From a Famous Club.

We have used Cottolene in the Chicago Club Kitchen for cooking purposes for the last six months, and find it surpasses all the lard in the market.

FROM MRS. BENSON.

President New York Cooking School.

LAFAYETTE PLACE, N. Y.

I have made a thorough trial of Cottolene in biscuit and pie crust making, frying, and in all ways in which I am accustomed to using lard. It proves excellent, and in my opinion is every way preferable to lard. Therefore I heartily recommend it. Very truly yours,

MRS. E. A. BENSON.

What comparison can there be, for instance, between a pure vegetable oil like cottonseed and the unhealthy product called lard?

AN HOUR WITH AN APE

A HUGE ONE LOOSE IN THE EXPRESS OFFICE.

The beast escapes from its cage and gives Expressmen and Showmen trouble in getting it locked up.

Comparatively a few months ago, so say those who know, there roamed the wilds of the heart of Africa an ape, which, for the purpose of distinction, may be called Tom, and which, though young, had every appearance of developing into an exceedingly robust manhood. It is scarcely probable that Tom was seen and commended with by Prof. R. L. Garter, and spent several months in gorilla land and was recently came back from his trip loaded to the neck with monkey lore and declaring that this species of animal had a distinct language, of which the Professor had mastered a few words. It was there, but he and the animal hunter came along seeking attractions for the countless menageries, zoos, parks and gardens the world over that must be kept supplied, and Tom was gathered in. Across the water he came and landed at New York. There, there soon came an order for an ape. Tom, young and ugly, was picked for the bargain, and was sent to the express office there in a cage, marked "Col. G. W. Hall's Shows, Asheville, N. C."

Tom made the trip all right, but he was a little short on food, for nobody cared to monkey with an ape on Wednesday afternoon the animal package arrived. Agent Blankenship of the Southern Express office telephoned to Col. Hall news of the ape's arrival, and the Colonel and five baggage showmen came upon after the beast. As soon as they saw it, they concluded it needed water. Some straightened Swannanoa was brought, and the ape's new keeper opened the door of the cage in order to place the water inside. As he did this his spaceship made a spring, cleared the door and was loose in the express office.

Up to this time there had been perhaps 20 men in the office, looking at the ape. In less than 20 seconds half the crowd had melted through the door. It was like magic, the way they disappeared. Tom, freed from his cage, shook himself and straightened up. Then Mr. Blankenship and the showmen could see that the ape was a splendid specimen. He weighed maybe 160 pounds, stood about five feet in his dirty bare feet and had powerful, sinewy arms that reached nearly to the floor. There was an ugly scowl on his face and a broad expression here and there and all over him.

When Tom leaved the express office, Mr. Blankenship was sitting at his desk at the front window. Tom went to the front door, and Mr. Blankenship, ready to resign if necessary, moved away from his seat. He had scarcely started when the ape made a spring from the floor to the desk, striking and breasting an electric light globe and shade and leaving the imprint of his dirty hands on the pane of his window. Then he began to climb the necessary, laborious and painstaking. To have forced a fight would have resulted in a bloody encounter, as it would undoubtedly have required the combined strength of any five men to subdue the ape. Then it would doubt have been shot. So the work of getting him back in the cage went on cautiously. Tom was coaxed and driven, then driven and coaxed, but all at a respectful distance.

While all this was going on, those in the office saw as fine an exhibition of jumping as was ever given. In running from the pursuers Tom would clear a little matter of 12 or 15 feet from the floor to the counter top, with as much ease as if it had been two feet, and would then mount the counter railing and stay there until he got ready to move.

After this thing had gone on for near an hour and a half Tom's pursuers became exasperated and pressed him hard. Then it was the beast showed the meanness in him. He spring over desks and counters, took penholders in his mouth and crushed them into bits and scattered papers in indescribable confusion. Just once he came back in the cage, but he soon broke through the single door about it, then one of the showmen hit on the idea of giving Tom bananas. This is what Prof. Garter would have known the ape was calling for all the time. When they were brought in one was given to the gorilla and he proceeded to feed it with as delicate a touch as if it would a man who has practiced nothing else for a lifetime. Bye and bye, by dint of earnest coaxing and a lavish use of bananas Tom reentered his cage and the door was locked. Then a breath of relief went up from every man engaged in the affair. The beast was taken to the train and placed among the other animals in the menagerie.

Mr. Blankenship says he has no particular objection to handling caged gorillas, but proposes next time to see that the cage door is closed. Had the office door been open the result of the animal's running through the streets might have been extremely serious.

COLORED DICK TURPIN'S

A Henderson Man Held Up Near Asheville Yesterday.

C. M. Woodfin, who lives at Boiston, Henderson county, had an encounter with highwaymen about 8 p. m. yesterday as he was on his way home from Asheville. Mr. Woodfin was in his wagon alone, and when on Honey hill, not far from the old power house, of the West Asheville and Sulphur Springs railway two negroes sprang into the road, grasped the bridle of the team and ran the wagon over a bank. Mr. Woodfin jumped out as the wagon went over and the negroes ran up to him, one on either side, one carrying a club and the other a revolver. The pistol was shoved in Mr. Woodfin's face and he was commanded to throw up his hands and give up his money. He did this, as he was unarmed, and the negro who carried the club snatched his pockets, taking his purse and all the cash he had, some $8 or $10. The highwaymen then allowed him to go and started away in the direction of Asheville.

Mr. Woodfin could not identify the negroes. They were heavy set and not tall. One wore a pair of light trousers, and both wore poor clothing and dark hats. They each looked to be about 30 years of age. The purse they took was of three compartments, with a brass rim. It was of leather, dark grain, and had two or three small holes in the inside lining.

Mr. Woodfin telephoned to the police here and Patrolman Yeatman and Lively went to the depot last night to arrest the highwaymen should they attempt to take the train here, but they were not to be found. Mr. Woodfin came back to Asheville and reported the case to Sheriff Brookshire, but as yet the men have not been apprehended.

Come to the court house and hear Judge Merrimon tonight.

GOOD ENTERTAINMENT

Prof. Killigbeck and Daughter

at the Battery Park.

The entertainment by Prof. Killigbeck and his daughter, Miss Mollie, at the Battery Park hotel last evening, was a good one, and was enjoyed by a number of guests of the hotel and many people of the city. It began at 9 o'clock and closed at 10:30.

Miss Killigbeck's first number was a recitation "How Miss Edith Helps Things Along." It was well done, although her voice was a trifle hoarse from a cold. Then she gave a beautiful exhibition of dancing. "The Sailor's Hornpipe" followed the "Highland Fling," then the "Lambourne Dance" and the "Skirt Dance." Miss Killigbeck, who is a beautiful girl, danced them all with the greatest skill, precision and beauty. The "Highland Fling" pleased the audience most and seemed to be Miss Killigbeck's favorite also.

Prof. Killigbeck with a pair of Indian clubs made the audience cross-eyed trying to follow his motions. His handling of the clubs showed him to be an expert, especially when he swung a pair of clubs, in which he had placed glasses of water, without spilling a drop.

Miss Killigbeck's rendition of the potter's scene from "Romeo and Juliet" was not quite so good as that of the "Sleepwalking scene" from "Macbeth." She showed in this true dramatic fervor quite remarkable in one so young.

The entertainment, closed with a club swinging act by Miss Killigbeck and her father, which showed the unusual skill of both.

Rating the straight Democratic ticket tonight at the court house.

MR. TREDWAY WINS.

Application For a Receiver Denied by Judge McVey.

J. J. Tredway recently purchased the South Main street business of Bearden, Rankin & Co. W. M. Jarvis claimed that Mr. Tredway had contracted with him to take him in as a partner in the business and subsequently had refused to comply with his contract. Mr. Jarvis filed application for an injunction and a receiver for Mr. Tredway's business. A temporary restraining order was granted and the store was closed for 10 days, the case being set for Wednes day before Judge McVey at Waverlyville.

On that day the arguments were heard, Mr. Jarvis being represented by Louis M. Bourne and W. P. Brown of Asheville and Mr. Tredway by Henry B. Stevens also of this city. Judge McVey rendered his decision yesterday, dissolving the restraining order and refusing the application for the appointment of a receiver. Mr. Tredway now continues his business.

RATIFICATION MEETING.

It is to be held in the Court House This Evening.

Every Democrat in Asheville who can possibly do so should attend the ratification meeting to be held in the court house this evening at 8 o'clock. And all voters interested are invited. Addresses are expected from Julius C. Martin, the Democratic candidate for Mayor, Hon. Jas. H. Merrimon, Judge H. B. Carter and others who have the interests of Asheville and the Democratic party at heart. Let the Democrats come out in full force and show their determination to stand by the nominees.

Listen for the ringing of the bell!

Let This Settle It.

For the benefit of some who seem exercised about the tax collectorship in connection with the coming election, it should be said that Mr. Fogg, the present collector has a two years' term. Further than this, THE CITIZEN bears it from the best authority that ex Collector N. A. Reynolds has no design whatever upon any position in the city's gift.

Where is Coxe?

ADDITION, Pa., April 13.—The Commonwealth army left here this morning at 9:30 escorted out by the sheriff and 25 armed men. Two miles out the Maryland line was crossed. Coxe's absence is still unexplained.

D. B. Hill Out of Fight.
SPRINGFIELD, O., April 13.—Tammany hall, a west end Democratic organization, passed a resolution last evening to turn Senator David B. Hill's plying to the wall.

THE DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE

HIGH TRIBUTE TO HIS ABILITY BY CAPT. CARTER.

Hon. H. A. Gudger says there is now no cause for the mass meeting and comments the straight ticket.

Capt. M. E. Carter, one of the foremost lawyers of North Carolina and a brother member of the bar of Julius C. Martin, the Democratic candidate for Mayor of Asheville, paid a very high compliment to the candidate in a conversation with THE CITIZEN today. Said Capt. Carter:

"Mr. Martin is a man of practical business sense, clear headed and honest. I have watched his course carefully since he came to the bar and have been pleased to note his strong grasp of questions that he had to contend with. I am sure he will prove to be a most painstaking, conscientious and able executive officer."

Hon. H. A. Gudger's Card

The recent call for a mass meeting Saturday evening was signed by Hon. H. A. Gudger. Today Mr. Guder gives THE CITIZEN the following card which has no uncertain sound about it:

"EDITOR THE CITIZEN:—Whatever may have been the reason or the supposed necessity for the mass meeting called by citizens for April 14, there can, in my judgment, exist no cause for it now that circumstances and conditions have changed."

Another One

Another of those who signed the call was Jesse B. Starnes. He told THE CITIZEN today that in his opinion there was not a better man in town than Mr. Martin. "He's all right," said Mr. Starnes, "and I propose to do all I can for him."

SHORT OF FUNDS

A Mind Reader and Comedian

In a week or so a young man, registered at the Swannanoa as Prof. Lewis of New York, a mind reader, who could forecast the future. He gave a clever exhibition of his powers at the hotel. A few days later Oscar DeArmond stopped at the Swannanoa from Knoxville. Then he and Lewis left the hotel without paying their board bill. This morning Proprietor Rawls of the Swannanoa learned the youths were at the Glen Rock, and Deputy Sheriff J. H. Hampton was sent down to arrest them for defrauding the hotel. The men had gone to the Glen Rock at 4 o'clock this morning, registered as L. Kera and Vernon G. Brown, took a room and asked to be called at 11 o'clock. Deputy Hampton let them alone till later in the day, when he and Mr. Rawls went down and the men were arrested for attempting to defraud a creditor. They were taken to Mr. Jamison's hotel "down the hill."

Prof. Lewis or Kera appeared to be preparing to open an office at 50 Barlee street, to do the mind reading act, and was to open today. He had a large quantity of dodgers printed by the Randolph Kerr Printing company, and told Deputy Hampton he expected he would have made lots of money if left alone.

Coxey's Mission Thwarted

From the Springfield Republican.
The suldest and most discouraging news for Coxe and his army is almost certain to reach him before he gets to Washington. There is a growing demand for labor all over the country. The employment office at the immigration bureau in New York cannot answer the calls which are made upon it, and contractors are said to be looking for men to begin their undertakings. When Coxe hears this his heart will well-nigh break, for where will be his grievance where the precious decision that he was leading an army of wronged and oppressed work-seekers?

Where Hill is

Those who have watched these events and interpreted them as Democrats can not feel any great surprise at the attitude of the New York Senator as outlined in his speech on the tariff bill. He is simply in the procession of Eastern Democrats who are marching away from the Democratic platform. He has succumbed to precisely the same influences that have driven the administration to repudiate a vital pledge of the platform.

Killed By Revenue Men

WISCONSIN, April 13.—[Special.]—In Davie county yesterday William Meyers, a blacksmith of Yadkin county, escaped from the revenue men. He was fired at by Deputy Marshall Ford of this city, the ball inflicting a serious wound. Meyers is reported dead today. The two revenue men were bound over for trial.

Can't Get a Quorum

WASHINGTON, April 13.—At 1 o'clock the House being unable to secure a voting quorum, adjourned until tomorrow at noon. Immediately after adjournment a democratic caucus was called to consider motions for obtaining a quorum.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

The Republicans of the Sixth Indiana Congressional district have nominated Henry L. Johnson of Richmond, to succeed himself in Congress.

F. R. Post, a prominent operator in the New York wheat ring at the produce exchange, was this morning posted, being unable to meet his liabilities.

The President today sent to the Senate the nomination of A. M. Avery of Alabama to be receiver of public moneys at Huntsville, Ala.
