain land company, who hobbled with Jay Gould a good deal during the Wizard's visit to Asheville, saw the postman, and he found, among other mail, a letter postmarked New York and with "Return to Jay Gould" not called for, etc. But Mr. Gwyn was too busy for the joke. He thought he knew a thing or two about April fools and left the letter alone. This afternoon, however, curiosity got the better of him, and opening the letter found that it was one of considerable importance from the great Jay, himself. But Mr. Gwyn wasn't fooled, oh no!

D. C. Waddell went to THE CITIZEN early in the morning. He was busy thinking about the leaders on court place and had a downward cast to his eyes. His face suddenly brightened when immediately in front of the office and he quickly stooped. Last then, however, the small boy who worked the string from across the street gave a jerk and Mr. Waddell's necked head down. He looked at the string and saw that it was an apronous laugh went up from the passers by. The dignified banker forgot to go to the postoffice.

"Chief of Police Baird, familiarly called 'Boss Baird,' was in a trap in great style. Janitor Gudgeon, of the city hall, came running up to the chief this morning and told him that half a dozen candidates for a best joke in Asheville had broken out a window in the lockup and made their escape. The chief started in a stride to the 'jug,' and had gone half way to the scene when he was reminded of the day of the month. He didn't get angry. He looked at the matter in the light of a philosopher, simply saying: "By gee, I'll tell you fellows, he caught me that time, sure, didn't he?" And every body agreed with him.

The noble conductor on the Camp-Patton street car made an April fool of himself. On a trip out he spied a very neat package lying in the street near the corner of Oak and College. Up went his hand to the bell cord, and the motor in obedience stopped off the car. The gallant conductor got off and picked up the package. He carefully unwrapped three or four folds and was busy getting into the heart of the package when a chorus of yells assailed his ears, coming from a group of boys who had been watching the sport from Hon. H. A. Gudgeon's yard. Angry and disgusted he flung the package into the street and signaled the motor to go ahead. It is feared he will resign.

Nor was Mayor Blanton forgotten. Among his letters he found one daintily tied up with a bit of blue ribbon, and addressed to "The Hon. J. H. Blanton." Breaking the seal he discovered a beautiful little book with a handsomely embossed cover and these words engraved thereon: "We, true democrats, urge you to enter the contest for mayor and promise to stick to you to the last. For names see inside." Eagerly the mayor turned the leaf, when he beheld "April 1." It was an unkind cut, but his honor laughed it off, remarking that as an April fool he was in it, by a large majority.

Plum Levi, the colored barber, whose chief reputation lies in the fact that he shaved Hill Nye, received a copy and delusive April fool, written by Bill himself. It was so good Plum kept it to himself and no consideration would cause him to divulge the character of it. But Plum was fooled.

And so it went all around the ring. Men joked who never joked before, and it might as well be said, that some who joked will joke no more.

The cotton pie and the sawdust biscuit were employed to catch their share of "fools," and of course furnished lots of fun. But it is noticeable that the person fooled wouldn't admit the fact, and would simply remark, "Humph! I knew all the time what it was but wanted to see you laugh." Of course they laughed. A word or two of the origin of All Fools' day would perhaps not be amiss. THE CITIZEN is informed on good authority that so long ago as the time of Pharaoh the days were devoted to practical joking. Certain it is that Buncombe has been observing it for quite a while. One of the county's oldest inhabitants is sure he heard Benedict Arnold "catch" George Washington in the regular April way, while crossing the French Broad in one of Fulton's steamboats. That was all long before the new amendment to the city charter was drafted and, of course, on account of the length, was omitted in the bill.

Nevertheless, Edgar William, who is now Nye, will soon adjust this matter of the origin of All Fools' day, and until then let all run along smoothly, and be assured that you cannot be an April fool again for a year.

W. W. BARNARD, Treasurer. Board of Directors:—Richmond Pearson, J. E. Rankin, T. H. Cobb, J. S. Adams, Geo. S. Powell.

The company owns about six hundred acres of the finest building and manufacturing sites in the city. This has been beautifully laid out into lots, maps of which can be had on application. Special inducements are being offered to a limited number of persons who will erect first-class residences at once. The demand for this property has been unprecedented in the history of Asheville real estate, and its success as the popular residence part of the city has already been assured.

This property is now being laid out with broad avenues, with paved gutters and shade trees on each side. Water, sewer and electric street railways running through the property. Park and lake sites have been left at convenient distances through the property and a complete water and sewer plan has been adopted so as to give the very best sanitary results. Some of the views to be had from points on this property are Unsurpassed in Western North Carolina, and that almost means the world.

The property is reached from the center of Asheville by the best grades leading out of the city. The street car line just decided on, and running out Haywood, Academy and Mulberry streets, a distance of one and a half miles, has a maximum grade of seven per cent., and that for only about four hundred feet.

So, taken altogether, there are probably no investments in the South that promise better returns than these.
