THE New York World has gotten out a Sunday edition consisting of 300,000 copies of 100 pages each. Is this extricating the ox from the ditch?-Hayes-ville Advance.

It is digging the ditch deeper.

THE CITIZEN's account of the baseball game of last Saturday had this: "In the first seventh the inevitable row was held." This is a pity, for baseball is a first place to attract attention gentlemen's game, and no amount of tallies is worth a squabble for them. A spirit of good nature ought to prevade American sport wherever it is enjoyed.

IT was bad taste of the Rev. Dr. Sutherland, of Washington, D. C., to try to amend the sermon of a brother pastor who had occupied his pulpit by invitation, and that too in a way that must have been offensive to many of his congregation, no matter what their opinion might be of the Briggs case. It is hardly probable that as powerful a church organization as the Presbyterians have could be as much affected by one man as Mr. Sutherland seems to think. Dr. Briggs' nearest friends will not claim so much influence for him.

THE Spanish Infanta has already commended herself to the good wishes of the American people by declaring that she wishes to be treated here not as the etiquette of the Spanish court would dictate, but as American manners and customs suggest. She has apparently come to the United States determined to be pleased, and the result is that everybody is pleased with her. Those who would have hedged her about with ceremony, with the most of which the Ameri can is unfamiliar, are out of a job, but the rest of us are the better satisfied.

THE New York World says that the stocks George Gould is said to control are now quoted as worth twenty-six million dollars less than they were on the first of January last. Gould's personal loss is calculated to be at least seventeen millions of dollars. When we remember that the average millionaire parts as regretfully from a dollar as the rest of the human family, the probable feelings of George Gould are something distressing to contemplate. Being fifty or a hundred times a millionaire is a poor trade anyway for a steady business, especially in hard times like the present.

THE theatrical posters committee of the Minister's conference, in performing its work probably overlooked the following ordinance which is numbered 394in the city code:

"That no person shall exhibit, expose or paste upon any fence, building, wall, post, billboard or other place in the city of Asheville, and expose to public view any representation, picture, design or advertisement of any description of an indecent, immoral or immodest charac-ter, calculated to debauch the public or shock the sense of decency or propriety."

This ordinance has been broken at least half a dozen times during the past year, and the last company that visited

To the right, amid spurs of the Blue Ridge, the various head tributaries of the Chattahoochee river lead toward Atlanta. On one of these, the Soquee, the lovely town of Clarksville is situated while the main Chattachoochee winds through the famous Nacoochee valley. On entering this royal valley of Indian mounds and modern palaces the 52x109 feet .... is the 'summer home of Geo. W. Williams, the banker of Charleston, S. C., who was born and reared to nan-hood as a farmer boy in Nacoochee. From the road can be plainly seen the Indian mound on which young Williams x220 feet ... ", acre in county.

Nacoochee is Mr. Lamb Johnston, who was trained as a banker with Maj. W. E Breese in the banking house of Geo. W. Williams, Charleston, Mr. Johnston W. Williams, Charleston. Mr. Johnston has a fine farm to which he devotes his attention. He expressed himself as deeply interested in the proposed Ashe-ville and Atlanta railroad, as it would traverse the whole length of Nacoochee valley along the Chattahoochee, crossing into Macon county at Rahm's gap. Going up the Chattahoochee through a portion of White county, Ga., your correspondent recrossed the Blue Kidge at "Unacoy" gap, near the top of which he drank water from the head spring of Hiwassee river.

Hiwassee river.

Following down this heautiful stream through Towns county, Ga., the nice little town of Iliwassee was entered, only four miles from the North Carolina line. It is the site of a large school which receives patronage from both states

Clay County and Hayesville. The charming Hiwassee passes through the whole length of Clay county. On each side of the river are rich valley lands, which extend out between the various mountain spurs that stand on either side of several large creeks, rising in the distance and emptying into the Hiwassee. Some of these are Shooting creek, Tusquitee, and Brasstown.

Hayesville, the county seat, has a perb location on the western side of the river. The mound builders marked the lovely valleys around Havesville by th erection of mounds which still stand a monuments of the ancient inhabitants who occupied these lands long before their possession by the Cherokee Indians. A very interesting mound is the one which is located immediately on the western bank of the river opposite the town.

I found the court in session on my ar-rival at Hayesville, though, as usual, there was very little business on docket. A murder case had been moved to Clay county from Cherokee, but was post-poned till the fall session in order that the State wight the State might secure the attendance of witnesses who were absent this term The people of Clay county thus escaped the first murder trial ever appointed for their court, and it was imported from another county. Clay county is highly favored by hav ing a number one class of citizens, indus-trious and prosperous, peaceful and intelligent. A greater proportion of them live in painted houses than is usual in other counties. They believe in edu-cation, and have united with the adjoin- A PERSON Can Travel
