Mr. Hartshorne's Letter.

With regard to Mr. Hurtshorne's let ter in this issue THE UTIDES has to sur that it testified only to what it had seen when stating that Mr. Smax was an "officious nartizan." When Ewart and Crawford spoke at. Cherokee during the last congressional convass. Mr. Spray met Mr. Ewart at the depot in his ownprivate buggy, with his horses decked out with waving flogs, and drove him to Cherokee, a distance of ten miles. Mr. Spray's band was out on the arrival o Mr. Ewart, and met him with a burst o music. Mr. Ewart was the guest of Mr Spray during the day and night. Mr. Spray was the busiest man at Cherokee that day, and every movement, every act betokened the liveliest interest in Mr-Ewart's success. The next day Mr. Ewart was driven back to Charleston by Mr. Spray, with the same banners fly ing. This may not have been intended for partisanry, by Mr. Spray. In his mnocence he may have intended it only as a necessary mark of respect to a prominent man, but, the fact remains, intentionally or unintentionally, Mr. Spray was an "officious partisan" that day, and THE CITIZEN, with all due respect to Mr. Hartshorne, and giving the most charitable interpretation possible to Mr. Spray's action, adheres to the opinion that a man who is unable to distinguish between being an officious partisan aud exercising the right of every citizen to vote and express his political convictions, is unfitted for such a position as Mr. Spray now fills.
