REPUBLICANS CHEER REED

HE ADMITS HIS WILLINGNESS TO SAVE THE COUNTRY.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The last day of the silver debate in the House began with large attendance on the floor and in the galleries. The first speech was made by Clarke (Ala.) who spoke in support of the Wilson bill. Clarke was followed by Reed (Me.)

Reed began by saying that he was not certain of the wisdom of any member of the House and least of all of his own. He was quite conscious, also, how difficult it is for anybody to know anything about the currency in general and how especially difficult it is to provide a remedy for a derangement of currency at any particular time. Nevertheless, while he had grave doubts of the wisdom of each individual including himself, and no doubt whatever of the difficulty of the task, it was a comfort to him to fall back upon the wisdom of the majority in the wisdom of all men when shown by the decisions of the Congress of the United States. It may not be an absolute righteousness decision, which he shall reach, nevertheless it is a comforting assurance to believe that the decision will be sufficient for the emergency.

Reed said that at the last election the Democratic party was brought into power by a curious combination of circumstances, the result of a hundred causes, not with candid deliberation, but as a result in a large measure, of the apathy of the American people. Now that system upon which the manufacturers of the country have been regulated for 20 years or thereabouts, with a change, whether that change is to be for the better or not one man can know. What the Democratic party proposes to do with the silver which is in the hands of nobody can say. They do not know themselves, hence are not able to impart it to others.

At the present moment, continued Reed, no man can know what will be the result of the action of this Congress upon the manufacturers of this country. Until the question is settled the manufacturers of this country will never have a measure more than the absolute necessities of the people require. He said the cause of the recent condition of affairs was the uncertainty of the future in both the currency questions and the questions of protection and revenue tariff. He did not regard the Sherman act as in itself alone responsible for our present condition of affairs; that he believed the cause of the present disaster underlie that that the necessary stoppage of hundreds and thousands of mills is at the bottom of the disaster. Nevertheless, he believed the Sherman act and the accumulation of silver was the earliest indication of the disaster which we are approaching and that it has in a large part, not entirely unfortunate, in warning us that we can be saved from still further misfortune and doubt. He did not believe the present condition of affairs was the result of the Sherman act, but that it was the result of the accumulation of silver under the Walker tariff, but that there will be doubts and difficulties and reductions he had not the slightest doubt.

While Reed did not think that the repeal of the Sherman act would be the immediate cause of the revival of the prosperity of the country, he was in favor of its repeal for the reason that, first, it seems to be deeply settled in the public mind from causes which can be easily understood that the Sherman law is the cause of the unsoundness of the currency all over the country. It has been made the foundation of distrust by a variety of causes.

If, therefore, repeal will relieve the banks and give them confidence if it will send back depositors to the counters; if it will ease the rates of money, we shall be able to get over this disaster with less harm, less pain and less loss.

Reed was in favor of repeal for another reason: he was not only desirous of weathering the storm with as few sails blown to pieces as possible, but he was in favor of its repeal for the reason that, first, it seems to be deeply settled in the public mind from causes which can be easily understood that the Sherman law is the cause of the unsoundness of the currency all over the country. It has been made the foundation of distrust by a variety of causes.

When the day comes, as surely it will come, for us to lead this land back to the paths of prosperity and time which were trodden under Republican rule for so many years, we shall take back with us our ancient glory, undimmed by adversity, our ancient honor, unshaken by defeat.

Reed's closing words were received with prolonged applause. The Republican went into a spasm of the wildest enthusiasm. Burke Cochran closed the debate.

NO QUORUM

The Joint Board Have an Informal Meeting.

Sickness and absence of members caused a lack of a quorum yesterday when the time came for holding the regular meetings of the Joint Board and the Board of Aldermen. However, Mayor Patton, Aldermen Cosby and Westall and Advisors Sawyer, Gwyn and Millard were present and business was talked over informally.

W. T. Penningman, representing the property owners on South Main street, consulted the members with a view to learning their opinion of the friendly proposal to be brought against the city by South Main street property owners. One point made by Mr. Penningman was that he objected to paying benefits assessed against him by reason of the widening of the street and then having to pay, in addition to this, his pro rata share of the damages awarded to the property owners on either portion of the street. The members present expressed themselves as favoring the suit proposed, as it seems that suits will be instituted in any event, and it is preferable to make the case left vacant by the assessment becomes due. Officially, however, the Board could take no action.

Dr. John Hey Williams, the newly elected member of the school committee, was sworn in. Mayor Patton then brought up the question of a committee to take the place left vacant by the declination of A. Rankin. The Mayor, falling in with the idea of THE CITIZEN, said he hoped the Board could get some good, practical woman to take the place. He had taken the liberty of asking Mrs. H. T. Collins to serve, and that lady expressed herself as willing to do so were it not for the fact that she would be away a great portion of the winter. He said the Board should act as soon as possible.

The following bills were approved: Hancock and The Co., $325; E. B. Atkinson, $18.60; Henry R. Worthington, $87.55; fire department, $12.60; J. A. Brookshire, $18.65; Crandall Packing Co., $27; H. Redwood & Co., $3.25; sanitary department, east district, $13.26; west district, $39.90; water department, $58.49; J. C. Brown & Co., $3.05; L. S. Meadows, $7.50; W. E. White, $21; pumping station, $17.50; THE CITIZEN, $47.10.

LAWN FEET.

A Delightful Event at Dr. Burroughs' Last Evening.

The moonshine and shadows were there, the fortune teller and the witch's cauldron were there, the ice cream, the cake, the salad, the lemonade, the flowers were there, the music was there, and the great oaks around Dr. J. A. Burroughs' handsome residence echoed with the laughter of innumerable pretty girls last evening, the occasion of the lawn feet, for the benefit of Y. M. C. A. by the way.

Miss Clarke of Milwaukee Probably Coming Here.

The progressive housekeepers of Asheville are much interested in the prospect of a class in cookery to be opened in September by Miss Mary Lamson Clarke, the well-known teacher of the Milwaukee Cooking school. Miss Clarke is the proprietor of this famous school, and is reputed to be an artist in her line, as well as a highly accomplished lady, with 10 years' experience in her art—truly the "art of arts."

THE REAPER'S WORK.

Death of Mrs. J. B. Worsley This Morning.

Mrs. Nancy W. Worsley, wife of Justice J. B. Worsley, died at her home on South Spruce street at 1:20 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Worsley became ill about two weeks ago, after constant attendance upon her husband, and suffered from inflammatory rheumatism. This developed into inflammation of the stomach, which caused her death.

Mrs. Worsley was about 46 years old, and was married to Mr. Worsley in 1867. She was an earnest Christian, a member of the First Baptist church and had many friends here. She leaves a devoted husband and two children.

WHEELER IS FREE AGAIN

THE EMBEZZLER HAS LEFT FOR OTHER PARTS.

Soon After His Release He Goes to Hendersonville and There Takes the Train—D. L. Reynolds is Wheeler's Bondsman.

O. B. Wheeler, jr., the confessed embezzler from George W. Vanderbilt at Biltmore, and who, in consequence of his crime, looked at liberty through an iron grating, is again free.

Wheeler was released from the Buncombe county jail last Monday evening about 8 o'clock by Jailer Jamison, upon the presentation by Deputy Sheriff Morgan of an order from Solicitor Eug. D. Carter, of the Criminal court, ordering Wheeler's release.

Soon after Wheeler was freed he, in company with Mrs. Wheeler, left in a private conveyance for Hendersonville, where he took the train for Spartanburg, Mrs. Wheeler returning to her home at Biltmore, where, it is said, she is disposing of the household effects preparatory to leaving. Their daughter went North a couple of weeks ago.

Wheeler's whereabouts are unknown. Wheeler was sent to jail his bond was fixed at $2,000. This bond was given before he was released, his bondsman being County Tax Collector D. L. Reynolds.

EPWORTH LEAGUES.

Work of the District Conference at Weaverville.

The Asheville district Epworth League conference was held at Weaverville Thursday and Friday. There was a large attendance of delegates and visitors at each session. Geo. L. Hackney was elected president of the conference and Chas. C. Weaver secretary. Several interesting topics were discussed, and on Thursday evening an entertainment was given by the local league, which reflected great credit on Mrs. McDowell, who had been untiring in her efforts to make it a success.

On Friday morning Miss Irene McLeod of Asheville, Miss Sledge of Hendersonville and Miss Grace Vandiver of Weaverville read papers on "Methods for Charity and Help" which were highly complimented.

The following delegates were elected to attend the State conference, which meets in Durham in October: H. Turner, Geo. L. Hackney, J. M. Alexander, J. W. Pless and Z. F. Curtis.

The reports showed there were seven leagues in the Asheville district, with 480 members. The next conference will meet at Central church, this city, August 23, 1894.

Rev. H. F. Chritzberg preached a special sermon to the Leaguers at the conference yesterday morning. There was a large and attentive congregation.

The delegates from Asheville are high in their praises of the entertainment given them by the Weaverville people, who did all in their power to make the conference the success it was.
