Welcome Home.

The author of "Round the Compass in Australia" had put up for the night with the manager of a stock farm. It was a time of drought, and the evening passed amid stories of frightful suffering and losses. The manager thought it would be hardly possible to hold out a week longer. "Shady Jack's well is done," he said, "and the Frenchman's tank is empty." His wife tried to encourage him.

"Hope for the best," she said. "My oath!" answered the manager, "but the best things never come off."

"Yes, Dick," responded his wife, "but the worst things never come off."

Night after night this man had walked the room, alternating between prayers and curses, as each day's record was another thousand sheep dead, another empty well, until at last he had come to this grim contrage of despair.

"I shouldn't care so much," he said to the traveler, "but then my wife, my girls in there!"

He drew his sleeves across his eyes and bowed his head on the table. For ten minutes he sat there so. Then the visitor saw him raise his head, start, spring to his feet and listen with strained attention. What was that? Something pinged on the corrugated roof overhead. "Rain, rain, rain!" he shouted as he rushed outside and fell on his knees with his hands stretched out toward the clouded sky.

"Thank God! Thank God! Wife! Girls! Mary! Rain!"

Even so. The flood gates of the sky were opened, and before morning the visitor was helping to put up a dyke on one side of the house. The march of destruction was staid.

Hunting Zebras.

After crossing the usual heated yellow plains, looking for all the world like an expanse of over parched hayfields and dotted here and there with droves of springbok, we outspurred two and so rode back again across the hot, weary plain for camp. We had not long quitted the forest before we sighted a good troop of Burchell's zebra, feeding quietly. We spread out in line and rode up to them.

The troop, which consisted mostly of mares with a yearling foal or two, was gathered by an old stallion, who stood sentinel nearest to us with his head up. Presently, turning half round, he gave some sort of signal and the rest of the band galloped briskly off, curvetting and capering as they ran. After moving a few hundred yards the troop suddenly wheeled round in line to have a good look at us again.

These tactics of the zebras were displayed in a retreat of some miles, the old stallion always covering the rear, until the troop, outflanked by Dove, shot off to the right and my chance came. I galloped hard to intercept them, and as they stood for a minute on seeing me in the line of flight, got a steady shot at 200 yards.

The bullet clapped as if on a horn door, and as the troop continued their flight I saw one zebra turn away alone. Presently she stood again. It was soon within sixty yards, and with another bullet finished her. She proved to be fine mare in beautiful coat, and her head and skin now decorate a room at home.—Longman's Magazine.

A Story of Millionaire Lick.

James Lick, of San Francisco, was an unlovable millionaire, of whom a curious story is told. When a poor youth in Pennsylvania he was rejected by the daughter of a wealthy miller on account of his poverty. He vowed at that time that he would some day build a mill that would far surpass that of his sweetheart's father. Many years later he kept his vow and constructed at San Jose a mill of highly polished California wood valued at $300,000. During his lifetime Mr. Lick had few friends and apparently cared for none. He lived plainly and was seen very little in public. The larger part of his fortune was left to charities and public institutions, one notable bequest being the sum of $60,000 for the erection of a statue to Key, the author of the "Star Spangled Banner."

While many institutions profited by Mr. Lick's posthumous gifts, his most famous achievement was the establishment of the Lick observatory on Mount Hamilton, under the management of the University of California. Mr. Lick's body was placed in 1887 under the base of the pier sustaining the great telescope.—New York World.

The Value of Thought.

It is hardly necessary to say that all men need to "swing" the moral compass from time to time and to take their bearings in the sea of life. The advice is as true as it is conventional. Upon the use of thinking for such purposes we shall not, then, dwell. We may, however, point out, as a means of strengthening and invigorating the mind in a secular and worldly sense, the habit of thinking is of the greatest possible value.

The minds of those who dread thinking, as if it were a penance, become like the bodies of those fed solely on spoon meat—soft and unable to stand the slightest strain. Reading, as one ordinarily reads, is like swallowing poison, thinking, like eating solid food. The man who trains his mental powers by meditation and by following outlines of thought obtains an intellectual instrument a hundred times more powerful than he who is content never to think seriously and consecutively.—London Spectator.

The Khan of Khiva in Europe.

The Khan of Khiva, Lyeid Mohammed Rakhim, is now paying a visit to the courts of Europe. He has visited St. Petersburg and will visit Berlin, Vienna, London and Paris. The Khan is in his fifty-third year. He speaks several languages, including the Persian, Arabic and Russian, and his dress is that of a European, although his connections are those of an orthodox Mussulman. He travels in company of his mollak or priest and his own cook, as he eats no food but that prepared according to the rites of his religion. The Khan's annual income is about $300,000. His court is quite modern in its rules and observances.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

An English Court Decision.

Patent medicine advertisers who offer to bank on the virtues of their remedies can be compelled to redeem their promises in the English courts. A test case decided this week by the court of appeals establishes an interesting precedent for America as well. A year ago, when the influenza was prevalent, the Carbolic Smoke Ball company in an advertisement guaranteed immunity from the disease to everybody who used the remedy three times daily for two weeks, £100 to be the forfeit. Mrs. Carrill used the smoke ball faithfully for three weeks and then the epidemic seized her. She sent in her claim for £100, but the money wasn't paid.

All sorts of excuses were offered. It was argued that the offer was a mere device to attract attention, a wager vague in its terms, that there was not a complete contract, because Mrs. Carrill did not notify the company of her acceptance of the offer. All these excuses have been brushed aside by the courts in which Mrs. Carrill brought suit. Lord Justice Bowen, in the decision, likens the case to the offer of a reward for a lost dog. People do not write letters to the advertiser accepting his offer, but they look for the dog. It is safe to say that the decision will work a sweeping modification of the claims made on behalf of the thousand and one emeralds in the public prints.—London Letter.

Officeholders Who Pay Rent.

Governor Leon Abbott, who was informally nominated for senator from New Jersey by Governor Elbert Werts at the Democratic society's dinner in Jersey City a few evenings ago, has a law office on Broadway opposite the postoffice. The sign is on the stairs and on the door, but "Leon Abbott, Lawyer," is very seldom inside. Callers are informed that the governor is in Trenton, or that the governor is in Jersey City, or elsewhere in New York, or in some other part of New Jersey. Many other out of town officeholders have offices on Broadway. Railroad Commissioners Chapman's law office is in the Corbin building. He drops in occasionally, but one cannot find him unless he makes an appointment.

Mayor Boody, of Brooklyn, is a member of a banking firm. He keeps an eye on his business, but does not go to his office regularly. Commissioner of City Works Adams, of Brooklyn, has a law office in this city, and finds time to drop in and pass the time of day with the office boy occasionally. It is estimated that upward of 500 officeholders and others are paying rent for offices which they do not occupy. It's a good thing for the landlords.—New York Advertiser.

The Dedicatory Ode.

Departing from the precedent established when the preliminary arrangements for the recent dedicatory ceremonies were made, it has been decided to pass by the younger aspirants for the laurel wreath and request the veteran Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes to furnish an appropriate ode for the May Day celebration of the directors and of the commissioners that the last member of America's first school of great writers should be paid this compliment.

After Miss Harriet Monroe had been commissioned to prepare the dedicatory ode, and until the young lady had herself disarmed criticism, many harsh things were said of the committee's action. In this case it will be impossible for the most exacting to find fault with the choice. This has been the idea of those who have made the decision. No direct promise has been received from Dr. Holmes, still it is understood that if the request is made he will consent to serve the exposition. It is also said that he will make the ode his final masterpiece.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Remarkable Decision.

The decision of the New York courts the other day in favor of the Godeys, granting them the right to illustrate their new style dresses by printing representations of them on the figures of prominent society women, whose faces are so well reproduced, many harsh but recognize them, will strike terror to the hearts of prominent women in the north and everywhere, but if the law says it's right it's right, and that is all there is to be said about it. If your face appears in a fashion magazine over a dress pattern of a gymnasium suit, a fall dress costume, or anything else the fashion designer cares to represent in the line of women's clothes, all you can do is just "to grin and bear it" and say nothing at all.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

An Amusing Newspaper Blunder.

Edmund Yates writes: "One of the most amusing newspaper blunders I have recently met with occurred in connection with the manifestations at Brussels. On the line of the route followed by the procession stands a marble statue of General Beldier, a Frenchman, who fought at Waterloo and died in 1832. Somebody placed a universal suffrage placard in his hand. Upon this the Paris papers, misled by a telegram, announced that the insurgents had attacked the king's escort, seized General Beldier and forced him to carry a sensational handbill against his will."

Eighty Morors with Fifteen.

Ezekiel Morors, eighty years old, passed through Evergreen, Ala., with a girl fifteen he claims as his wife. They were cloping, they said, from his home near here to Texas because Mr. Morors's children and grandchildren objected to the marriage.—Cor. Philadelphia Record.

CURES RISING .. BREAST ..

"MOTHER'S FRIEND" is the greatest offered child-bearing woman. I have been a midwife for many years and in each case where "Mother's Friend" had been used it accomplished wonders and relieved much suffering. It is the best remedy for rising of the breast known, and worth the price for that alone.

I can tell all expectant mothers if they will use a few bottles of Mother's Friend they will go through the ordeal without any pain and suffering.

Use Mother's Friend before birth of my eighth child. Will, please, send it to me.

NOTICE—By virtue of a deed of trust made to me by J. G. Martin and wife, I have dated the 7th day of May, 1891, to secure a note therein mentioned to G. W. Pack, which said deed of trust is recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Buncombe county in Book 26, at page 11 et. sequitur, of mortgage records, and by reason of the failure of said J. G. Martin to comply with the terms of said deed of trust as therein provided, I will sell to the highest bidder for cash at public auction, at the court house door in Asheville, N. C., on Wednesday, the 4th day of January, 1893, the property described in said deed of trust, situated on the east side of South Main street in Asheville, N. C., which is situate the car shed used by the Asheville Street railway, bounded as follows: Beginning at a stake in the east margin of South Main St. 256 feet S. 14° 44' E. from the N.
