PEARSON'S CHILDISH CAMPAIGN (continued)
Rutherfordton, N. C., Sept. 18.—[Special]—It would have been a sight to make the heart of every true Democrat sink within him to see W. S. Barnes, secretary and treasurer of the Farmers' Alliance in North Carolina, step aboard the eastbound train at Round Knob Monday, and it would have made the same Democrats fall into fits to see this same Barnes, a few minutes later, with his mouth in the ear of Richmond Pearson, Capital and labor had met as it were—the "Heavenly Twins" were together.

The train sped on to Marion; we hustled through to the C. & S. road; we looked again, and Barnes, oh, where was he? Pearson was asked and this was what he said: "Gone! Lost him at Marion! To be candid with you, Barnes may not be on hand tomorrow!"

Pearson was a palpable disappointment to his friends from start to finish. He mouthed over that old Alliance card matter for two thirds of his time; then, negro, to place in Washington, and he Pearson, wound up with the mileage question.

Crawford had admitted at Asheville that he signed the card. He had also said that he had appointed the negro to a position in Washington to scrub floors, and that he turned him out a few weeks later when he found that he was a recumbent; and there is no dispute about the mileage having been appropriated.

Crawford showed how the Duke had refused to run because he had spent time and money enough in that kind of foolishness. How Ewart had done the same thing for the same reasons. How Moody had been shoved to one side and Pearson put out as a "broken down Democrat" just to see what he could do. He declared that Pearson had been a traitor to every political principle he had ever known; that he had spent one-half of his time in trying to convince the people that he (Crawford) had been guilty of telling one political lie in four years, when every man present knew that he (Pearson) had lived a hundred political lies during the past six months.

THEY VOTED FOR FREE SILVER
THE OHIO DEMOCRATS HAVE A MOVING TIME.
A Resolution Adopted That United States Senators Should be Elected by Direct Vote of the People-Brice Secured and Leaves the Hall During the Convention.

THEY VOTED FOR FREE SILVER (continued)
COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 20.—In the Democratic convention yesterday, when the platform had been read, Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland rose in his seat and submitted the following addition: "We favor the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people, and for the purpose of practically effecting that end, we hereby direct that the Democratic State central committee, in issuing a call for a State convention for the nomination of State officers in the year 1895, include therein an announcement that a candidate for the United States Senate will be named by said convention, who shall receive the support of the Democratic members of the legislature to be thereafter elected."

When Congressman Johnson presented this resolution the audience cheered for a couple of minutes. In a brief address in support of his resolution, he said the Senate was getting too far from the people and this was the only way in which it could be brought closer. This sentiment was applauded.

Here pandemonium broke out afresh. There were cheers, hisses, shouts of "rats!" "go on!" "sit down!" Twenty points of order were raised and on every one of them the chair ruled that the speaker was within his rights. But the minority kept up its demonstration, and finally, with a closing appeal for everybody, old-fashioned honesty in politics, Clarke took his seat. Meanwhile, Senator Brice, his face flushed, sat in full view of the audience, now nervously chewing his toothpick and again running his hand through his long hair.
