-Charlotte News, Saturday: Claude Worly, an 18-year-old white boy, who lived at Burford, on the Air Line road, was killed by the vestibule train which reached Charlotte at 9 o'clock Friday night. The accident occurred near Buford Station. The train was running fifty miles an hour. The boy was seen stand-ing ahead by the side of the track, and when the engine was within fifteen feet of him he tried to leap across the track. He was a lew seconds too late, for the engine struck him and sent his body flying through the air. The dead body of the boy landed in a field distant 140 feet from he track, by actual measurement.

School committees for the various districts will be appointed by the county board of education, on the first Monday in September next. This is a matter of very great importance. The success of every great importance are the success of every great importance are the success of every great importance. The success of every school depends largely spon having an intelligent working committee, and therefore every district is requested to send up to the board the names of such men for appointment.
