A filthy "joke" called forth the greatest applause of the republican convention. There were some clean men there who should have denounced the nastiness, but they evidently thought they were in a hopeless minority.

Ir. J. M. Moody's wholesale slander against the intelligent people of Haywood county does not cost the republican party several hundred votes in that county, then THE CITIZEN will be inclined to believe that Moody can sometimes tell the truth.

It is declared in several newspaper letters from Raleigh that there is no doubt that Harry Skinner has come out for the third party flat footed. Well, that is his privilege; there is nothing in the code against such action. But it is astonishing just the same.

When W. M. Everts returned from Garfield's funeral his account of the ceremony included a statement that "no one spoke to Rutherford B. Hayes except a policeman, and he told him to keep off the grass." We are reminded of this by the heavy part taken by the colored brother in the late republican convention. He was allowed to do nothing but ring the court house bell, and, once during the exercises, he rang the wrong one at that.

As to the chickens in the market building, the holders of stalls will consult their own interests if they remove them forthwith. They are offensive, and it is not possible that they should be otherwise. They do not draw trade, but rather keep it away. It should be possible to have the coops just outside the market building where they would be as accessible as at present, and where they would not detract so seriously as they now do from the appearance and flavor of what promises to be one of the most attractive spots in Asheville.

The interview with Hon. H. G. Ewart published in THE CITIZEN today, shows the attitude of the better class of republicans throughout the south with reference to the force bill. Mr. Ewart was the republican member from this district in the 51st congress, and is thoroughly familiar with the feelings of the leaders of the republican party on this measure. Mr. Ewart shows conclusively by the forcible language of his interview that he cannot, as a white man and a native of the south, give any aid or encouragement to any party or set of men who would humiliate his section and people.

BACKWARD OR FORWARD?
The business men of Asheville should ponder the causes of the removal of the Asheville shoe company and decide whether this city is to go backward or forward in the matter of securing and keeping manufacturing establishments.

A Wild South.
Some of the republicans say they thought J. M. Moody was drunk when he delivered his speech in the court house in Asheville on Wednesday before the republican convention. THE CITIZEN is prepared to say of its own knowledge that Moody was not drunk. Every utterance he made was in cold blood. When he said, "Show me a democratic precinct in my own county of Haywood and I will show you a precinct where the ignorance is greater than in the republican precincts," he meant every word he said, and it was intended as an insult to every intelligent democrat of Haywood county. Moody does not have to get drunk to say things that are untrue, but in his sober and most lucid moments such statements roll from him with a recklessness that is shameful. Moody carries about with him the most unreliable mouth to be found in Western North Carolina.

WAGES AND PROTECTION.
How any one could think that a man could manufacture goods in this country as cheap as they can in England, and at the same time pay twice as much for their labor, I cannot tell. Certainly there is no reason why any man could make a yard of calico or cloth of any kind cheaper in this country than it can be made in England. I have never heard of any one even trying to give a reason for such an absurd proposition.—Zeno Smith in The Lyceum.

Our Road Cutting Machines.
Our dirt roads might be better than they are but for the fact that our vehicles are a highly-developed style of cutting machines. The narrow tires of the wheels which follow each other exactly in the same track cut a groove in the road bed, whereas the use of wider tires, with the hind wheels farther apart than the front wheels, makes a heavily loaded wagon a roller and packer of the highway rather than a destructive rut cutter. Laws cannot easily change this without making useless all the present wagon and carriage stock. Custom must make the change gradually. Let the road improvement enthusiasts set the example by introducing wide non-tracking vehicles.

The Savagery of War.
From the Springfield Republican.
We read of great battles, atrocious massacres and desperate riots with scarcely a shudder, yet the spectacle of a fool boy strung up by the thumbstrokes as a something beyond the pale of christian civilization. The lams case was needed, it seems, to impress us with the essential and irredeemable savagery of all war, however refined.

That's What.

year by thousands while few of our working people here seek homes in foreign lands."
The crowded countries of the old world send their surplus population to the new countries where land is plenty. Look at the Australian colonies, some with a free trade, others with a protective policy in force: Englishmen, Scotchmen and Irishmen have flocked thither by thousands, creating a high degree of prosperity. If the United States should ever become as overcrowded as some of the European countries, we should see our citizens leaving by the ship load, provided there was a great new country to go to and provided it offered competitive freedom of thought and action.

THE WATER WITCH SPEAKS.
"Come, weary man, sit and cool your fevered brow; for I perceive that you are a Christian man and I would fain talk to you."

The sound came from the air as THE CITIZEN walked through court square yesterday evening at dusk. It required only a moment, however, to discover the speaker. It was the lightly clad lady who graces the top of the fountain, and who has for a year past had nothing to do but stand and view the hurrying crowds. The CITIZEN tipped its hat to the fair dame, took a seat and bade her begin her communications.
"Now, in the first place," she began to rattle off, woman-like, scarcely waiting for breath, "you deserve and shall have my sincerest thanks and all praise for your kicking in season and out, that the fountain should be allowed to play. Good old Jim Logg (you see I know them all by name) came around this morning and turned on the water. O what deliciousness! Really, now, don't you know, it was to me as refreshing and delightful as if I had been fanned by the wings of angels. As the water leaped high above me and descended in spray upon my erstwhile scorched and parched neck, I felt just as though nothing would do me half so much good as to give one more drink of that delicious, a la Comanche, yell. Sure enough. But, 'tis not what we always would like to do that does us the most good, as our newly located philosopher would remark.

"Those who have never passed through my experience can never know the sorrow and anguish I suffered during our dry weather. Take for instance Gala Week. There was some rain, but rain does not begin to soothe me as the pure good Swannanoa water does—but don't speak of this to A. J. Hunt. During the same hot weather here I have stood clad in my mantle of charity, with nothing to do but grin and bear it. O it was horrowing. Water, water everywhere, but not a drop for me! Many's the time when kind hearted and sympathetic passers-by have stopped to drop a word of pity for me, doomed as I was to do without water for a period. The fact is, it was more like a paragraph than a plain period. How well do I remember Sheriff Reynolds' words as he surveyed me from head to foot: 'Old girl I would be glad to give you a drink, but the fact of the business is, I've got nothing to do with the city water.' And Mayor Blanton, as he gazed upon me with admiring eyes, would tell me that he would tell the board about it—but if he did nothing ever came of it.

"But all this is ended now. The water is turned on and I am happy. Nothing to do but stand here and listen to the 'chit-chat' splash of the silvery spillovers. Goodbye, CITIZEN, come over and talk with me again. You may tell everybody I'll be in it for Centennial Week."

And the water witch with a contented sigh wrapped her mantle round her and refused to talk further.

NORTH CAROLINA JOTTINGS.

The following was sent to the Winston Sentinel Tuesday for publication:
"Too much has been said in regard to Peter DeGraff (the murderer) on the streets and through our papers in order to find out if DeGraff is in the corporate limits of Winston we do hereby challenge him to mortal combat at any time or place he may select. One of his friends may accompany him with shot guns. J. H. Vaughan, L. S. Matlock.

A boy six years of age fell out of an apple-tree in Bertie county Tuesday and struck a stone, which split his skull open and he died in a few minutes.

A TOUGH NOMINEE.
And Honest Southerners Are Asked to Vote for Him.
From the Atlanta Journal.
The people's party could hardly have put up a tougher individual as their candidate for president than the man they chose.

That Weaver was a desperate political adventurer, a demagogue of the lowest type, a villain of the democratic party and a slaver of the south, must have been known to the convention which nominated him.
But it appears that in addition to this he was one of the most tyrannical of the military satraps who were set up over the people of the south just after the war. The people who had the misfortune to live under Weaver's bayonet rule have a lively recollection of him, as the following from the Giles County Democrat, published at Pulaski, Tenn., will show.

"General Weaver, while in command at Pulaski in January, 1864, issued an order to Charles C. Abernethy, John H. Newbill, Robert Rhodes and others that they pay into his hands $10,000 for the maintenance of refugees, meaning negroes and renegades from Alabama. This order was accompanied by a threat that if the money was not paid, they and their families would be sent south and their property given to the refugees. All of the parties are dead now, and were over sixty years old when the order was issued. Can any southerner vote for such a heartless wretch?"

Letters which have been received in town from reputable citizens of Pulaski declare that these charges are true, and state furthermore that the refugees for whom this money was ostensibly collected never received a cent of it. They say that Weaver was distinguished for his acts of brutality and tyranny, and was heartily hated by the people in his military district.

TO SPLIT THE DEMOCRATIC VOTE.

Chairman Hayes of the republican committee, has received a letter from Secretary Foster, in which the latter expresses the desire that if anything can be done in the way of having an understanding between the third party and the republicans so as to split the democratic party it shall be done.

The democrats of Cumberland are bent on carrying it by one thousand majority. The Fayetteville democrats are very aggressive, and a vigorous campaign paper is to be published under the auspices of the young men's democratic club there.

The democrats of Granville county have unanimously nominated Benj. P. Thorpe and A. A. Hicks for the lower house of the legislature. The senatorial candidates will be nominated at a joint convention with Person August 24.

At the Alexander democratic convention Tuesday F. Marblek was renominated for the house by acclamation.

The alliance membership in Mecklenburg county has shrunk from 1,100 two years ago to 400 now, and the Charlotte Observer repeats what it has said heretofore that the people's party will bring such pressure to bear upon those who remain that they will be compelled to quit either the alliance or the democratic party.

From One Who Knows.

From the republican Raleigh Signal.
It is now understood that this same man Hayes and his same gang of negroes and whites intend to call a state convention and nominate a state ticket. The election of such a ticket would mean negro rule, negro domination and negro equality for the state of North Carolina in every department of the government.

Col. Skinner Gone Over.

From the Raleigh News and Observer.
A letter received Monday from Greenville announces that at the Third party convention of Pitt county held on Saturday, Mr. Harry Skinner made a speech in which he committed himself and turned the bridges behind him in the language of our correspondent. Mr. C. A. Move did likewise.

Disqualified Negroes.

From the Wilmington Messenger.
Harrison has been caught. The Chinese exclusion bill contained a clause disqualifying negroes in certain cases to testify. He knew the clause was in it. It gives offense and now he is trying to excuse his act by saying he had been assured it could not be enforced.
