DOCTRINES OF DEMOCRACY

EXPUNDED BY SENATOR RANSOM.

Conclusion of That Great Speech Begun in Yesterday's "Citizen"
—The Income Tax—Sugar—The Pops—Financial Theories.

As Senator Ransom proceeded with his speech at the Grand opera house yesterday afternoon the audience grew more and more interested and the good Democratic truths that fell from his lips were greeted with the greatest enthusiasm. Cheer after cheer interrupted the Senator and the effect of the applause was strengthened by the waving of many handkerchiefs by the Senator's admirers among the fair sex, who were present in goodly numbers. It was a worthy ovation to a worthy Democrat.

The Income Tax.

During the war the Republican party put a tax on whiskey, on tobacco, and on incomes. They had kept the tax on whiskey and on tobacco, but they took it off the incomes of the rich. The Democratic party has put that income tax back upon the surplus wealth of the plutocrats of the country. Every man who has an income exceeding $4,000 per year must now pay a tax to the United States government of two per cent. on the excess. This tax will raise from the shoulders of the poor, the honest, the patriotic people, $50,000,000 per year, and put it upon the surplus wealth of Wall Street.

The Sugar Tax.

Some populist friend would ask him: "Senator, ain't you ashamed that you put a duty of 20 per cent. on sugar?" No. The Republicans had made sugar free, but they paid the sugar manufacturer and refiner two cents bounty on each pound of sugar. Millions of dollars were thus taken from the treasury of the United States and put into the pockets of these manufacturers. The tax now on sugar goes into the United States treasury; the bounty went into the pockets of the sugar trust.

He would say something else the Democratic party had done. The Democratic party had reduced the expenses of this government. Economy is the greatest virtue in government. During the first year of Cleveland's term the Democratic party had saved $28,800,000. Republicans claimed that this reduction was accomplished by cutting off pensions. He would say that no just pension had been stopped. This saving was made notwithstanding the Democrats had passed a river and harbor bill entailing $12,000,000, while the Republicans had passed no river and harbor bill during their last year in power. This shows a saving by the Democratic party in its first year of about $41,000,000.

The Two Parties Contrasted.
The Democratic party was not perfect, nothing earthly is, and it might be accused of many things, but it had ever been true to the South—true to all the people. It had stood loyally by the interests of the seventy millions of free men who populate this Republic. The Democratic party is not a sectional party. How was it with the Republican party? For 25 years not a law was passed by the Republican party for the good of the South. He was a Southern man and a North Carolinian, and he could not endorse this long night of oppression to his section. When did Grant (and he spoke his name reverently), when did Arthur, when did Garfield, a Southern man an important foreign mission? Only one, Mr. Hunt of Louisiana. When had the South been honored by having one of her sons placed upon the bench of the Supreme court of the United States? By the Republican party? Mr. Harrison had given this honor to Judge Jackson of Tennessee in almost the last hours of his administration.

During Mr. Cleveland's five years' occupancy of the White House he had appointed four supreme court justices from the South, and he had appointed no one from the North. He had taken Carlisle, Smith and Herbert from the South. The speaker charged his hearers, both young and old, to stand by the party that stood by their section. Under Mr. Cleveland's administration, whether in home or foreign appointments, whether in Europe, Asia, or Africa, or on the cold borders of Canada, wherever you found a northern man, by his side you would find a southern patriot. Cleveland has done absolute justice to every section of the country, and without injustice there can be no peace.

A Retrospect.
Mr. Bancroft, said Senator Ransom, has said in his history that North Carolinians loved liberty more than any people on earth. Would North Carolinians now turn their backs upon the party that had given them not only liberty, but every blessing that made life dear to her 1,700,000 people? Look back 20 years and see what North Carolina was under Republican rule. Our public schools were blotted out, our University in darkness, railroads all stopped, court houses temples of injustice, public credit gone, State bonds worthless the paper upon which they were written. The Democratic party came into power, and how was it now? He would he could paint the picture as Democracy had made it. Not a man, woman or child in all of Carolina's borders, from where the waves of the Atlantic break upon Hatteras to the lofty pines of your own mountains, but can rest in peace and perfect security. Our courts are models of justice, no legislator has had a charge of corruption made against him, there are 7,000 schools upon 7,000 hill tops, full of happy children, our railroads are busy and prosperous, and our State credit as good as that of Massachusetts or New York.

And now go to Washington—go into the two houses of Congress and find there Daniels, Gordon, Harris, Faulkner, Morgan, and my own associate, Senator Jarvis, and not one breath of scandal has ever touched the fair name of a Southern representative.

Twenty years ago the race question confronted the people of North Carolina. Some Northern men tried to weld the negroes together in a chain of prejudice against the white people. Today the colored people were happy and prosperous, and the white people were willingly taxing themselves that the negro might be educated. What had the Democratic party done in all these years that was not good for Republicans as well as themselves?

The Pops.
The 6000 years of the world's history, said the speaker, have tested the value of liberty, and yet the Populist party comes along and declares that they have found the only true way. What have the Populists done? Have they saved you from any of the curses of the past 20 years? No, they were not here. The Populists were mad about the finances. They had presented to the country their financial views. It amounted simply to a bad dream, a mad dream, a wild dream. There were four Populists in the Senate and ten in the House, and during the last session of Congress they had introduced bills which, if they had been enacted into law and carried out, would have required the expenditure of more money than is to be found upon the face of the whole earth today. Should the money of Europe, Asia, Africa and North and South America be placed at the disposal of these financiers it would be a sum far too small to meet their demands for one single session of Congress.

Where Is The Leader?
There is only one instance in all history, said Senator Ransom, of which I have any knowledge, that at all resembles the present attempt to destroy the Democratic party. The Children of Israel after they had been ground down under the heel of Egyptian bondage, after they had been forced to make bricks without straw, after their children had been torn from them, after the plagues had fallen upon Pharaoh, after the Red Sea had opened before them that they might go through on dry land, after the pillar of cloud had watched them by day, and the pillar of fire had guarded them by night, after the rocks had been smitten to give them drink when thirsty, and the heavens had rained bread for their food, after Sinai had smoked, and the law of God himself—after all these things, there were those who built a golden calf at the base of the mountain and demanded a captain to lead them back into bondage and degradation. Where is the man who will call for a captain to lead them back into the Republican days from '65 to '76?

To Be Yet Done.
"And now, my countrymen," said the speaker, "when the next Congress of the United States shall meet, when its Senators and Representatives shall come up from the people, I believe that the Democratic party, the party that has repeated odious election laws, the party that has given us a new tariff law, will take up the financial question, and will give us a measure that will give us gold, silver, and paper money redeemable in gold and silver, and then will have been redeemed every pledge, in both letter and spirit, made the people by the Chicago platform."

ROAD CONFERENCE.
Charlotte Has Put Up a Great Program.
CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—The North Carolina good roads conference was called to order at 12:30 p. m., by Dr. J. D. Brevard, mayor of Charlotte and president of the North Carolina road improvement association. There were about 300 delegates present, representing a majority of the counties in the State.

Dr. Brevard delivered a short address of welcome. Jas. C. Stevenson of Wilmington responded eloquently, as, too, did T. W. Patton, mayor of Asheville. At 1 p. m. the conference adjourned for dinner, reassembling at 2:30 p. m. to adjourn until 8 p. m. The delegates being escorted around the city to witness road building by a new process and the working of the new machinery.

POISON IN THE BRANDY

FOUL PLAY SUGGESTED IN THE SWAINE CASE.

Recall of The Coroner's Inquest Into The Hot Springs Death—Colored Man's Story.

A new turn has been given the events in connection with the death of H. M. Swaine at Hot Springs on Tuesday night, and there are whispers that poison was placed in his brandy with felonious intent. Mystery seems to surround the affair and an investigation has been started by the authorities of Madison county.

According to W. C. Hudgins who came from Hot Springs this morning, an inquest into the death of Mr. Swaine was held at the Springs yesterday by Coroner Roberts and a jury from Marshall. The jury deliberated until midnight, and Mr. Hudgins says that at that hour a verdict was returned to the effect that death was caused by strychnine.

The story told by Mr. Hudgins as having been brought out at the inquest is full of interest. Ab. McCorkle, the 20 years old colored boy who was made ill by the same drink that caused Mr. Swaine's death was an important witness. He said that when his employer returned from Asheville on Monday, he met him on the way from the depot, and the two drank from a bottle of French brandy that Mr. Swaine took with him from this city.

"The next afternoon," says Mr. Hudgins, "Mr. Swaine had been taking a nap, and McCorkle says that on waking up he called for a glass of ice water. McCorkle took this to him and when Mr. Swaine had drunk from the glass he motioned to the servant to get the brandy from his grip and give him a drink of that. The boy did this and after emptying the remaining water from the glass he says he poured out a stiff drink of the brandy for his employer. Mr. Swaine drank this, and the boy says he immediately said it had an unusual taste. He told the boy to take it and not give him any more. The boy took a drink himself on the way down stairs and says he found the same taste and noticed how different it was from the way the brandy tasted the night before. In a few minutes both were sick, and McCorkle was not able to go for a doctor when called."

Mr. Hudgins says that Dr. Hardwicke of Marshall was at the inquest and that he took some of the brandy from the bottle to experiment on a toad. A well developed frog was injected with the brandy and it is said that in two minutes the animal was dead and his body badly swollen. Mr. Hudgins says that Mr. Swaine's body turned black within 12 hours after his death.

PLANTER-PROTECTIONISTS.
Anti-Tariff Reformers Going Over To The Enemy.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 13.—The sugar planters of the First Congressional district met at Plaquemine parish court house at Pointe La Hache yesterday. There were about 400 persons present; all the sugar and rice planters and the orange growers and all the farmer Democrats from the parishes of Orleans, St. Bernard and Plaquemine, which constitute the district. H. M. Kernoch, an ex-Republican naval officer at New Orleans under Cleveland, presided. Speeches were made by Kernoch, State Senator Estopinal, ex-District Attorney Wilkinson, George P. Anderson and George Mann, all sugar planters who advocated acting with the Republicans, while ex-Congressman Wilkinson, now collector of customs at New Orleans, and Representative Dimond called upon the planters to support the Democratic ticket.

The vote showed the supporters of Republican alliance to have a majority, and resolutions strongly Republican and protectionist in tone were adopted. The president was instructed to appoint a committee of 21 to select a candidate for Congress to run on the Republican platform.
