The Chinese deny that Port Arthur has been taken by the Japanese. They will probably be ready to admit it by the time Peking is part of the spoils of war in Japan's museum.

If all the plans of the Rep. Pop. commission for undoing the government of this State are carried out, its own members would not recognize it. They are eager to get at the work of ripping the Old North State up by the heels. Ah! if only they had discretion and wisdom in comparison to their zeal!

Twenty thousand dollars would perhaps have provided Marion with water works; the interest on that sum would have been a trifling burden compared with that which the town must now bear. There must be some proportion of those burned out Sunday who will never get on their feet again, and it may be that there is some suffering in the community and that it needs help. If so, Asheville ought to be the first to proffer assistance.

When we wrote of the pole nuisance yesterday the report of the Mayor on that subject was not at hand. It is gratifying to see that the matter is under serious consideration. The report estimates that there are 800 poles in the city of no use to anyone and a disfigurement besides. It is to be hoped the law is such that the City Attorney will see us way clear to advising the Board that the owners of the poles can buy 50 days in which to take them away, and that, if not removed, they will be cut down.

It is always interesting to have a high official of the United States government among us, to take his weight, to discover his claims to greatness, to see if he is what the world at large has thought he was. The fierce light that beats around the throne is supposed to betray every weakness, every indiscretion. It is comparatively a mild light in which the Vice President of the United States sits, but it is easy to see by that the present occupant, as he goes to and fro in Asheville, is a solid citizen of the Republic, a man of sense, without false ideas of dignity, with no flimflam about him; a plain man of the people, ready to go up higher if the people call; equally ready to go back to the plow if Cincinnati or the McCormick reaper and binder of Illinois. Under the circumstances of his visit at this time, Mr. Stevenson is certain of the heartfelt sympathy of all of us. He and Mrs. Stevenson may be assured, also, that whatever their hopes in the present hour of trial they are keenly shared by the entire community, with prayers like unto theirs, and with a profound wish that they may still be saved.

POSTMASTER GENERAL'S REPORT. Postmaster Bissell has just made his annual report. We seldom look for anything very exciting from these messages of the cabinet officers, they are generally old straw to long thrashed over. But Mr. Bissell is original, vigorous and interesting in his report. The most important topic is "Abuses connected with second class matters." Mr. Bissell states without reserve that advertisers, book publishers and others have taken advantage of the broad construction of what constitutes matter of the second class by sending out their advertisements and publications under the technical disguise of newspapers and periodicals, and have thus secured the benefit of the lower rate of postage. He has discovered that the abuse has grown so great that it now costs the government eight times as much to carry second class matter, as the revenue derived from it. Part of this second class matter is thus referred to by the Postmaster General:

"The most conspicuous class of these pretended periodicals are what are now generally known as serial paper covered books. They are in no sense serial, however, except in name, being usually given some such general designation as the 'Fireside Series,' the 'Detective Library' or some other title of like character. They are nothing but books, pure and simple, and many of them very trashy. At that, each one distinct in itself, the 'series' never being devoted to anything in particular, having few subscribers, and with no real subscription price, except a nominal one for not one man in a hundred ever dreams of buying the books except as he would buy any other book."

The Postmaster General will be doing the public a great service if he can, under the present law or a new one made for that purpose, retire this class of publications from the benefits of the second class rate. They come fairly under the head of pernicious literature, and are bought almost wholly by boys on whom they cannot have a bad influence. Mr. Bissell adds:

"If it be the policy of the Congress to continue the privileges on second class rates to benevolent or fraternal societies then the remedy I would suggest would be an amendment to the law, limiting this rate to them and to legitimate newspapers and legitimate periodical magazines. I believe that one year's experience under such limitations, with the frauds and abuses checked, would demonstrate that we have already reached the time and conditions when all such legitimate newspapers and periodical magazines may be transmitted through our mails from publishers into the hands of subscribers free of all costs."

We do not see, however, why "legitimate newspapers and periodical magazines" should not pay their way. If they were sent free there would be but few instances where the public would have the benefit of the reduction; the publishers would reap the advantage. Mr. Bissell's recommendation in this particular is, however, in the right direction.

A BABY BOY STOLEN. From the Atlanta Journal. A thief has stolen my baby boy, and never again will he come to me. He was with me here last yesterday. And I loved and watched him tenderly. But a lad is standing by my side. A lad that is strong in his youthful prime. For the thief that stole my little boy Was the thief of years-old Father Time.

WHAT THEY'LL DO.

The Reps. Pop. Preparing to Change the Face of Earth. Raleigh correspondence Atlanta Constitution. Mr. J. C. L. Harris, ex-secretary of the Republican State Executive committee said: "My country, the legislature will enact a new election law, not wholly on our own terms. It will be one to secure fair elections, with no advantage to either side. The legislature will repeal the county government law, and restore the election of all county commissioners, magistrates and school commissioners to the people. It will most probably put a check on the commissioners by having a board of audit and finance, composed of persons of opposite politics to the commissioners, so that no draft upon the treasurer shall be valid until approved by the board of audit and finance. I do not think the legislature will disturb the railway commission. "As to State aid to the university there is no doubt more opposition than ever before, but whether the appropriation will be withdrawn I cannot say. I doubt it. I doubt that the legislature will go so far as such a step would kill the university. "As to the United States Senator. Butler will be given the long term without objection. As to the short term there will be a spirited contest, in which Messrs. Prichard and Dockery will be in the lead as the principal candidates. "As to what the legislature will do with the department of agriculture that depends on what the farmers say. This is an opinion that the department is less safe for the purpose of preventing frauds in fertilizers and that the rest of it ought to be abolished. Whenever the legislature can make changes in the personnel of the department of agriculture it will do so, but there will be no tearing down and building up. Some extremists say repeal the railway commission act for a few days, four months to get rid of the present members, and then re-enact the law and put in new men. The legislature may take hold of the penitentiary, the maintenance of the latter being a serious matter. I think the legislature will pay school teachers salaries instead of fees. A lot could be done as to this and at the same time, by a system of tax from officers, meet all the expenses of the school system. There will in all probability be a new code. It is 11 years since the present one was prepared. A new one is greatly needed. The jurisdiction of magistrates will be very considerably enlarged in various ways so as to cover a territory not exceeding $10. Magistrates will probably also be given authority to have a jury trial in those cases where the amount in controversy is over $10. The new legislature will be to reduce the expenses of the State government, particularly those of account of the criminal justice. It is thought that the present law is to be repealed and a new one to be enacted. The office of county superintendent of public institutions and the county boards of education will very probably be abolished. A salary of $20,000 will be made, which means going to the public schools. The duties of the county superintendent will probably be devolved upon the chairman of the county commissioners. The charters of many cities and towns, such as Raleigh, Wilmington, etc. will be amended. "I really believe the work of the legislature will be conservative and that the business will hold the state by the reins to hold it. It will not make the South Carolina dispensary law. It will do nothing to make the State any more liberal. It will repeat what is known as the 'Columbian' purchase tax, which is extremely unpopular. If the legislature had the nerve to abolish the penitentiary save for long term criminals and restore the whipping post and let the people vote on this or an amendment to the constitution it would be adopted overwhelmingly. The negroes themselves would vote for it. In fact it would have no opposition worth speaking of. "Another matter to be considered will most earnestly consider is the keeping open of the public schools for 10 months in each year. This will certainly be done if the charter of the state contains a provision for the same. The constitution is to be amended. "The Colonel Knows His Own Weakness. From the Detroit Free Press. Colonel Corkscrew of Kentucky was a dignified citizen, with a flowing red nose, and while he had his weaknesses, he was held to be scrupulously honest. One day a business man called him into his office. "Colonel," he said, "I want to leave a valuable package with you for a week or so." "Very good, sir," replied the colonel. "Here it is." "It's here in my desk. I want to say to you that it is a gallon of whiskey. Are you to be trusted with it?" "The colonel's face flushed. "Yes, I understand; but this is not drug store whiskey; it's genuine 3 year-old I say!" "The colonel's eyes shone. "The man took the demijohn out, and the colonel inspected it carefully and satisfied himself that it was as represented, then he set it down on the floor. "Exact my word, sir," he said and said, "that I think you had better store that in the vault of the safe deposit company?"

FINCER FOR A NEW NOSE.

The Remarkable Operation of a London Surgeon on a Noseless Man. The achievements of American surgeons in bold and extraordinary operations have long been the wonder of the world. But now from the other side of the Atlantic comes a story which shows that the old country is walking up to the front rank of the world in this respect. A young man has put his finger to his nose, and it remains there permanently.

A few months ago, says the New York World, a youth whose nasal organ was missing, as the result of an accident, called at Charles Cross, head of the London, with the request that the surgeon would supply the deficiency, artificially or otherwise. He expressed himself as willing to undergo any sort of treatment by which his disfigured face might be made fairly presentable, and he was absolutely resolved to do his best. Sunday morning, Mr. Bloom, the senior surgeon, took the interesting case in hand. First, the amputated finger of another patient was curled and fashioned to the semblance of a nose, and then secured to the patient's face by means of a sutural apparatus. The mutilated facial appendage had not survived its cutting up. It was "dead," and failed to take fresh root.

The noseless man, nothing daunted, though, turned to the surgeon's face and said: "I should be cut off for a madman's dream. But in order that the finger should not be wasted in the event of this operation being unsuccessful, it was only being amputated. The patient's arm being raised in position, the finger was cut off in the hope of its taking root. The portion which was still attached to his hand was then cut through and soon joined the rest in adhering firmly to the face. Although minus a finger, the young man now has a new nose of his own. The transferred earlobe has been so manipulated that it is entirely lost, and the further process of shaping it is now being completed. It is not known whether the young man's previous nose, the "fincher" or the "finger," will double in length in a position to take his choice. He is certainly not about to go to be content with any sort of nose that happens to turn up.

LANDSCAPES WHILE YOU WAIT.

A Lightning Act Which Keeps Up with the Automobiles. The greatest American declaration of speed is strikingly illustrated by a painter who has opened a studio and a luncheon room on one of the principal business streets, apparently to demonstrate that Landscapes can be painted in a hurry when the "waiter" is long. The Boston Transcript. A man who happened to stray into the art gallery one morning chanced to speak of Raphael, and was asked by the painter who Raphael was, and if he had ever seen him. Before he could answer the artist had exclaimed: "The falls of the Yellowstone" in all, the picture had been framed, sold, and the purchaser had gone out with the price under his arm. The lightning act had left his paints spread out before him in a heap on a sort of mortar board and ranged behind him in a row on one side of his easel the thousand canvases, frames that he turns out before breakfast. Follow him while he produces a moonlight scene. First, he gets out his whitewash brush with the long handle, and dipping it in the diluted wash he coats the sky of evening. But he is careful to leave a small circle uncolored in the center that is to stand for the moon. Then across the bottom of the canvas the brush is flung, leaving behind it a line of black, and while two patches of black paint at each end form the shadowy hills. Then, with a narrow brush of black, the trees and their bare branches are painted, as if the artist were stripping the wheels of an express wagon. Another dash of black washers for a boat, and two irregular blotches are the men propping it. By this time the picture is nearly done. "How much for this elegant moonlight scene in the north westerly style?—One dollar and sixpence, cents do I hear?" said the buyer and the painter's eyes shone as he looked at his money. "Lightning in painting it under his arm," said the painter, "and the artist's hand is on the money. He had better go home and give the old folks a show. But, boys," he added to the slowly retreating forms, "come down tomorrow. I'll have some nice beds put up here tonight, so that you need not go home to sleep." And the "professor" has the honor of being the first of the customers, who begins to point out the merits of "an elegant forest scene."

AN ELEGANT COINCIDENCE.

The Vienna correspondent of the London Standard says that on one of the estates of Count Potok in Galicia the very rare event of a mother, daughter and granddaughter each giving birth to a son on the same day has just occurred. The mother is forty-eight, and the infant son is her sixteenth child. The daughter, who has just presented her husband with his eighth, thirty-three years old, and the granddaughter, who was married last year, is not yet quite sixteen. All the three new-born sons are strong and healthy, and the same may be said of their mothers, who belong to the Polish peasant class.

INDIA STAYS AT WINDSOR.

Queen Victoria's store of India shawls is failing. The shawls are getting scarce and dearer every year. After the India tribute was laid upon certain princes and chiefs in India to their sovereign lady of divers costly stuffs, and for a number of years the shawls, etc., arrived regularly; but of late years, owing to the deaths of some of the tributary potentates and the suppression of others, the stock has much declined. The profuse articles are kept in a handsome wardrobe at Windsor under the care of the queen's first wardrobe woman.

A FATAL ERROR.

If He Hadn't Proposed on Monday, All Would Have Been Well. "Miss Snuggles," began the youth, "I speak of a matter that lies very close to my heart." "Please, Mr. Snuggles," she interrupted, with a pleading gesture, "don't say anything that!" "Let me speak!" he went on. "I have held my heart in check and choked back the words that have risen to my lips until—" "Oh, Mr. Spoonmore! Don't!" "Call my feelings have mastered me and the time has come when I can no longer—" "Can't you see?" "I see nothing but you, Japonica Snuggles! I hear nothing but the sound of your voice. I think of nothing but you. I can't sleep at night. I don't know what to do with myself in the daytime. For three weeks I have taken no interest in politics. For three weeks I have not eaten enough to keep a jumping bean alive. I don't take any more interest in the coming chrysanthemum show than if it were an exhibition of farm wagons or Early York poultry. I have come here this evening to say—" "Mr. Spoonmore, I ask you not to—" "Do you mean to tell me I am presuming too much in daring to think of you, to carry your image in my heart, to dream of a time when we two—" "I did not say that, but—" "Then, why should I not speak? Have you seen how much I love you?" "Mr. Spoonmore, I will not pretend to misunderstand your meaning. You have come to tell me you love me." "I have! I am at this moment a raging torrent of love! I am an avalanche of unmovable firmness! Japonica—" "With clasped hands the beautiful girl stood before him. "Oh, Mr. Spoonmore," she said wildly, "my heart pleads in your favor, but why, oh, why, did you come this evening?" "Why not this evening?" "Surely you could have come at some other time." "Surely I could, but why should I not have chosen this evening to ask you to be my wife?" "Because, Mr. Spoonmore," replied the maiden, her eyes dewy with unshed tears and her lovely lips quivering, "it's Monday, and to say 'Yes' now would look so much as if I were getting you from the bargain counter!"—Chicago Tribune.
