But the Fish Got Too Near the Water and Was Drowned. The experiments of men of science furnish much amusement to the wits, who are not particularly interested in the slow, minute and sometimes apparently insignificant investigations by means of which important physical facts are learned. It is interesting to know that if we cut off the tails of forty successive generations of mice at their birth not one mouse even in the fortieth generation will be born without a tail. But when the man of science was engaged in cutting off the baby mice's tail all the world laughed at him. The slow experiments to test the possibility that by degrees an animal may change its habitat-a land animal taking to the water, and so on-are satirized in an amusing way in a Berlin newspaper. Herr Professor Schaffkopf, the emi-nent biologist, has met with a serious bereavement in the course of his experiments relative to the changes of habitat made by animals. Some time ago he captured a live herring. He took the fish home and kept it in a large vat of salt water. Every morning the professor dipped out of this vat half a teaspoonful of salt water and replaced it with an equal amount of fresh. His purpose was to accustom the fish gradually to live in fresh water instead of salt.

The herring lived on, and passed his days in the best of spirits. In the course of time the water in the tank was rendered completely fresh. Not a grain of salt was left in it. And the herring remained cheerful and in good health. Next he began to deprive the fish, lit tle by little, of the fresh water element in which he lived. In this also he was successful, and after a time the herzing gamboled around in a perfectly dry tank. The professor congratulated himself that another transformation had been accomplished. He had a land herring at last. The professor put the fish in a birdage, and the intelligent creature uttered plaintive little cries of satisfac-tion and affection when the professor, in transferring him, stroked him caress-ing'v on the back. Nice little messes of food were given the fish, but the professor noticed the next day that some thing seemed to be the matter with his pet. He semed to desire something very much. The professor meditated.

"Really," he exclaimed presently, "I have it. I had forgotten to give the He brought a dish of water, put it in Negative Profit. A Cass avenue boarding house lady was smiling all over at market the other morning.

"What pleases you so?" asked another with a basket on her arm. "I'm just $150 ahead," was the cheerful reply.

"No, you don't say?" This with the usual tone of envy any species of hu-manity falls into when it hears of a bit of good luck to any of its kind. "How did it happen?" "You know that Cleveland fellow who came to my house a month ago and engaged board for six months at thirty oil can, and I could take it and oil my dollars a month?

Henry Irving, the famous actor, whose face has, through advertisement and illustration, become familiar to many people, was one day at a seaside resort when he noticed a little girl looking at him fixedly.

"Well, my dear," said he, "do you know who I am?"

"Yes, sir," was the shy answer.

"Well, who am I, then?" "You are one of Reacham's pills." And, indeed, his face had figured in an advertisement of the nostrum.-Youth's Companion.

He sat in one of the front pews in church with a face like a little angel and wore that sweet, precocious look of knowledge beyond his years that always makes one think of a premature heaven.
