SOMETHING TO READ A Floating Hotel. "I wonder," said George Hayser at the Victoria yesterday. "that there is no scheme for a big floating hotel on the lake during the World's fair, modeled which the Panama inquiry produces in France we must recollect that it involves the whole question of the fitness of the after the one just completed in Maine. and which will soon be sent to Florida waters to cruise or float, whichever term may be right. I saw it before I left Maine. It is an immense and rather unwieldly looking affair, and an outside view is not particularly prepossessing, but its interior decoration and the arrangements for the convenience and comfort of guests equal almost any of the land hotels, except that it lacks the metropolitan character of our large city hotels and has too much of a sporting flavor to suit the average man who is not a Nimrod or a Walton. It will be patronized chiefly by sporting men who will hunt and fish in southern waters. To take the place of cabs, which always stand on the outside of hotels, there are rows of skiffs, and the umbrella receivers, instead of being full of umbrellas and canes, have fishing rods in them. "Undoubtedly many gentlemen will bring their families with them, so the parlors and ballrooms are fitted up as in land hotels. It is a slow moving craft, and I suppose most of the time it will be stationary, only moving from place to place as reports of good hunting or fish-ing reach the manager. Most of the hunting expeditions will be made in ers and swamps. The management will probably be entirely free from the an-noyance of dead beats and hotel sharps.

for if they should be detected out on the ocean they might be used as bait for the fishes."-Chicago Tribune.

Advertising as Vanderbilt's Guest. The following unique advertisement has appeared in The Times, and also, with a trifling variation, in The Morning Post:

Mr. R. W. Davey, of London, has arrived at New York on his return trip from Central America, and is at present the guest of Mr. anderbilt, the millionaire Never before having heard of Mr. R W. Davey, of London, I am burning for more information concerning this indi-vidual. Who is R. W. Davey? What has he been doing in America? Why is the fact of his being the guest of Mr. Vanderbilt deemed of sufficient public interest for publication as an advertisement in the London papers? Who wants to know where R. W. Davey has been? Who cares where he is now? Evidently R. W. Davey has a large circle of ac-quaintances who are deeply concerned about his movement, and I shall be glad f any of them will enlighten me on the above points,-London Truth.

A Discharged Engineer's Suit.

One of the strangest actions ever brought in the Lawrence county courts has just been commenced by W. P. Nye against the Pittsburg company, which has been improving the new town of to accept a position as engineer on the Beaver Valley railroad at $80 a month, which was increased by working over time to $100.

On the representations of the company that he would have a permanent posi- now received a sum more than sufficient tion he bought a house and lot from the Pittsburg company for $1,750, agreeing to pay $120 every three months until the whole amount was paid. July 31, 1892, without e was discharged cause. He ceased to pay for his house, and now he asks $2,000 from the company for breach of contract.-Meadville (Pa.) Gazette. leaned from his cab window, and several instances are lately noted of brakemen being swept from the roof of cars by bridges. But perhaps the most singular accident of this kind occurred in Missouri last week. An engineer of an Iron POSITIVELY CURES Mountain train was leaning out of his cab window passing Williamsville when he was caught by the mail catcher—the iron pole and hook arrangement for catching the mails from moving trainsand pulled clean from his engine, through the window, falling beside the track as his train passed on. He was seriously injured.-Exchange.

The Excitement in France. To understand the extreme excitement which the Panama inquiry produces in sovereign power to exercise its functions. The dispute among Frenchmen-the radical dispute which underlies all others—is whether universal suffrage, un-controlled and unguided either by a monarch, a Cæsar or a class, is competent to create for itself a sovereign power. That it has created one in the assembly is not questioned. That body can, in practice, dismiss the presidentdid do it in M. Grevy's case; can compel any minister or cabinet to resign; can nominate their successors and can pass any law whatever that it thinks is desirable for France. Its action is not arrested by any veto, and it is not liable to penal dissolution without the consent of that half of itself which is called the senate, a consent which it might be very difficult to extort. Indeed, the chamber itself must often be consulted, for it must pass the budget before a dissolu-tion can be safe and the budget before a dissolution can be safe, and the budget is often delayed to the very expiration of the legal term. The assembly is in fact sovereign, and if the assembly—that is, the senators and deputies taken together-are proved to have been bribable, or to have toler ated bribery, the deduction is painfully obvious. Universal suffrage has failed to elect an honest sovereign power .-London Saturday Review.

Interesting Missouri Suits. Kansas city men who did not vote in sued by the city to test a peculiar law The charter provides that voters who do poll tax of $250 each. The registration several thousand voters who did not exercise their right of franchise last spring. At $250 each these men owe the city a large amount, and as that sum or any part of it would come very handy just now the city counselor has taken the first step toward collecting it. The money so collected goes into the sanitary fund, but it benefits the city departments, as money that would otherwise be taken from the revenue fund for other purposes is appropriated for sanitary purposes. Half of the best known business men and manufacturers, professional men and capitalists, those who have large property interests, will find their names on the list of delinquents. The men who are mostly directly interested in a financial way in the government of the city are the men who seem to take no part in politics and neglect to vote.-Cor. Chi-

A Nervous Bridegroom

The First Presbyterian church was the scene of a very pretty wedding at an early hour Tuesday morning, the parties being Benjamin Spence, of West Bridge-water, Mass., and Miss Bianca Verbeek, of this city. During the ceremony the groom startled the invited guests by fallng in a faint. His nervousness agitated the bride, and it was feared a postponement would be necessary, but at his request, when he regained his composure, the officiating clergyman completed the ceremony. While going down the aisle the groom again fainted and was with much difficulty revived, but recovered sufficiently to take the train for his home in Massachusetts. - Atlantic City Cor. Philadelphia Times.

The Dangers in Iced Water.

Cautions have been issued by the imperial health office of Berlin with regard to the use of ice. Investigation has shown that the ice of commerce sold at Berlin contains micro-organisms that are dangerous to health, and the conclusion has been arrived at that illnesses frequently observed after iced drinks have been taken have probably less to do with the coldness of the drink than with the disease germs contained in the ice. The public have consequently been warned to eschew drinks and food which have become dangerous to health in the manner suggested .- Cor. Manchester Nerves and Nerve. After a seven years' courtship George After a seven years courted product of the acres he the same more of tess, and Bailey, a well to do farmer, and Esther Bailey, his cousin, have made two at-tempts to get married in Norwich, Pa., within two weeks, and the wedding is off. D. 1892, L. P. McLOUD, dec28d30d Trustee. a large number of guests were present. Suddenly the prospective bride disappeared and was found locked in her room. To her parents' appeals to come out she only replied, "I'm too nervous! I'm too nervous! It'll have to be put off!"

Nothing would do but a postponement to Monday. Monday came and the bride was over her nervousness and ready with the guests. But now the bridegroom did not come. Instead he sent this message: "I'm not nervous. On the contrary, I've got nerve enough to postpone this wed-ding indefinitely." And it was postponed.-Philadelphia Record.

Theft Revealed by a Dream.

Mrs. Cornelia M. Thomas, of St. Paul, is under arrest charged with having stolen $1,000 from her sister, Mrs. Mary D. Phillips, of Seattle, Wash. The circumstances preceding the arrest are peculiar. Mrs. Phillips was in St. Paul recently. She returned to Seattle and while en route dreamed that Cornelia Thomas had abstracted $1,000 of $2,400 which she had in the lining of her dress. A search revealed the amount $1,000 short. Mrs. Phillips returned at once to St. Paul. Mrs. Thomas was searched and part of the stolen money found on The stolen bills were sewed into a her. belt worn next to her skin by Mrs. Thomas.-Minneapolis Journal.
