

Advertising

It is said will sell anything, this is true in a measure; but for staying qualities, merit is the test. Extensive advertising may sell anything where it is new or unknown, but after it comes into general use, it is judged according to its worth. The continued and steady growth of Swift's Specific is the best evidence of its excellence. It is most popular where it is best known. Every bottle sold, sells ten others. Every one that takes it becomes its friend, and recommends it to their acquaintances.

AN AMERICAN STEAMSHIP LINE.

Something About the Famous Steamers That Flourished Before the War.

The most important American rival which foreign corporations have encountered in transatlantic steam navigation was the famous Collins line. Mr. E. K. Collins had grown up in the freight and passenger business between New York and Liverpool, and in 1847 he began to interest New York merchants in a plan to establish a new steamship line. Two years later a company which he had organized launched four vessels—the Atlantic, Pacific, Arctic and Baltic.

They were liberally subsidized, the government paying the company $558,000 yearly for carrying the mails; conditions imposed being that the vessels should make twenty-six voyages every year, and that the passage from port to port should be better in point of time than that made by the Cunarders. The Collins line met the conditions successfully, its vessels making westward trips that averaged eleven days, ten hours and twenty-one minutes, compared with twelve days, nineteen hours and twenty-six minutes by the British steamships.

The vessels of the Collins line cost upward of $700,000 each. This was a great deal of money to put into a steamship in those days, and as the largest of the fleet was considerably smaller than the smallest of the steamships that now ply between New York and European ports, there was naturally a good percentage of cost in the appointments for the comfort of the passengers. Many features that have since come to be regarded as indispensable on board ship were introduced by the Collins vessels.

Among them none attracted more comment when the Atlantic arrived at Liverpool, at the end of her first voyage, May 10, 1849, than the barber shop. English visitors to the vessel, as she lay at anchor in the Mersey, saw for the first time the comfortable chair, with its movable back rest and foot rest, in which Americans are accustomed to recline while undergoing shaving. Another novelty was a smoking room in a house on the afterpart of the deck—John H. Gould in Sermons.

In Two Countries.

In America my neighbor can own a piece of land, building his house, and, after long years, build on his land in such a way as to take the light away from every window in my house which overlooks his lot. In England, after a man has had the interrupted use of light and air for sixty years he acquires an easement, which is one of Judge Blackstone's "incorporeal hereditaments," and this has to be respected by the owner of adjacent land, who, according to English law, must so enjoy his own rights and property as not to interfere with the established right and property of others.

In England if my neighbor sees me building a house with windows overlooking his property, and in such a manner as to tend to deprive him from building himself at some future time, he at once sets to work to put up an obstruction against my windows, which forces me to come to terms with him. This may be arranged by payment of a small, in fact, entirely nominal, annual rent of a few cents in recognition of his rights, and this will prevent my acquiring an easement over his land. Which of the two systems is the more equitable I will not venture an opinion, but leave the reader to judge.—Detroit News.

Serving Early Writs.

It was not the easiest thing in the world to bring manufacturers to justice in the early administration of the law in Virginia, as the following returns, made to executions, will illustrate. The extract is from the "History of Augusta County."

"In the case of Johnson vs. Brown 1751. Not executed by reason there is no road to the place where he (Brown) lives."

Again: "Not executed by reason of excess of weather."

"November, 1752—Not executed by reason of an ax (the ax being in the hands of defendant, applied, no doubt, to cleave the officer's skull."

"Not executed because the defendant's horse was faster than mine."

"Enslin vs. Miller—Kept off from Miller with clubs, etc.; Miller not found by Humphrey Marshall."

"Not executed, because the defendant got into deep water—out of my reach."

"November, 1754—Executed on the within, John Warwick, and he is not the man."

"August, 1755—Forty-nine executions returned. Not executed by reason of the disturbance of the Indians."

Electric Car Heaters.

In many places where electric rail ways are in operation the temperature falls so low in winter as to render the cars quite uncomfortable. Why not, under this condition of affairs, devote a portion of the current used to propel the cars to heating them as well? The ordinary car stove is open to so many objections that it is practically precluded from the majority of roads. Electric heaters, however, can be placed under the seats so that a uniform temperature can be given to the entire car. Electric heaters have been made and have met with some adoption. Whether they would prove too expensive for the purpose is a question yet to be solved. They certainly, however, offer advantages over any method of car heating yet employed.—New York Telegram.

A New Fat Cure.

St. Agorole—It is the easiest thing in the world. De Maecus—What, to reduce a man's weight? "Yes, to reduce a man's weight. The one thing new—always be punctual."—St. Joseph News.

The Edmunds Sarcasm.

From the New York World. Edmunds was pressing a measure which Conkling hoped would be defeated, although he did not wish to go on record against it.

"The Senator from Vermont," said Mr. Conkling, in closing his remarks in his most expressive manner, "is mistaken—he is fighting a windmill."

"I know it, Mr. President," responded Mr. Edmunds, with the dryness of Vermont air in his voice, and his eyes resting thoughtfully upon the big senator from New York.

A LITTLE HIGH.

That is the way some people like their game. However, few people want even a picture of Asheville that way. Appreciating that fact and ever desirous of saving the people money (while making some for ourselves) THE CITIZEN has purchased the exclusive right to sell the VIEWS of Asheville (which have been sold at $5 each) for a paid-in-advance subscription to THE DAILY CITIZEN for six months, and we will give you a superb picture of Asheville FREE.

That's a telling offer—or ought to be. You get THE CITIZEN at the usual rate and the picture besides, and we get the interest on your $3 and the pleasure that comes of being liberal. If you want extra copies of THE PICTURE to send away that matter can probably be arranged at the business office of THE CITIZEN. But first we must have the paid-in-advance subscription of $3. That's fair.

N. B.—You can take your choice of the pictures, those on thin or those on thick paper. The former are best to send away; the latter are the best to frame. THE CITIZEN.
