MISS POLLARD AS A GIRL

SOME DAMAGING TESTIMONY BROUGHT OUT

An Episode in Breckinridge's Career That Does Him Harm Now—Unsavory Evidence From An Unsavory Source.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Sarah Guest, a light mulatto woman from Lexington, Ky., dressed in deep mourning, was the first witness in the Pollard-Breckinridge case this morning. She is the woman whose deposition was objected to by the defence few days ago and not admitted to evidence by Judge Bradley.

Her examination was conducted by E. Farrell, who was attorney for Miss Pollard in Lexington. She was questioned minutely concerning her life and antecedents; how long she had lived in Lexington and other questions of personal character. She knew Breckinridge, she said, ever since she was a little girl. She had lived at a house on Shirley street, Lexington, for 20 years. Witness identified Col. Breckinridge and Miss Pollard who were present in court room. She testified that Breckinridge, about 10 years ago, came to her house and said he wanted her to keep a young lady from Lexington until Monday. She told him that she could not stay that long. Breckinridge said she must let her come and she came. Breckinridge brought her, stayed about half an hour, went away and came back about dark, stayed until 11 and kissed Miss Pollard when he left. She saw them in the room together. Breckinridge was dressed at the time. He came again Saturday and Sunday night.

Witness said she had heard Breckinridge tell Miss Madeline that she must get breakfast early and "get down there" to meet Rhoades on Monday morning.

Farrell asked the witness if there was anything about Miss Pollard's appearance that indicated her age, and after an objection by Shelby had been overruled the witness answered that her dress came to her about the neck, like a school girl between 17 and 18. Led by Farrell, the witness said Col. Breckinridge had come to the witness a year ago last summer and asked her to take Miss Pollard, but she had refused, saying "I did not keep no company now." Col. Breckinridge had come to her again last fall after the suit was filed, and asked her not to testify against him, and also to keep Mary Scott and Mary Wilson (who had lived at her house) out of the way, "because he didn't want them to get them."

"Did he ever mention the name of any man in connection with Miss Pollard?" asked Mr. Farrell.
"Yes, sir; he asked me if Miss Pollard had ever come to my house with Col. Swope. I told him she had never been there with Swope." (Col. Swope was killed by Col. Cassius Goodlow in Lexington some years ago, and a story was circulated a few months since that connected his name with that of Miss Pollard. This story was indignantly denied by Col. Swope's relatives and no evidence to support it was ever brought to light.)

"How many times was Col. Breckinridge at your house with Miss Pollard?" asked Farrell.
"About fifty times."
"Over how many years did these visits extend?"
"Over about three or four years."

Shelby conducted the cross examination of Sarah Guest. He waded right in without preliminaries.
"Sarah," he said, "how many years have you been keeping an assignation house in Lexington?"
Sarah hesitated and appeared embarrassed, but finally said, "About eight or nine years."

"How long have you known Farrell?"
"Ever since he was a young man grow-ing up."

A smile went round the court room at Farrell's expense.
Mrs. Kate W. Burt, clerk in the general land office recognized Miss Pollard as having lived at 13th and L street about 1887 under the name of Mrs. Foster. She had seen Breckinridge there once, but merely at the door. Miss Pollard was about to become a mother. The deposition of Mrs. M. A. Ketchum of Lexington, Ky., was opened and this was a signal for an exodus from the court room.

CLUB HOUSE BURNED.

The Pickwickers of New Orleans Burned Out.

NEW ORLEANS, March 16.—The handsome Pickwick club building at the corner of Canal and Carondelet streets was almost completely destroyed by fire this morning. There had been a meeting at the Club last night, but only the manager, bookkeeper and porters were in the club at twenty minutes past seven today when fire was discovered in the neighborhood of the kitchen. The fire was caused by an electric wire.

An alarm was turned in as soon as the blaze was discovered, but before the department reached the scene the flames had gained such headway that the building was doomed. The fire spread rapidly through four stories of the club, and then burst through the roof and not until 10 o'clock was the blaze under control.

The building was four stories high. It was built 10 years ago of Philadelphia pressed brick with limestone trimmings and was owned by A. & H. Hein of Paris and was worth $130,000. The furniture was valued at $40,000. Many valuable paintings and statuary were saved. The insurance on the building was $100,000; on furniture $34,000.

DYNAMITE SCARE.

Loud Noise Frightens Part of New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—Anarchists have put in their appearance in this city and the police are on the trail. Three of the largest tobacco manufacturers in the city, W. W. Walls, W. R. Irbly and the Herusheims, have received several anonymous letters declaring that unless they discharge all the girls employed in their factories and employ men in their places the factories and private residences of the owners would be blown up with dynamite.

The matter was put in the hands of the police and they kept very quiet. In the meantime, the several gentlemen secured special details of officers to guard their residences.
The publication of the facts nearly caused a disaster in Herusheim's factory at noon yesterday. A plank fell down an elevator shaft and the excited employees thinking the anarchists had begun to carry out their threat, became panic-stricken and fled pell-mell for the exits. Half a dozen of the girls were hurt and one of them trampled almost to death.

STRUCK HIM.

Harrison's Assassin Strikes His Cell Mate for Cause.

CHICAGO, March 12.—Prendergast, the assassin of Mayor Harrison, occupied a cell with George Craig, charged with the murder of Emma Werner, and with Pat Rafferty, who, last summer, announced in a large dry goods store that he would blow up the place unless they gave him money.

Rafferty prides himself upon being a writer of verse. Prendergast had passed adverse criticism upon several of Rafferty's effusions, and today when Rafferty began reading a parody on "After the Ball" the assassin became angered. Before Rafferty had half finished it Prendergast caught the manuscript from his hands and shouted "You can't read obscene literature in this cell."

Rafferty turned on the assassin. The latter put up his hands and struck Rafferty a blow in the mouth, followed by one on the nose. Blood spurted from Rafferty's mouth as he seized Prendergast and jammed him into a corner of the cell. Before Rafferty could strike him Guard Johnson separated the men.—N. Y. Sun.

The Chancellor said that the proposal was made because of the increased demand for such coins, and also because the coinage of silver had fallen below the authorized limit, 22,000,000 marks.

"That the said Henrietta Jackson in our opinion came to her death by reason of the inhalation of chlorine or other irritant gas manufactured and introduced into a room in the Masonic block in the city of Ithaca, N. Y., where the deceased was at work, by a person or persons to whose identity we are unable to arrive."

Miss Farson Not to Do Jury Duty.

CHICAGO, March 12.—On the ground that Miss Mary E. Farson is a teacher in the public employ, Judge Burke this morning "excused" her from jury duty, thus evading the issue as to whether a woman shall do such duty. Miss Farson presented herself in Judge Burke's court on Saturday for the jury box. Her name appeared upon the voting list as M. E. Farson, because she voted upon the school question last fall. The bailiff did not serve the summons personally, but left it at her house for her, supposing that M. E. Farson was a man.

Michigan Town Elections.

DETROIT, March 13.—Municipal elections were held all over the state of Michigan yesterday. In towns in which party lines were drawn the returns show that the Republicans were generally successful with large gains in their vote.
