Save the Forests.

Harlan P. Kelsey, of Linville, N. C., writes a timely and thoughtful article in The Woodsman, a new publication just started at Evergreen, Alabama.

Mr. Kelscy calls attention to the fact that the southern forests, one of the noblest heritages bestowed by nature upon this favored land are being ruthlessly destroved by axe and flames, and that in a few years their value will be totally destroyed.

Another fact to which Mr. Kelsey calls the south is owned by non-residents, by men from the north and northwest who have witnessed the destruction of the forests in their own section, and know. full well their value. And in very many not understand its value.

The people of Western North Carolina Ican." deemed a cumbrance upon the land, and their destruction looked upon as an advantage instead of a calamity.

There can be no doubt of the importance of creating a public sentiment in Western North Carolina in favor of preserving the forests. Laws should be chacted and enforced making the punishment severe for firing the woods, as is habitually done in the fall of the year in order that a few chestnuts may be gatherea.

The watchfulness displayed by Mr. Vanderbilt in preserving his forests from destruction is doing much to teach the people that there is value in trees, and a few simple laws, fearlessly enforced, will soon cause the owners of these splendid tracts of mountain timber land to realize that they constitute the main glory and beauty, to say nothing of the wealth, o this trans-montaine country.

Mr. Williams is an ardent hunter and sportsman generally, and in this article he portrays the delights of fox chasing with the salary of the iron miner, so that it might not only be as large as that paid the skill of a master. The illustrations are from drawings by Mr. Williams, and are true to life and most creditable. Now, how does it operate? The miner gets 33 1-3 cents per ton for his work, and the entire tariff of 75 cents per ton goes to the mine owners, and the miner ion't benefited a cent.

"It takes three tons of iron ore to produce one ton of pig from. That ton of pig from when produced is worth to the owner 86.72. HARRIBON AND BLAINE.

A Rupture Between Them Ru mored to be Imminent.

Washington telegram to Baltimore Sun. The report is persistently circulated tonight that Mr. Blaine's sudden departure from the cabinet meeting today and, his failure to attend the state dinner tonight is the result of a direct conflict of opinion between the President and the Secretary of state growing out of the Chilian situation. The fact is noted that Mr. Blame did not send his regrets to the White House until the hour set for the dinner had arrived, in face of the fact that he assured his friends that he For fevers, c was not ill.
