INDUCTED INTO OFFICE AT NOON TODAY

In Taking The Office Mayor Pat ton Pelivers an Inaugural That is Too Plain To He Misunder stood-He is Pamiliar With City

The weather today was not just what "Retormer," or anyone else for that natter, could desire, but the "Reform" idministration, scheduled to take hold of things municipal at high noon today. did take hold as though weather was as unknown quantity in the Queen City of the Mountains.

And at the moment when the "Reform era" assumed control of Asheville's affairs, Mayor Blanton and Aldermen Baird, Waddell, McDowell and Leonard prefixed an "ex" to their titles, and th world moved on in its usual course.

Promptly at 12 o'clock, in fact, just as the first stroke of the clock in the court house tower was heard, Mayor Blanton took up a tumbler and rapped on the desk for order. He looked out over a crowd that filled the court house a crowd that was made up of the repre sentative men of the city. In his coa apel was a lovely rose, which he laugh ingly told some one was the last rose o summer. Mayor Blanton then read the following oath which he asked Capt. Patton to subscribe to:

"I, T. W. Patton, do solemnly swear that I will diligently endeavor to perform faithfully and truly, according to my best skill, judgment and abilty, all duties of the office of mayor of the city of Asheville, while I continue therein, and will cause to be executed, as far as in my power lies, all laws, ordinances and regulations made for the govern-ment of the city, and that in the discharge of my duties I will do equal jus-tice in all cases whatsoever, so help me

Capt. Patton kissed the Book and subscribed to the oath, whereupon Mayor Blanton, with an eloquent gesture, introduced "the Mayor of Asheville," and Mayor Patton was greeted with lusty cheer. The new mayor then called up Aldermen elect B. H. Cosby, H. Lamar Gudger, W. W. Jones and Jas. M. Westall, and to them administered the oath of the office to which they had been

The Insugural. This done, Mayor Patton, who had taken the ju 'ge's stand, withdrew from bulky envelope several sheets covered with figures, and in a clear, deliberate tone began the delivery of what was probably the first inaugural ever delivered in Asheville. He warmed up after a few minutes and nothing except short-hand writing could have kept pace with

In opening the inaugural Mayor Patton said he hoped that, amid the many prevailing difficulties, he might aid in leading the people to renewed prosperity. On one point he felt thoroughly hopeful, that the citizens is flow of words. horoughly hopeful, that the citizens of Asheville had come to the conclusion that municipal offices should be divorced from politics, and hoped that the form" movement would not be brought into disrepute by any act of the new ad ministration. The ablest men in the world, he said, were agreed that the est municipal government came when the offices were taken out of politics. Mayor Patton referred in compliment ary terms to THE CITIZEN, whose editorials he delighted in reading.

"But," said the Mayor, "how are we to convince the people that our views are right? Surely not by arguing on theories, but it must be by our acts. Now, how can you form an idea of the work that is before us unless you know the situation as it confronts us when we go into office?"

Mayor Patton then began referring to his figures, which were taken from the city's books. He showed that the city's real estate was valued at $128,000, while it was put down that the personal property was worth $222,000. With this latter valuation he did not agree, believing the more correct valuation to be perhaps $20,000 The city's sewers and waterworks, he thought, should not have been included in the list of personal property. Bonds Must He Sold at Par When Mayor Patton had come to the department of public works, he said he hoped the very first thing the new Board would do would be the taking of steps to complete the Church street paving. Considerable thought was given to the matter of the sale of the improvement bonds by the old Board. The law, he declared, plainly stated that the bonds should not be sold for less than par, and the sale below par was a violation of the law, whether the discount was for commisson or what not. It would be a part of his duty as Mayor, if be sold bonds, which he would not do for less than par, to work without charging a commis-sion. Referring to the 5 per cent. off given by the contractors when the bonds were sold, the Mayor said that no bus ness man was likely to give a discount unless he had a good margin of profit in

As to the schools, Mayor Patton hoped the administration would be able to assist the school committee out of the The list of official salaries for the past vear received considerable attention.

The list showed the salaries to amount to $23,250, and Mayor Patton assured verybody that the city would not pay that amount in salaries this year.

Ex-Mayor Blanton here asked: "How will you reduce them Captain?" and the Mayor replied. "We will come to the reduction later on.

"A few months ago," the Mayor continued, "the people met in this court house and decided that the Legislature should be asked to fix the Aldermen's salary at $200 a year. Recently the Board of Aldermen went into executive session. What does executive session mean? It means secret session. Thank God they had the sense to hide in executive session, for in that session they voted to pay themselves $300 each for the sense to the sense to the session they was the sense to th the past year's work, the warrants to be used in reducing the amount of taxes that would go into the tax collector's Don't : Drink "REFORMERS" TAKE HOLD would take it all off; only, in such case there would be the temptation for me to say 'I am working for nothing and may do as I please.' I say to you all, to the citizens of Asheville, you are my masters and to you I am accountable."

Regards to Mr. Leach.

Mayor Patton then struck a humorou vein in considering some statements made here during the campaign by J. M. Leach of Waynesville. "He charged," he Mayor said, "that I wore kne breeches—something I never wore in my life; he says I belong to the Asheville club—a fact that I am proud of; he says I wear eyeglasses—I do, for I could not be able to read this statement of the city's condition if I did not wear them.

wish I could not read it. "But, gentlemen, let me warn you against the danger of false economy in the matter of salaries I would not re-duce the salaries of the police. I beli-ve an upright, good policeman should not be paid less than 60 a month, and a asked to serve for less than $75 a month."

Mayor Patton referred to the two street inspectors, Messrs. Murdoch and Murray, and advocated the plan of the workmen under these inspectors, both of whom he believed to be efficient men. He spoke sorrowfully of the rmark often made on the street, "Look at the black crows hanging on the court house fence" looking over the cornfield." By "crows" was meant the idlers on the square. He was inclined to change the expression to Look at the damnable black buzzards from South Carolina getting all the sus-tenance that should go to Asheville workmen," He was for home laborers all the time.

Police Department. The police department received consid rable attention. Mayor Patton showed that some $3,000 of fines assessed by Recorder Miller had been either uncollected or unaccounted for to the city treasurer. He hoped and believed Chief McDowell would account for every dollar that should be put down to the credit of his department.

The city's style of hookkeeping was ridiculed mildly by the statement that on the books City Tax Collector Reynolds was the city's creditor to the amount of $32,000, while as a matter of fact the collector should have been charged with the full amount of the tax list, perhaps $70,000, and then credited with the $22,000 and then credited with the $32,000 paid in.

On the water question Mayor Patton laid considerablestress. He thought the water rents should at least be made to pay the interest on the cost of the plant. Instead of this being a fact, the collections amount to only $1,315, while the interest is some $18,000.

The Mayor then touched upon paving topics. He pointed out that the Depot topics. He pointed out that the Depot street paving cost $2.37 cents a square yard, while that on Haywood street cost about $1 less a square yard. He also said another $100,000 worth of bonds must be sold, at par, with which to improve streets such as Woodfin, which needed improvement badly. He proposed to be one person to take $10,000 of the bonds at par within the next part within the next part within the proposed. 000 of the bonds at par within the next 30 days, and believed the bonds would

"The Citizen" Again Mayor was read, in which the writer congratulated the city and the new Mayor on the turn Asheville had taken in municipal affairs. The letter referred own overwhelming majority, afford to forgive THE CITIZEN for printing poetry charged to him. The inaugural closed with the declaration that the load was upon the people of Asheville, as well as upon the new administration, and the Mayor asked the support of every citizen. He then ex-tended his thanks to the officials of the suburbs, as well as the people of Ashe-ville, who had come out to witness the inauguration.

The Joint Board was then convened, when Alderman Jones, of the First, moved that the Mayor be requested to to a meeting tomorrow at 10 o'clock a.m., as the Board wanted to get down to work. The motion carried and the meeting adjourned to the sour stated.

"We went last Friday and spent the day with Mrs. Margaret Hines McIntire and had a pleasant day. They live in a lage old-fashioned house that was built 70 or 80 years ago. It has been in their family 60 years. Two old ladies live in the house. They tell me that a rich family named Stewart lived there before they bought it. Mrs Stewart died and was buried. That night the negroes due her up to get the rings off her fingers and she waked up and came to life. She went to the house and knocked at the door. Her husband knew her voice and asked if she was in the flesh or in the spirit.' She said: 'In the flesh.' He let her in, and she recovered entirely and lived many years. She had a son after that who was a Pres-byterian minister. I had heard the tale before, but never thought I should be in the house where it actually happened."— Richmond Dispatch.
