SEEING that what Asheville wants is a competing railroad, and not a pleasure line between here and Rutherfordtonone that would threaten the supremacy of the Southern-Vice-President St slohn's suggestion that "an electric line might be built that would meet your every requirement," doesn't seem to indicate a complete grasp of the situation. Whether it does or does not is not ma terial, however. What is material is, that, on a point in which Mr. St. John is ing its arm in a sling, and men somercertain to be fully informed-the chances sault into another camp where picking of the Seaboard getting into Asheville—
