IN FAVOR OF GEORGE W. YOUNG

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS DECIDE THE CLERKSHIP CASE.

The Argument Heard Yesterday Afternoon and the Decision Reached at 2:30 Today by a Unanimous Vote—Special Meeting to Consider Prohibition Petitions.

When the time arrived for the hearing by the County Commissioners yesterday afternoon of the case wherein Wm. H.
Wilson made formal demand for the office of clerk for Buncombe county of the Circuit Criminal court, the crowd around the railing was so anxious to hear that Chairman Rankin soon had to ask the listeners to stand back and give the speakers room.

The case was opened by Locke Craig, attorney for Mr. Wilson, who presented a certified report of the election of his client by the legislature. This was accompanied by Mr. Wilson's bond for $10,000, whereupon Mr. Craig asked the induction of his client into the office.
He proceeded to cite sections from the constitution having bearing on the case.
He said it was claimed the general assembly had no power to elect the court officers. But the assembly had the power to designate the manner of the election of these officers and the act itself had prescribed that they should be chosen by the legislature. "I am a Democrat," Mr. Craig said; "I voted the Democratic ticket and always expect to do so, but I had it in my power to do so I should say that the men who are trying to get these offices now should not have them. Governor Carr, representing the head of the Democratic party, when he attempts by a political trick to take the offices from these men who were elected in doing one of the worst things possible for the party, I know I address a Democratic Board, but it is a fact beyond question that many people think the men elected ought to have the places. If the legislature did do lots of unwise things, that is no reason why we should be guilty of such tricks. Geo. Young is one of my best things he could ever do for himself to refuse the office."

Mr. Craig read further from the constitution, arguing that there was no vacancy in the office, in which case the Governor could have the appointment.
The Governor had tried to fill the office from the beginning, not as in a vacancy, because he had sent the nominations to the Senate. Concluding he said: "I am sorry the Governor took such action. It is not a high position either politically or morally."

Joseph S. Adams attorney for Geo. W.
Young, who was commissioned clerk by Governor Carr, asked the Board to accept the bond of Mr. Young, supporting the request by the submission of Mr.
Young's commission, which was read.
"I have been very much interested," Mr.
Adams said, "in my Brother Craig's argument, and admired very much the sentiments he expressed, because if I thought there was any danger of the Democratic party doing anything wrong in this matter I would be one of the first to speak out. It is the duty of the Attorney General to advise the officers of the State, and I am sure that you are not bound to follow his advice, yet if the Governor would do a great wrong if he would ignore the opinion of the great representative of the people put there for that purpose. This Board has the right to assume that the executive took the necessary advice; he took a position, and that that should go very far in making up your opinion. This matter has been decided by a high call certificate."

Here Mr. Adams read from article 4 of the constitution and made the point that the legislature itself in establishing the county clerk's office was a vacancy.
"The vacancy was created, and this vacancy the Governor has filled." In his rejoinder Mr. Craig said Mr.
Adams had told the court that the Governor had granted the applicant a vacancy. "Mr. Adams has put the whole argument on the ground that there was a vacancy. The Governor did not fill the office which it could not do for granted that the Governor's action will have some influence, but he is not in intelligence one bit above this Board, he acted on the same advice, probably, upon which he issues commissions to Judge Shuford, and some other judges for eight years, and the Supreme court promptly sat down upon him. I suppose he had not found out his rights when he issued Mr. Call's certificate."

Mr. Craig made an extended contention that the legislature had the right to appoint, and upon his conclusion Chairman Rankin asked what would be the effect if neither of the applicant should make a bond. It was answered by the attorneys that the judge would appoint.
Judge Thos. A. Jones, who was commissioned by Governor Carr and whose case is now before the Board of Commissioners, here stated that he did not see any earthly possibility of the Supreme court deciding the question of the judgeship in time for the holding of the April court, and he thought the Board should accept the bond of one or the other of the applicants so that there would be an officer of the court to look after the work when the time for the court should come.

Mr. Adams resumed his argument and contended that there was no provision for the appointment of a clerk other than the provision of the constitution. The legislature could prescribe the manner of filling the office, which it had done, by saying that it should be filled by a vote of the people. The legislature had not only prescribed the manner of filling which it could do, but had gone on and filled the office, which it could not do under the constitution. When the body prescribed the manner it could go no farther. The legislature in passing the act said there was a vacancy, the law made Judge Jones and Clerk Young, vacant, and there being a vacancy Governor Carr had the right to fill it.

Mr. Craig closed the case, saying in conclusion that as a Democrat he wanted to see the men who were elected get what they were entitled to.
Mr. Adams laughingly remarked that he would reply to Mr. Craig's political speech on the eve of the next election, and Mr. Craig replied "If you say you will do more than you have done to my argument."

Chairman Rankin, after a few words with his fellow members, announced that a decision would be rendered this morning, and the crowd left the room.
At 10 o'clock Chairman Rankin announced that the Board was not then ready to give its conclusion.

When the Board met in afternoon ses-

OUR INTEREST IN THE NICARA-GUA CANAL.

Government Commission Going Down to Examine the Canal Route—Plans and Specifications—A War Vessel at the Commission's Disposal.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—President Cleveland has determined that the official showing of American interest in the Nicaragua canal, which was authorized by the last session of Congress, shall be promptly made, and a governmental commission to examine the canal route, for which the sundry civil bill made $20,000 immediately available, is to be sent to Greytown as soon as possible on an United States war vessel to emphasize the concern of this government in the enterprise of American citizens who have been acting under the charter granted by Congress in 1889.

The program of the administration's action in the premises was agreed upon at last Friday's cabinet meeting, when Secretaries Lamont and Herbert were directed to select a member of the corps of army engineers and one of the naval civil engineers respectively, who, with a civilian, to be selected in a day or two, will constitute the board of engineers charged with "ascertaining the feasibility, permanence and cost of construction and completion" of the Nicaraguan canal, "which commission shall visit and personally inspect the route of said canal, examine and consider the plans, profiles, sections, prisms, and specifications for its various parts, and report in person to the President on or before November first," next.

It was also decided that the army should have a ranking officer on board, and Secretary Lamont selected Col. Wm.
P. Craighill for the chairmanship. Col.
Craighill was the last president of the American Society of civil engineers, and the weight of his opinion upon the canal project would be convincing beyond that of any other man who could be appointed on the board. Secretary Herbert selected Civil Engineer Mordcau T. Eddick, whose relative rank of lieutenant-commander in the navy, but a degree below that of Col. Craighill, and who is the second officer on the civil engineer's list of the navy, a man of high professional attainments in the navy, and who upon naval works ashore. The President has not yet announced the civilian member, but Col. J. A. Montgomery of Birmingham, Alabama, who has been prominent in the construction of Southern railroads, is said to be a leading candidate.

As soon as the President completes the board it will organize in Washington and go to New York, where the plans, specifications and contracts of the canal company will then go.

The party will then go to Mobile and embark on the Montgomery, which has recently returned from the duty of conveying it to Greytown and which will remain there as long as their stay lasts, furnishing them a marine guard as well as boats and steam launches and lending them the moral support of the United States flag.

that his company bought a large interest in the Cincinnati extension bonds, which control the lease of the road.
