which the writer said he considered that Mr. Gudger had done him an injustice. Continuing, Mr. Gudger said: "I imme diately answered the note and agreed to leave the matter to an attorney he would select and if the arbitrator decided that there was no necessity for the ques tion I would make amends as publicly as I had asked the question. The mut had friend has decided that the question was unnecessary and I now make Mr. Wild as full and complete a retraction and as public as was the offensive question. wish to state further that this apology is not in any sense in obedience to the statement that appeared in The Asheville Citizen, which statement I believe did Mr. Wild fully as great an injustice as my question. I am really sorry that I asked the question, as I have known Mr. Wild all my life and I regard him as a braye man."

aws. Locke Craig addressed the court and said that he desired to say there had been a misconstruction of what he had said in the case of the Sherman trial re-garding the Jews. Said Mr. Craig, "I know only one of the persons against whom the language was claimed to have been used and he is Mr. Blomberg, and I know nothing of him except to his

D. M. Luther then arose and said: am the attorney who censured Mr. Craig and I think my version of the affair is correct; but if I did Mr. Craig an injustice I am willing to apologize. I still think, however, that I was correct in what I stated."

Judge Jones inquired if there were other experiences and H. B. Stevens re-plied that he had one. Mr. Stevens said. Tagree with Mr. Luther, but it I said. I agree with Mr. Luther, but it I said anything in my speech that reflected on Mr. Craig I am sorry for it."

When the afternoon session of the court was called to order Mr. Stevens called Judge Jones' attention to the fact that the daughter of M. Sherman, who had been convicted of libel, wished to make a statement in her father's behalf. The Judge looked at the daughter, who is a prepossessing young woman, then at Mr. Stevens, and replied in a kindly tone that he could imagine what the state-ment would be. Mr. Stevens said he didn't know that it could add to what had been already said, and the Judge did not hear what would no doubt have been a touching appeal for mercy toward a father. Then taking up the cases of Sherman and Meintire for sentence, Judge Jones aid he had carefully weighed the cases Fort township on vesterday afternoon in every way. "In my charge to the jury," continued Judge Jones, "I said the law sician, especially the poor, for he had a protected a man's reputation as much as it did his property. Here is a man who started out in life with many things against him. He has built up a reputation and bere in court proved as good a character as that of any man in Buncombe county. He has two rivals a business, who enter into a deliberate onspiracy to break him up and run bin out of town. They write to Armour & o, that Mr. Hill is a negro, that he has violated the criminal law and was pre paring to defraud the company leave. So far as this act is concerned they are equally guilty. The jury has found that Sherman's statements were fals and libelous. McIntire admits it. If the law equally protects a man's reputation and his money, then these men deliber ately tried to steal his reputation. If a be gotten back, but not so with a Lieut. Here was a deep laid plot to ruin the character of a and the New Puget sound naval station man. The people ought to be taught that they cannot ruin a man's reputa-tion unless there is good ground for it. I cannot see any difference in their guilt they are equally guilty and their pun-shment shall be the same. Make the entry, Mr. Clerk."

And then the sentence of one year each on the county roads was imposed.

Judge Jones then called the attention of the bar to a rule now existing which, if called to the attention of the County Commissioners, he thought they would change. It is that men sent to the chair gang for misdemeanors are made to wear stripes as are those sent up for felonies Stripes, he said, were a sign of an in-famous offence and should be worn only by men convicted of a felony. Messra. D. M. Luther, H. A. Gudger, ex-judge Carter, Solicitor Carter and Locke Craig spoke on the subject, agreeing with Judge Jones. On motion of Mr. Luther the Judge appointed a committee to properly present the matter to the County Commissioners and ask them to a change of centence from imprisonment to a fine, but Judge Jones remained firm. He suggested, however, that the men would carry the case to the Supreme court and it would not be decided before the December term, and if they should in the interim behave themselves the Governor might pardon them.
