PRINTED DAILY (EXCEPT SUNDAY) AND WEEKLY... SUBSCRIPTION RATES: One Year, $3.00; Six Months, $1.50; Three Months, $1.00; One Month, in advance, 50c; One Week, paid to carriers, 15c.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1894.

Mr. Crawford had the sheriff call the name of W. S. Barnes at Rutherfordton on Tuesday, but there was no response, and the great ease of Pearson vs. Crawford was not pressed and the complainant, Pearson, assessed with the costs in the case for not having his witness on hand.

CRAWFORD is now offering $50 reward for the man who will acknowledge that he was responsible for the sub-treasury bill being on the demand cards of the Alliance in North Carolina in 1890, when that order never adopted that measure as one of its demands. W. S. Barnes may be able to make $50 with comparative ease by throwing light on this question.

We observe with a ghoulish glee that we have successfully shunned the dirge of the Charleston News and Courier off onto the Wilmington Messenger, so that if we fail now to mention the name of the News and Courier's candidate for the Senate in this state at least once daily the omission is unnoticed. It is to be regretted, however, that the Messenger should have caused the editor of the News and Courier to so far forget himself that he indulges, as will be seen by a clipping from our Charleston contemporary in another column, in profane language, bodily lunging in the home of a brave and good people to do so.

WHATEVER the result of the present war between Japan and China—a war that the latter nation would do well to bring to an end as soon as possible—we may be sure that China will not rest satisfied under whatever sacrifices she may have to make now, but will simply get ready for the next struggle with the same nation. It may be years hence, and the present generation may not see the issue joined in open warfare, but all the ability Chinese statesmen possess will be given to the problem of how to recoup for the losses of the war of 1894. China has the men and the resources; what she lacks is unity within herself, and officers with the knowledge to place her armies on a footing to fight scientifically.

The silence of the Republican orator in the Maine campaign on the income tax was significant. It is an out-and-out Democratic measure, and it was to be supposed that it would come in for its share of the denunciation of the Republican campaign speakers. But they see that, while they did not have the courage to propose and pass such a measure themselves, it is nevertheless so popular with the people that it would not be safe to criticize the Democratic party for raising a large share of the revenues of the government by a tax on incomes. The New York Republicans, it is true, in convention assembled, denounced the tax, but that was to be expected of a convention whose candidate is a millionaire on whom the tax will fall with considerable weight.

THE UNITED STATES SENATE. The orator in the Ohio Democratic convention who enthused his hearers by denouncing the Senate of the United States by referring to it as a rich man's club could not have been so bold over the country by the same speech. We are supposed to pay our Senators $5,000 a year, but there is a pretty well authenticated estimate that puts the annual cost of United States Senators at $24,000 each. They come too high to have more of the same kind that has established the amount of college and fine soap a Senator can use at the expense of the taxpayer as a pretty accurate measure of his greatness.

The salary of a Senator is small, comparatively, but men of conceded ability do not show any disposition to give it up, the perquisites being so enormous and attractive that the salary is a small part of the inducement to remain in Washington.

In the case of Brice, particularly, the Democrats of Ohio would do well to make a change. He does not reside in the State, and he is smirched with the sugar trust. Surely there is a man in Ohio without great riches who has the ability and the courage to pave the way for reforms in the Senate by paying more attention to the wishes of the people, and refusing to prey on their money by grabbing everything from scented baths to lead pencils. One thing is certain: if the Senate does not reform itself the people will find a way to accomplish the work. In that case as much harm as good may be done, for the Senate in theory is all right; it is the kind of men we send there that have brought it into disrepute.

NORTH CAROLINA NEWS

Some of the leading Republicans in Wake county are making public avowals of their hostility to nation. Among those who are speaking is ex-Congressman John Nichols. The directors of the Piedmont bank of Greensboro, have elected Mr. J. M. Walker president to succeed the late Col. J. M. Winstead.

The prevailing style this season in men's wear are long cut frock and sack suits in black, blue and grey chevrons. We have them by the hundreds at prices never so low before. Whitlock Clothing House, 46 South Main St., Eagle block.

THE NEW JERSEY ROADS.

Some Great Object Lessons for the Farmers of Buncombe County. NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Next to Saturday, which was spent in lower Jersey, yesterday was the busiest day the Buncombe delegates have had. They went over to Passaic, for a trip through Passaic, Bergen and Hudson counties. These are in a more hilly country than anything the roadsters had seen up to this way—in fact, some of the roads have grades that remind one of portions of Buncombe. Gen. Roy Stone met the party in the morning and made the rounds with it, pointing with pride, which he always has in good roads, wherever they may be, to the work of improvement and the manner of its doing. Besides Gen. Stone there were in the party Colin R. Wise, city engineer of Passaic, and formerly a Georgian; Leslie S. Menger, county inspector of roads; Edward Burger and F. J. Marley, contractors. These gentlemen had carriages and the visitors were driven over the good roads of three counties until late afternoon. Our old friend Postmaster Harrison of Asbury Park, was also one of the party a portion of the time.

Wherever the delegation went it was some old story of good roads that has been heard all over the skeyter state. But though it is an old story it is a powerfully interesting and important one, and one that does not take second place for anything. The people up here build good roads just as men everywhere go into business. They recognize that it is a matter of dollars and cents to put down roads that will help them to market their products easily—which means cheaply. It is an investment that never fails to bring the biggest kind of returns, and the people will never be satisfied with anything else. In the counties named the roads are built 10 to 15 feet wide. At the same time some of them are shallowest yet seen. On one the stone was only 2 1/2 inches in depth, and is said to be wearing very satisfactorily. A four-inch deep road was driven over in Bergen county and was found one of the best yet driven over. To build this road cost in the neighborhood of $2000 a mile. Roads in upper Jersey can be constructed much more cheaply than in the lower part of the State, because of the proximity to the great quarries, where some of the best macadam in the country can be gotten out with the least bit of blasting. Bergen is called the benighted county of New Jersey, because of its dilatoriness in taking hold of the road improvement question.

On the trip, which, throughout, was one which furnished much valuable information on the important question, the party stopped at Haerber's road house, where Mrs. H., a jolly German matron, furnished refreshments at the call of M. Menger and somebody got a sample of Jersey lightning. They survived the shock, however, and found it was not such a bad thing to be a target for that particular brand of lightning. The party also stopped a moment or two at the Bellevue hotel, a structure that is declared to have been built in 1683. It doesn't look it.

After a good day's work the delegation returned to New York. There it was decided by some of the delegates to make the Canandaigua trip, and they left Monday night for that place, guided by Gen. Stone and accompanied by Mayor Patton, who had been missing from Friday night, when he got off at Baltimore, and finally Messrs. Powell and Clayton and THE CITIZEN will leave for home this afternoon.

The trip has been a good one to take. The delegation has put in good time at work, and good results are bound to follow. The people everywhere showed the delegates every courtesy, and nothing was too much for them to do to show how great a pride they had in their good roads.

The committee is greatly indebted to Gen. Stone for the aid he has given in planning the trip and arranging for the taking care of the members on the rounds.

The Southern railway has shown that it means to make good its promises to do good for the South, in its treatment of the Buncombe delegation. This company furnished transportation for the body between Asheville and Washington, and this fact is surely a plain indication that the company has a deep interest in the improvement of this section, which is sure to follow more rapidly than ever when the road system is improved.

THE WILDENUSES. A Clergyman in Charlotte. They are a moral people. They have not broken a law of the State since they have been here. They are of a fiery temperament. I am told that they eat salt-burn in their soup once every two weeks. Exactly what effect this has on their temperament I do not know.

Carbuncles Large as Hen's Eggs! Mrs. NANNIE GOLDMAN, of Beaufort, N.C., writes as follows: "For about eight or ten years my father, Col. T. F. Fogg, of West Point, Va., was laid up with carbuncles, the worst that I ever saw. He tried everything he heard of, but his doctor could do nothing for him. He had six or seven carbuncles at a time, as large as hen's eggs. He got so weak and suffered so much he could not walk a step. In 1872 he was laid up in the middle of his room and got up in it to get well. He saw Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery advised for all blood disorders. Before he had taken half a bottle of 'Discovery' they began to go away. Two bottles entirely cured him. He is now 78 years old, and enjoys good health."

A PROHIBITION OPINION.

As to the Tariff and the Business Prospect. From the New York Voice. The McKinley bill is dead, and no political party will ever, we venture to say, re-enact it. Even the Republican party will never dare to re-enact a law on the lines of that bill, for the lessons of 1890 and 1892 were such as to abide in the memories even of politicians. It is almost pathetic to note the joy with which business men herald another (temporary?) settlement of the tariff issue. All the trade journals are telling what an immediate revival of trade is at hand, and facts appear to bear them out. The writer of this, returning to this city at midnight last week from attendance at a Prohibition meeting in Pennsylvania (and, to his amazement, hotel after hotel filled to such an extent that he could not even get a cot to sleep on. Inquiry developed the fact that the city was full of merchants rushing from all parts of the country to buy goods. It looks as though the industrial skies were beginning to clear. The strain has been a prolonged one, and the 'calamity howler' has had plenty of calamity to howl about; but its long lunge that has no turning.
