I have recently returned from attendance upon the annual convention of the after seclusion in the depths of the forest wilderness. Here Count Zinzerdorf, in North Carolina Press Association at Winston, full of the impression of pleas the year 1753, pitched his tents for away from any other colony of the whites; and ant experiences and instructive observahere, in that year, was built the first church, in which Christian worship was held in upper North Carolina. The church, almost the only original relic of tions, As I attended more in the capacity of a guest of the association; and as, moreover, I was unavoidably detained from participation in the proearly days vet remaining, stands much as it appeared one hundred and thirty-eight years ago, a long, low building, with massive walls of stone, surmounted by a beliry in the centre of the roof. The ceedings of the first day, and from the elegant entertainment of the night of that day at the Salem Female college, I building is divided into two parts, one leave it to my brethren of the press to illustrate that period in their most ornate and enthusiastic words; for they were and enthusiastic words; for they were that period in their most ornate to the pastor and his family, and it to the betterm that been so divided and occupied since its tion of things. all wrought to the highest pitch of enearliest day. A Humble Hanger On. I shall connue myself to things outside of Winston Salem; yet things vitally instrumental in the striking development so apparent all around. These things are at once cause and effect, reciprocal action so inter-dependent in their motions as to be inseparable in their influence

It is well known that Winston owes its business being to the construction o the Northwestern North Carolina rail road. It had previously existed a very One Price System. humble hanger on upon the outskirts of the venerable old town of Salem; and as the county seat of Forsyth county, has the county seat of Forsyth county, had only that significance and nothing more. But the extension of that road was into the very heart of the tobacco region of long established repute. Surry, Stokes. Rockingham, Forsyth, with lands lying along the Dan, the Yadkin and their numerous tributaries had every since the merous tributaries, had, ever since their settlement, been famous for their produc tiveness and particularly for the quantity and excellence of their tobacco. But their markets were distant. The completion of the road to Winston brought a market without delay. A Delightful Excursion. It may be said in justice to the original road, that its managers did not propose to restrain Winston in its purpose to reach out for more business. On the ontrary, the management of the K. & O. road has built that splendid line to Wilkesboro, and another to Mocksville, with view to still farther extension. What may be called the rival road is the Roanoke and Southern, from Roanoke, Va., to Winston, a north and south line. or nearly so, of 121 miles in length, of which about 70 miles out from Winston is in use and the whole line will be finished by the first of November. On that the traffic is already so great as to pay an excess of $5,000 per month over expenses. On this road the association was given a delightful excursion as Mayo's given a delightful excursion as Mayo's river on the north side of the Dan, a dis-tance of 35 miles, the road passing over a fertile country, gently rolling, until the waters of Town Fork, a tributary of the Dan were reached, and then it enters the Dan river coal basin, an old sea bed, ab-solutely level, exceedingly rich. This idea has had splendid illustration in the construction by the Richmond and and Danville system of the line from Winston to Wikeshoro, a distance of seventy five miles, and opening to intercourse the wonderfully rich and surpassingly beau-tiful Yadkin valley. Striking into this valley twenty-four miles northwest of Winston, and then following it up con-tinuously for fifty-six miles, the dominant feeling was that of amazement, mixed with indignation that in an age of progress like this so much that was valuable Chas.
