Trying To Make Political Capital Out of a Remark Senator Vance Is Said To Have Made—Registration—The Tariff

From a Short-hand Report.

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the convention:

I don't know exactly what proceedings you have had up to the present time, but, if I understand it properly, you have gone and done it. In spite of the advice and disinterested counsels of the Democratic party, I am here to tell you, I have come before you for that purpose, that I am prepared to take the part that is assigned to me by your action today.

I don't know whether it was accident or design that you called this convention to meet on the 10th of May. As you know the 10th of May is called Decoration Day, the day when we decorate the graves of the Confederate soldiers. It does seem to me when I look over this vast enthusiastic crowd, that the indications are that you have met here, if not to decorate, at least to dig the grave of William Tecumseh Crawford. I am here to assure you that I am prepared and ready to take my part in that interesting ceremony. I have got so much to say that I know I cannot get through with it all without tiring you, and I propose to start in now in a running way until I wear your patience out.

Gentlemen, I know mighty well, and all of you who have been around in this district know very well that if you had had in your possession a gift for bestowal or an honor to confer, I had no claim to such gift or such honor. You know very well, those of you who have discussed the present political situation and the feelings, especially of the Republican party, that you would have chosen, if you preferred to make a straight fight on the old line, some of those true and trusty leaders who have battled with you steadfastly in the battles that have gone by in the past. You might have chosen that sagacious and practical leader who comes from Madison, that true and tried and trusty friend who has fought your battles in the past. I refer to the Hon. J. C. Pritchard and I say this now, before going farther, that in my judgment there are honors in store for him that neither Madison county nor North Carolina are able to confer by themselves. Gentlemen, you might have chosen, in making a straight political fight on old political lines, that uncompromising representative of Haywood who prefers to whip the Democratic party without taking any man out of their own ranks, who prefer to endeavor to beat sixteen thousand Democrats with 14,000 Republicans. You might have chosen that able and eloquent gentleman from Hendersonville. You might have chosen that old war-horse who sits here, or you might have chosen that stalwart old son of Bluncombe, who has been willing to fight in every position to which you have assigned him, from the Supreme court bench down to constable, it matters not where, if only the Republican party call him to the duty. I refer to the Hon. V. S. Lusk.

I am pleased to see that every county in this district is here represented in person. There is no county from which you might not have had a worthy standard-bearer in a fight on the old line. But you have gone against the advice of the Democratic party and have disgraced and lost yourselves in the opinion of the whole district by coming up and saying, "Gentlemen, this is not the time for feeling. The time has come when we must unite and oppose the administration at Washington. It is a question of victory, not of men."

The great man who was buried here the other day by loving hands from all parties has been quoted very differently of late in regard to the Democratic party. In fact we have read many eloquent and beautiful things which he has said in his last day. Some of these things may have been very authentic, some apocryphal. He said these words: "I want to see through North Carolina in the night time." Remembering the promises that he had made in the name of the Democratic party, remembering and witnessing what those men in Washington were doing, feeling how scandalously and cruelly they were treating him, and every friend of his and every promise of his made in the Democratic party, that grand man said for the first time in his noble life, "I don't want to look my people in the face."

He had done nothing to be ashamed of, but his party had. He knew that there was nothing for him to be ashamed of, and he was too bold to excuse what he had done and too manly to deny what he had done, and he did go back to the National capital in the night-time, and he only stayed a few weeks, long enough to see the members of his own committee on finance besmirched with the greedy sweetness of that sugar trust. He stayed there long enough to see the head of his party strike down one-half of the metallic money of the country, and then came the end. He did come back in the night-time and you laid him away in the windowless halls of eternal rest. It is well enough to make empty and eloquent speeches over his dead body, but the time to pay that man respect was while he lived; the time to heed his teachings was while he stood there protesting, in the name of the promises which he had endorsed, that the Democrats should give the people the little that they had a right to expect.

There is a thing that he said that doesn't need anything to vouch for it. It sounds exactly like him. It was this: in that letter which may be taken as the last epistle to the brethren of the Mecklenburg Alliance he used these words: "If the leaders persist in pursuing the course they have walked out of itself and leave nothing but the stench of brimstone and Wall street behind it." Gentlemen, that prophecy is coming true. Already the Democratic party is walking out of itself. Every breeze that blows over these blue mountains seems to be laden with the odor of burning sulphur and popular condemnation. I know what I am talking about. I have been all over your country, from Possum Trot to Cherokee. At every where that I have been there seems to be an odor in the air that smells like brimstone. There seems to be a sound in the air that sounds like the Democratic party walking.

WOMEN OPPOSE STRIKERS

READY TO GO INTO THE MINES THEMSELVES.

Critical Condition Of Affairs At Connellyville, Pa.—Coal Mines Abandoned Because Of Hostility.

CUMBERLAND, Md., May 12.—The situation in this, the George's creek coal region is unchanged. Very few mines are working. This morning 800 striking miners from Donaconing swooped down on the village of Eckhart and attempted to prevent the men at the mine of the Consolidated coal company going to work. The men could not be persuaded nor forced to abandon the intention of working. The wives of the miners willing to work assembled in a body at the mouth of the Eckhart mine and declared to the strikers that if they did not allow their husbands to go to work, they would go in the mines themselves, take up the picks and shovels and work for them.

CONNELLYVILLE, Pa., May 12.—The greatest excitement prevailed all night in this vicinity over the threatened attack on the Moyer works by 8,000 men who attended the meeting there yesterday. The company increased its guard to 125 men and issued strict orders to shoot down all who trespassed on the company's property. Nearly every person in town remained up all night expecting a desperate battle. An independent military company of 75 men was also held in readiness to move to Moyer on a moment's notice. The strikers, learning of the large force of armed men waiting their appearance at Moyer, dispersed.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 12.—Owing to the action of miners who persist in remaining out on strike for what the company considers no cause, the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company has decided to dismantle the Whitwell mines, move the company's store and abandon the mines indefinitely. This means that 500 men will be cut out of support from this source and will have to seek employment elsewhere.

FEMINE BOYCOTTERS.

They Won't Buy of Merchants Who Support Breckinridge.

LIVINGSTON, Ky., May 12.—The women of this city intend to demonstrate their protest against the renomination of Col. Breckinridge by arranging for a big reception in honor of Wm. C. Owens, the principal opponent of the Colonel, when he comes here to address the electors some day next week.

Eight boxes in the opera house will be filled with representative women of the Bluegrass region, who seldom take any part in politics. A large delegation of the same sex will occupy the main part of the house. A petition is being numerous signed by women of this city, who pledge themselves to attend the meeting.

Already the feminine opponents of Col. Breckinridge are boycotting the merchants who support his candidacy, and others are dismissing their family physicians for the same reason.

COMMITTEES MEET.

Getting to Work for the A. P. A. Convention.

A fair representation of the committees that will have in charge the arrangements for the coming of the American Pharmaceutical convention in September was present at the meeting in the City Hall this morning. Henry R. Chears of the State association addressed the meeting, giving necessary points that will help the committees in their labors. The committees are all going to work at once and will leave nothing undone to make the reception of the pharmacists an event that will never be forgotten. The finance committee will begin its canvass and the advertising committee has been instructed to have matter printed in all of the pharmaceutical journals.

Plans are being formulated for a great reception and literary and musical entertainment for the convention, and excursions and evening drives are to be mapped out. One of the excursions will probably be to Hot Springs. The ball is rolling now, and everything promises to be ship-shape for the visitors.

EARLY CLOSING.

A Movement That Will Give Clerks a Breathing Spell.

A movement is on foot to have an early closing rule observed during the summer months by all of the business houses in Asheville with the exception of grocery stores. The plan is to close at 7 p. m., and the idea has many arguments to commend it. Ordinarily there is little business done in the stores after 7 o'clock, and the closing at that hour would give the overworked clerks an opportunity to leave the daily grind and get recreation, which would be a benefit in every way.

How many of Asheville's business houses will join the early closing movement?

AT CARRIER'S.

Helen Gray and Lex The Race Winners Friday.

About 250 people attended and enjoyed the races at Carrier's track yesterday afternoon. The first race, running, was won by Dick Sevier's Helen Gray. Hollinsworth's Fannie came in second and Jack Rumbough's Ruby third.

The trotting race was scratched, there being nothing to oppose C. D. Blanton's Retriever.

The pony race was the best of the events. Pete Sevier's Lex won first prize; Tom Duggett's Tibbits second, and Casey Brown, Jr.'s Fannie third.

One Case of Smallpox.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—A colored man, aged about 30, was arrested here late last night, just after he got off the train from Roanoke, Va. The health officer found the man had a malignant case of confluent small pox.

REPUBLICAN LIBRARY AT

FILIBUSTERING TO STAVE OFF BUSINESS

They are Determined to Dawdle Along and Prevent Action on the Tariff Bill—Quay a Chief Offender.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—On yesterday, shortly after the time came for the introduction of bills in the Senate, Quay introduced a bill, previously introduced in another Congress, providing for a codification of the laws of the District of Columbia. It is one of the most voluminous bills in the document room, and Quay insisted that it be read the first time in full. Under the rules one objection carried it over until today.

The practice of reading bills by title the first and second time is done by unanimous consent only, and it does not appear clear how the Democrats can avoid listening to the reading of bills if the members who introduce them insist upon it. There are many very large and bulky measures that have never been enacted into law that slumber peacefully in the desks of Senators ready to follow the pace set by Quay, and there is, under the present rule, no means whereby a majority can prevent the introduction and reading of every document in the shape of a bill in the document room. By this means time will be consumed in the transaction of morning business until 1 o'clock arrives, when the tariff bill comes up and the Harris resolution to provide longer working hours for the Senate fails for the day. The Republicans of course deny that they are filibustering or consuming time needlessly. They announced today that they will hold a caucus Monday night at the residence of Senator Sherman to confer regarding the policy to be pursued by them in relation to the tariff bill.

COXEY'S NEW CAMP

Only a Hundred of The Original Army Left.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The start of the Coxeby army from Camp Tyranny for Bladenburg was made this morning promptly at 9 o'clock. The army with its recent additions numbered 525 men according to Carl Browne's figures, but it numbered less than a hundred of those who crossed the mountains. The troops seemed to appreciate the change from their unhealthy quarters as a picnic, particularly as the commissary wagons were well supplied for several days, at least. As a dime-drawing attraction the army had ceased to pay in the city, and yesterday, in order to get anything like a crowd, one of the wagons was driven through the streets displaying a big placard, "admission free to Coxeby camp today." The new camp is situated a distance of about six miles north-east of the city.

The motion for a new trial in the case of Coxeby, Browne and Jones will be called up Tuesday.

IN SOCIETY.

A Lawn Party Given Heggling Commonwealers.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., May 12.—Randall Commonwealers were entertained by J. M. Studebaker last night on his private grounds. The entertainment was in the nature of a lawn party. There was music, and covers were laid for 300. The guests arrived from New Carlisle, Hungary and footsore, and expressed appreciation of the repast. Thousands of South Bend citizens turned out to see the army walk into town and enter the Studebaker grounds. Last night the men slept in an open dance shed on Studebaker's Island Park. There was a general order to take a bath in the river, which was obeyed.

WANT HIM PAROLED.

Ex-State Treasurer Hemingway Wants To Get Out.

JACKSON, Miss., May 12.—Petitions asking for the pardon of ex-State Treasurer Hemingway, aggregating 13,000 names, were filed today with Gov. Stone by Judge S. Calhoun, who briefly reviewed the strange phases of the case. A number of petitions will be presented next week, when it is expected the total number of signers will reach 20,000. Col. Hemingway was sentenced for five years and has one year yet to serve. His friends are hopeful of obtaining a pardon.

Blew His Head Off.

LONDON, May 12.—While the British warship Galatea was firing a salute to the German fleet in the Firth of Forth this morning Gun Instructor Lawrence had his head blown off and Instructor Whitehead was seriously injured by the premature discharge of one of the ship's small guns. Two seamen were hurt.

Killed by Lightning.

DALTON, O., May 12.—This town was struck by a cyclone last evening. Trees were blown down, houses wrecked, roofs torn off and the pottery of E. Houghton demolished. Roy Oberlin was killed by lightning.

A Last Hope Gone.

LONDON, May 12.—Home Secretary Asquith positively refuses to order the release of Mrs. Maybrick, serving a life sentence on a charge of murdering her husband. He also refuses to reopen the case for the purpose of introducing new evidence.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

Capt. Watson, in command of the San Francisco, now at Bluefields, has demanded that the Nicaraguan authorities make reparation for the death of the American citizen killed there.

For the past week the failures have been 206 in the United States, against 247 last year and 42 in Canada, against 23 last year, with none of especial importance.

The President has sent to the Senate the nomination of H. H. D. Pierce of Massachusetts to be secretary of the legation at Petersburg.

Gov. Brown of Maryland has pardoned Stevenson Archer, the ex-State Treasurer, who embezzled $133,000.

Marion Spence, a prominent provision broker of Atlanta, has been missing for a week.
